WHO IS TO BLAME?

The Free Silver Wolf Says That the Sound Money Lamb Is Disturbing Business.

The wolf in the fable blamed the lamb for stirring up the bed of the stream and making the water muddy. "But," said the lamb, "the water runs from you toward me. I could not have disturbed your drinking." "Oh, well," the wolf rejoined, "if you did not, your grandfather did." And he straightway dined on young mutton. The silverite wolves who are howling calamity and threatening to overthrow our sound financial system pretend to find an excuse for their 16 to 1 schemes in the unsettled condition of business. Because loans are being called in and capital is timidly waiting the result of the elections, the advocates of free coinage say, in the words of their presidential candidate, "You are interfering with business." All unfavorable indications in trade and industry they loudly ascribe to the gold standard, and the manufacturers who are forced to limit their output by reason of the refusal of merchants to buy while there is so much uncertainty about prices are accused of being goldbugs who are purposely making hard times.

It should be easy for all intelligent voters to see through the hypocrisy of the silverite claims. Nothing can be more certain than that instead of being due to the gold standard any financial stringency which may now exist is almost entirely caused by the agitation for a debased currency. With a large number of office seeking politicians going up and down the country shouting for cheap dollars, and promising to cut the measure of values in two if they gain control of the government, how can business be good? A tight money market simply means that the owners of capital are unwilling to make loans. Does any reasonable man expect that the threat of enabling borrowers to pay their debts in 50 cent dollars is going to encourage investors to part with their capital? On the contrary, it is not self evident that the clamor for a debt repudiation policy is the real source of business depression?

So long as there remains any doubt as to the future financial basis of our great industrial and mercantile operations so long will there be anxiety and fear in the commercial world. Distrust will continue to breed failures; capital will be scarce and interest high; debts will be hard to collect, and investors will hesitate to engage in productive industries. This condition of affairs can only be remedied, in so far as our money standard is concerned, by an emphatic declaration at the polls against free silver and all other cheap money fallacies.

Getting Rich in Their Minds.

The silverites who are dreaming of great wealth to be had for everybody through the simple process of calling 50 cents a dollar should wake up long enough to ask themselves this question: "If a dollar's worth of property means a certain quantity of labor products, would there be any more of these products for the men who want them if we say that the same amount of property is worth $2? In other words, does an increase in the prices of goods mean an increased quantity of goods?"

By the time they have thought out an answer to this question the victims of the 16 to 1 delusion will be able to see that, though they might legislate that every dollar's worth of products should be worth 100 times as much, the only change would be in the minds of the men who made the law. Dreams of great riches are mighty poor substitutes for solid labor products.

Even if it were true that free coinage at 16 to 1 would raise the price of silver, how would that benefit the great majority of the American people? Not one person in a thousand owns a silver mine or has silver bullion for which he wants a higher price. But everybody wants to buy silver in the form of manufactured articles of use or ornament, and therefore wants it to be as cheap as possible. A scheme for making glassware or hardware dearer would not receive much favor from the consumers of those goods. Is it at all likely that the consumers of silver manufactures are anxious to pay more for them?

I hold sound, stable currency to be among the greatest encouragements to industry and business generally and an unsound and fluctuating—now expanding and now contracting, so that no honest man can tell what to do—as among the greatest discouragements.—John C. Calhoun, 1838.

Which? Gold or Silver.

This is the title of a book on the money question containing sixty-two pages. It is the most complete work issued thus far on that all-important issue now before the American people. Every man in this country old enough to vote should not fail to read this book before casting his mighty ballot in next November. Every employer of men should procure at once a number of the books and hand them to his workmen. It is not written in an offensive way, nor can it offend the most sensitive Democrat. It is compiled in such a manner and with such a strict regard for truth that it cannot fail to convince. This book should be in large quantities on the tables in every campaign club throughout the country, and campaign committees throughout every part of the land should possess themselves of a sufficient number of these books to be distributed to every voter in their counties. Single copies can be procured for 10 cents and 2 cents in stamps; or ten copies, postage paid for $1. C. M. Daniels Publishing Company, 38 Park Row, New York.

It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Blakeley & Houghton's Drug Store.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair. Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed on exhibit at the world's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the world's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."
