FOOLED AGAIN.

Because Harvey Scott, the able editor of the Oregonian, is an advocate of the gold standard is no reason why the whole Scott family should be, but if Harvey is not mistaken he has a brother who is one of those despised "anarchists." The Portland Tomahawk credits the brother, who is a farmer living near Forest Grove, as having said: "For upwards of fourteen years have I taken the Oregonian and steadfastly advocated its every policy. Natural affection and pride in the success of a brother made me overlook many faults. Often I knew that from a farmer's view his opinions were greatly in error, but still I would cling to and sustain his errors from reasons purely natural. I was proud of Harvey. At present I am not with him. I realize that for fourteen years I have labored and sold my products in a falling market, while Harvey has had the advantage of selling his paper in a rising market. I have become so poor that my Oregonian must be discontinued. My land, which was at one time worth $50 per acre, has shrunk in value to one-fourth of that figure, and my neighbors are in identically like circumstances. None of us can see any hope for relief in the triumph of the gold standard. Hence am I and my neighbors for silver."—Mountaineer.

There is a story "going the rounds" that "a brother of the editor of the Oregonian, named Robert Scott, repudiates the gold standard." The editor of the Oregonian has no living brother, and knows no one named Robert Scott.—Oregonian.

Of course our contemporary will correct the misstatement contained in its article above quoted.

THEORY VS. FACT.

The Popocrat at this time bases his whole case upon the proposition that our greatest prosperity was during the free coinage period, from 1843 to 1873, and that the beginning of our national distress was immediately following the demonetization of 1873. Therefore the demonetization of 1873 caused our present distress.

The claim is not true, and is not supported by statistics or by the experience of the men who lived during this period. But conceding it to be true that this nation was most prosperous during the twenty-five or thirty years prior to 1873, what had the coinage laws in force at that time to do with it? Up to 1853 we had laws permitting the free coinage of both metals. From 1843 to 1853 we coined, on an average, $2,165,232 per annum of silver. On February 21, 1853, all coinage of silver except silver dollars, was restricted to government coinage; in other words, silver was "demonetized," except as to silver dollars. But during the entire time from 1843 to 1853 we had coined only $646,350 silver dollars, or $71,817 per annum. From 1853 to 1873, during the time when the coinage of dollars only was free, we coined on an average 174,294 silver dollars.

During the first ten years following the "crime of 1873" we coined in silver dollars, on an average 16,918,662 silver dollars per annum, or about twenty-six times as much each year as the total coinage of dollars from '43 to '53, and more each year than 2 1/2 times the total coinage from 1843 to 1873; and the coinage of silver dollars after this first ten years continued to increase until 1890, in which year we coined over 38,000,000 silver dollars.

In short, during the period of greatest prosperity, according to Popocracy, we coined comparatively no silver, while the period of distress has been the period of large coinage. The fact is, that the period 1883 to 1893 was the period of our greatest national prosperity, not the period from 1843 to 1873.

There is more reason to believe that Chicago will give Bryan a large majority than that any other city in the United States will. Here it is that the turbulent elements of society are congregated in greatest number; here the anarchists are most powerful; here it was that the interference of federal troops became necessary to save lives and property and protect the business of the government; here Altgeld is popular and powerful; here ignorance and socialistic prejudice is most prevalent and easily excited. But there are also many law-abiding citizens in Chicago; 75,000 of them marched in line last Friday to evidence their intention to save the city from the disgrace of Altgeldism, and notwithstanding the boast of Bryanites, there is strong hope that even Chicago will vote for McKinley and good government.

The Bryan financial plan leaves the question as to the amount of silver to be coined wholly to the owners of the silver—to Hearst, worth $75,000,000; the Fair estate, worth about the same; Stewart, a 25-millionaire, and the great corporations, who operate the other silver mines in this country. The McKinley plan is to let the government of the United States determine this question. The one plan threatens the stability of our financial system; the other insures the parity between the two money metals.

The most eloquent, inspiring and patriotic address of the campaign was Major McKinley's address to the old soldiers of Virginia on last Friday. The Republican nominee has proven himself to be the man orator, as well as the statesman of this generation.

During the seven years preceding 1895 the world's output of gold increased seventy-five per cent, and yet it is contended that gold has appreciated in that time.

It is the same old story and yet constantly recurring that Simmons Liver Regulator is the best family medicine. "We have used it in our family for eight years and find it the best medicine we have used. We think there is no such medicine as Simmons Liver Regulator."—Mrs. M. E. S. Adington, Franklin, N. C. Each member of our family uses it as occasion requires."—W. B. Smith, Mt. Vernon, Ky.
