Mr. and Mrs. Herrin left for the Locks this morning to meet officers of the grand lodge of Workmen and Degree of Honor.

Many of the ladies are attracted to Pease & Mays these days by an elegant new stock of fall dress goods, which has lately arrived, and of which, we understand, they have a great variety.

Republicans of 8-Mile precinct will organize a McKinley club at the Lower 8-Mile school house Monday night, Sept. 21st at 7:30 o'clock. All Republicans are cordially invited to be present.

J. H. Graham, who was killed yesterday, was a brother of William Graham, who was killed seven years ago the 17th of this month by being scalded to death in a railroad accident above The Dalles.

Capt. Waud states that the bulkhead on the shore side has been built ready for the cement at the Locks, and on the island side it has been cleared ready for the masonry, which will be built up fast.

Mr. J. S. Koontz returned today from the head of 8-Mile where he has been for the past week. The weather up there is now cold continually and in camp a fire must be kept up all the time if comfort is to be insured.

The car of Italian and silver prunes, shipped last night by The Dalles Commission Co., was made up as follows: J. H. Stadlerman, 50; Geo. Sellinger, 102; W. H. Johnson, 168; Amos Root, 37; E. Lane, 20; A. S. Bennett, 402.

A. M. Williams & Co. have some very handsome windows, which will well repay inspection. There is a splendid exhibit of underwear in one of them, which, being seasonable, will attract much attention. There are some drives in other lines, also, noted in their advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

News was received in this city today of the death of Joseph Carey, a son-in-law of Mrs. Hawthorne, who was killed near Eugene last week, while riding a horse, by his spurs catching in the saddle girth, frightening the horse, who reared and fell, crushing his rider. Mrs. Carey is a daughter of Mrs. Hawthorne and resides in The Dalles.

At the inspection at the armory last night Major Jackson expressed his complete satisfaction as to The Dalles militia company. Company G and the non-commissioned staff came under the examination. The different maneuvers and the manual of arms was gone through with by Capt. Chrisman, under the instruction of Major Jackson, First Lieut. Reese and Second Lieut. McAvoy. Major Jackson and Col. Telfer left later for Wasco.

Funeral of J. H. Graham.

The funeral of J. H. Graham occurred at 12 o'clock. On the delayed west-bound train came fourteen of his La Grande acquaintances and brothers in the K. of P. lodge. Graham lived in La Grande for many years and was married to a Miss Porter of La Grande nine years ago. She has since died, leaving a son who is now about six years of age in California. The funeral was conducted by the K. of P., Friendship Lodge of The Dalles attending in a body. The services were conducted at the M. E. church by Rev. Goss. The pall bearers were M. F. Rice, W. M. Maher, Judge Bradshaw, C. E. Bayard, C. W. Johnson and Frank Menettee. There were present among the mourners his aged father and his brother, the master mechanic at Portland. There were also present J. P. O'Brien, superintendent of the O. R. and N.; D. W. Campbell, chief train dispatcher; J. Fitzgerald, yardmaster; and Dan'l McLaughlin, superintendent of the general electric light works, all of Portland. The services continued till 1 o'clock, when the march was taken for the grave, about 100 K. of P.'s being in line. The remains were laid to rest in the Odd Fellows' cemetery.

McKinley Club Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the McKinley club at the court house Friday evening at 8 o'clock. All who are opposed to the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 are invited to be present and to unite in the effort to carry Wasco county for sound money and good government. The old membership roll will at the meeting be discharged and a new membership list opened.

A Correction.

MR. EDITOR:—Please correct an error you made in THE CHRONICLE yesterday by stating that Charley Heppner touched off that quart of powder with the lighted end of a cigarette. Instead he lit the powder with a match he held in his fingers, and had no cigarette at the time.

MR. AND MRS. TURNER-DROWN

Death of Two Colored Citizens by Floating Under a Scow.

George Washington Turner and his wife, well known colored people of The Dalles, who have been in the laundry business for some time, were drowned about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

With another colored man known as Jenkins, they had been fishing above the rapids. They had hauled in their sturgeon line, getting about 300 pounds of fish, which was deposited in the bottom of the boat along with a salmon they had procured. In the boat, also, was their dog, a small yellow pug. Jenkins, who was the only survivor of the occupants of the boat, and who is the only living witness of the tragic occurrence, tells the following particulars. The boat, after receiving its load of fish, was rowed down over the rapids, and was heading directly for the bow of Davis' scow, which is anchored across the river about a mile and a half distant. Jenkins who is a proficient oarsman, saw the danger, and shouted to Turner to row with his shore oar. Turner was unskilled in the use of oars, and becoming frightened, accidentally knocked out Jenkins' oarlock with his oar. There remained one other lock on that side of the boat, but this also was in some manner knocked out through the hurry and agitation of Turner. In another moment the boat had drifted to the scow and was at once submerged with all its occupants, except Jenkins. By standing up in the boat he in some manner grasped a shore line which helps fasten the fish boat steadily in the river, and climbed hand over hand to it. But Turner and his wife sank to rise no more. Their four-footed companion also drowned with them.

The small boat came up a short distance down the river badly battered and a great hole stove in its side near the bottom, but it was tenacious. The current flows very swift where the accident occurred, and it is scarcely probable the bodies will be found, though efforts have been made today to do so.

Turner was a son of Mrs. Whitaker, who died not long ago at the Portland hospital.

Turner and Jenkins had but just formed a partnership in the sturgeon fishing business and this was their first day's work fishing. Mrs. Turner had expressed a wish to go out with them in the boat, and had almost been dissuaded by friends to whom she had spoken, but unfortunately their advice had not prevailed. She was the first to sink out of sight beneath the scow, holding her dog in her arms. Her husband followed directly.

In the boat was a sturgeon weighing 250 pounds. The same sturgeon was recovered this morning and brought to the express office. The sturgeon lines and hooks were lost.

Beautiful Currency.

Mr. H. Herbring, who is now in New York, has just sent to Mr. Carl Gottfried specimens of the new issues of $1, $2 and $5 bills, issued according to the act of August 4, 1896. They are by far the handsomest "greenbacks" ever issued by the government, and remind one of the artistic Columbian stamps issued during 1893. The one dollar bill has a central picture entitled "History Instructing Youth," representing a woman pointing a youth to a panoramic view of Washington City, with the Washington monument and the Potomac river in the foreground. Around the picture are grouped twenty-three illustrious names, each in a laurel wreath, famous in science, art, poetry literature, statesmanship or warfare. On the reverse side are large portraits of George and Martha Washington.

The $2 bill represents "Science presenting steam and electricity to commerce and manufacture." Here the five characters are again impersonated by beautiful women and youths. "Electricity" has a wire-enveloped armature in his hand, while "Steam" controls a lever attached to machinery. On the reverse side are excellent likenesses of Morse, the inventor of telegraphy, and Fulton, of steamboat fame.

The $5 bill has a central figure of great beauty, which is unnamed. "Columbia," standing upon that part of the globe allotted to the United States, holds aloft an electric light, while another female figure at her feet has a horn to her lips. On the left appears fierce-browed War driving a chariot, her right hand hurling thunderbolts, her left holding the reins of her horses. At the left of the picture is an angel, above whose head flutter a number of doves. On the opposite side are the familiar faces of Grant and Sheridan.
