LUCK OF THE LAURADA

Her Last Voyage Fraught With Adventure.

A SPANISH SPY AMONG THE CREW

He Made a Futile Attempt to Wreck the Vessel—The Captain Was Then Arrested.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 6.—(Delayed in transmission)—All circumstances point to the fact that on her last voyage the steamer Laurada included among her crew a Spanish agent and spy. So far as known here his identity has not been discovered. That the Laurada carried a filibustering expedition to Cuba on this trip seems to be beyond all doubt, although there will probably be great difficulty in proving the fact, for the Spanish spy, who, it is now well known was on board, will hardly care to reveal himself in the witness box. If the party is known no action will be taken against him and he will not be disposed to carry out to the end the part he has been playing as a hired spy.

The explanation is simply that this man attempted to wreck the vessel, or, should he appear to wear to the information he possesses regarding the filibustering part of the voyage, he will have to face a charge on this count, per contra. If his identity has really been ascertained no legal action will be taken against him, as that might beg the question as to his possible testimony about the landing of the biggest filibustering expedition of modern times.

The facts in connection with the stranding of the steamship at Port Antonio, so far as the correspondent could ascertain, is that upon the arrival of the Laurada at Port Antonio, some person gave information to the customs authorities that she had been engaged in a filibustering expedition and that there was a large quantity of rifles still on board, which had not been landed, but which would be put ashore on the return voyage. The ship was searched before she proceeded to the port to take on her cargo of fruit, but the arms were not found. The informant thereupon secretly promised one of the customs officers that on the vessel's return from the port he would find means to discover the place in which he was concealed. Captain Murphy had concealed the arms, since they had not left the vessel.

On the night of the first instant, as the Laurada was entering Port Antonio and the Lama was going out, the two vessels passing in the deep but intricate channel, the Laurada had to veer to make way of an outward-bound ship. At the critical moment, and with a strong current running, the steering gear of the Laurada gave way. At that moment the probable effect of the breakdown would have been to throw the Laurada across the Lama's bow and bring about a collision that would have sent the former to the bottom. As it happened, the current was swifter than the Lama and the Laurada escaped the latter's prow and was swept on the reef. By a singular piece of good luck, she struck the one spot on the entire length of the reef where she could have struck without having her bottom knocked out.

Of course, to all outward seeming, the whole thing had the appearance of being an accident. But it was an accident that bids fair to end the days of the Laurada. She was placed between collision and being smashed on the coral reef, but escaped both, and gently lay her nose into a little bed of soft sand. She had to be lightened to get her off, and this fact indicates the agency of some deliberate intent, for through it the unknown informer was enabled to keep his word, a quantity of rifles having been found on the vessel this time.

The result was that Captain Murphy was promptly called up before the resident magistrate and although the Laurada was so slightly damaged by her contact with the reef, that she was able to proceed at once on her voyage, Captain Murphy had to provide recognizance before he could leave the island. He made a cash deposit of $300 to appear on the 28th inst. to answer the charge of conveying contrabands of war and was allowed to sail.

Danif Webster on Money and Wage Earners.

The very man, of all others, who has the deepest interest in a sound currency and who suffers most by mischievous legislation in money matters is the man who earns his daily bread by his daily toil. * * * His property is in his hands. His reliance, his food, his productive freehold, his all, is his labor. Whether he work on his own small capital or another's, his living is still earned by his industry, and when the money of the country becomes depreciated and debased, whether it be adulterated coin or paper without credit, that industry is robbed of its reward. He then labors for a country whose laws cheat him out of his bread. I would say to every owner of every quarter section of land in the west, I would say to every man in the east who follows his own plow and to every mechanic, artisan and laborer of every city in the country—I would say to every man, everywhere, who wishes by honest means to gain an honest living, "beware of wolves in sheep's clothing." Whoever attempts, under whatever popular cry, to shake the stability of the public currency * * * stabs your interests and your happiness to the heart.

The Gold Dollar and the Silver Dollar. The value of every dollar earned by the wage earner and paid to the farmer under present conditions is 100 cents.

With the unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 the value of the dollar would sink to the price of the silver bullion in coin, containing 371 1/4 grains of pure silver, or about 51 cents.

Design suggested for the "free silver" dollar. The American eagle will not stay on a debased coin. The man in the moon likes it because it gets its shape from him, and the trombone suits its sliding value. No charge for design. Free coinage, free design. So the silver trusts are bound to get rich.
