NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET

For President, WILLIAM M'KINLEY, Ohio. For Vice-President, GARRET A. HOBART, New Jersey. For Presidential Electors, T. T. GEER, Marion County; S. M. YORAN, Lane; E. L. SMITH, Wasco; J. F. CAPLES, Multnomah.

PROHIBITION LESS IMPORTANT THAN A SAFE GOVERNMENT.

A very considerable number of voters, whose honesty of purpose cannot be questioned, have felt that the evils of the liquor traffic must be removed through national and state legislation, and that a political organization pledged especially to this cause was an essential means in this temperance reform work. Many voters, mostly from the Republican party, have allied themselves with this moral reform party, and today are independent of all other parties. Whatever may be said as to the wisdom of this policy as a general thing, at this time there comes a serious question as to whether we shall have a government which believes in the enforcement of the laws now existing and which may hereafter be enacted.

Prohibition will certainly not prohibit if the government is in the hands of men who believe in allowing the unruly element to have their own way. About the first words Mr. Bryan uttered, when called to the hotel veranda the day he was nominated, were: "This does not mean keep off the grass, boys." In view of the platform, the time and the place of this utterance, and in view of subsequent declarations of Bryan and his supporters, it meant to that crowd, and means today, that violence and insurrection would receive no restraint at his hands if elected; that anarchy and rioting would not be repressed by federal interference, and the arm of this great nation would not protect its own property and business when angered men should see fit to redress a real or imaginary grievance against their employers by fire and bloodshed.

We ask our Prohibition friends what will be gained for their cause by the election of Bryan? They concede that their candidate cannot be elected, and a vote withheld from McKinley is as good as a vote for Bryan. Is not the existence of the government of greater consequence than the enactment of a law which will not be enforced against the will of any considerable number of its violators? Are law and order, and their maintenance to be ignored, and the property of this great nation and the rights and lives of its citizens to be entrusted to the men who declare openly and everywhere that the federal government must not interfere, simply that this question concerning the liquor traffic may receive an expression?

Ever since the Vermont and Maine elections we have been told by our Popocratic friends to "just wait until you hear from Georgia and Florida!" We waited, and all we can make out of the returns from these states is that in Georgia the Populists and Democrats have had a bitter strife and the Populists are being counted out, while the Democratic vote has perceptibly fallen off. The returns from Florida indicate that the Democratic candidate for governor will have a plurality of 15,000 to 20,000. As compared with the Democratic majority of 23,355 for governor in 1892, the result has very little of satisfaction in it for Mr. Bryan. If the result in these two southern states signifies anything at all, it means a large falling away in the supposed Bryan strongholds, and the certain election of McKinley.

While Sylvester Pennoyer was denouncing Lincoln and the efforts of the Republican party to reestablish a united nation, General Williams by wise counsel and unwearied labor was standing by the Government; which of these two men, by habit of thought and life, are most capable to advise the voters of Oregon at this crisis? Who doubts upon which side of this controversy Lincoln and his advisers would stand today? Would they be with Pennoyer and Altgeld, with Bryan and Stewart, or with McKinley, Sherman, Harrison, Alger, Howard and Williams? In private affairs we follow the advice of the men whom we know to have been right in the past; in matters of national concern the American people will do the same next November.

And this is all the good the eloquent free trade Pennoyer's speech had upon our contemporary:

So long as there is no other provision for raising the revenues for paying the expenses of this government than by tariff and internal revenue taxes, there is no disputing the fact that the tariffs must be increased, and if they are raised there is no question they will be increased so as to afford incidental protection to such industries as are most deserving of favors, and at the same time levied so as to produce the most revenue with the least burden to the people. Since the imports of wool are very heavy, that commodity is more likely to be made bear the burden of taxation than any other, thus affording a protection to the wool raisers of America.—Mountaineer.

"A dollar which is of less purchasing power than the dollar we borrow today is a dishonest dollar," says The Dalles Chronicle. But how about the dollar we borrowed sometime since, the purchasing power of which has practically doubled; is that a dishonest dollar also?—La Grande Chronicle.

There were no such dollars and are none. The dollar of today purchases less of labor than did a gold dollar of 1873, but it buys much more of manufactured products, which labor consumes, because of improvements in the manufacturing processes.

Governor Pennoyer was cheered to the echo when he declared that the farmers knew more of finance and banking than the bankers. It is remarkable that they stay by the farms; why not sell the farm, apply to the United States Treasury for a lot of blank bank notes and set up shop?
