WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

Wizard Oil Company At the New Vogt tonight.

Senator John H. Mitchell speaks at DuPont on Thursday, the 15th.

The King's Daughters will meet with Mrs. Randall tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Four loads of cattle were shipped to Troutdale last evening by Newt. Burgess and two loads of hogs by Parrot to Seattle.

The painting entitled "The Horse Fair," painted by Miss Holcomb, will be raffled this evening at 8 o'clock at the Umatilla House.

Meessrs. Grant Mays and Thompson were in Mitchell last week buying cattle, and purchased some yearlings and 2-year-olds at $11 and $10.

The stereopticon exhibition Wednesday evening at K. of P. hall will be something very fine. The apparatus is now on exhibition in A. M. Williams & Co.'s window.

H. C. Myers of Heppner, Morrow county, has filed an assignment for the benefit of his creditors in the office of Recorder Malcolm in Portland. The assignee is John Myers.

Mr. N. Whealdon is exhibiting a specimen of what he calls "Pennoyer wool," which is a fine quality of asbestos found in the John Day country. The ledge is about half an inch in thickness, between solid walls of rock.

If we were a gambling man and had a loose hundred-dollar piece lying in our vest pocket we would plank it down against $50 that Wasco county will give McKinley a majority of 500 on the 3d of next month.—Antelope Herald.

Orville Hendershot, a young man formerly a resident of this city, made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide in Portland early yesterday morning. He succeeded only in inflicting a slight flesh wound by shooting himself in the side with a revolver.

J. E. Campbell of the Warm Springs agency, informs the Prineville Review that the work on the government school buildings is progressing very rapidly. Several fine structures are being erected, and the government is going to considerable expense in so doing.

A petition is being circulated signed by a large number of "poor-innocent men" for the Ladies Thespian Club to repeat their excellent entertainment of Saturday last in the Baldwin opera house for the delectation of the petitioners. The ladies promise to "think over it."

David B. Hill, who has for many years carried the state of New York in his vest pocket, estimates that McKinley will carry that state by no less than 150,000 plurality. Coming from such a high Democratic source, it shows that one can safely gamble on the empire state setting down hard on Bryan and all his wild theories.

Beginning with tonight, the streets of Eugene will again be lighted by electricity, after a period of darkness lasting nearly three months. At the meeting of the city council last evening the terms of the electric light company were accepted, and it was voted to contract for 24 arc lights at the price of $9 each per month.

Schoonmaker's Dates Cancelled.

The following telegram is self-explanatory:

PORTLAND, Oct. 13, 1896.

M. A. MOODY, THE DALLES, OR.:

Nothing further is known than the mere announcement stated in the telegram.

The Coming District Fair.

Hardly second in public estimation to the subject of politics is the Eastern Oregon District fair, which opens on Tuesday next at the fair grounds. A little inquiry shows there is a lively interest taken in the different features, and all indications point to a successful fair. As regards exhibits, they promise to be unexcelled in variety and high quality. The racing features, also, have excited great interest, and besides the local favorites, there will be as many as forty racing horses from abroad. A new device for starting in a race will be shown for the first time, known as the electric starting gate. The horses are all lined up in front of a web stretching entirely across the track. At the instant the button is touched the web disappears and the horses then have an even start, no failures.

On Monday evening at the home of L. L. McCartney, there was a surprise party given for Miss Annie Cox.

PLEAD GUILTY.

Guy Moulton Fined $10 for Sending Obscene Letters Through the Mails.

Guy L. Moulton, proprietor of the steam dye works, at The Dalles, was arraigned in the United States district court yesterday charged with harrowing his wife, from whom he is separated, by sending her letters couched in abusive, taunting language, and naming the woman and her relatives in appellations not fit for print. The trial was short, the defendant pleading guilty and he was fined $10. The Oregonian today says: "He looked pale and disgusted, and had evidently made up his mind that the easiest way out of it was the best, as he waived reading of the complaint and pleaded guilty. There must have been some extenuating circumstances connected with his case, as the court imposed a fine of only $10, which was paid. Mr. Moulton will now give up corresponding with the lady."

Deputy Marshal Humphrey, who arrested Moulton at The Dalles, tells the Telegram this story of the prisoner's chagrin on finding himself in the marshal's presence.

"In the dye works business Moulton's father is connected with him, and it seems that the pair had received an inkling of the proposed arrest. Moulton had therefore cautioned his father to keep a close watch for any government officer that might come about the place and give warning to the writer of obscene letters that he might make good his escape by the rear windows.

"As it happens, Deputy Marshal Humphrey's home is in Albany, where also the Moultons long resided before removing to The Dalles, and all parties were well acquainted. Humphrey arrived to make the arrest early in the morning, finding the elder Moulton arisen, but the younger still in bed.

"I want to see Guy," said the officer. "Peter Moulton opened his mouth to give a warning, but the look on his face gave his purpose away.

"Don't!" quietly said Humphrey. "If you do you'll both go to jail. Just tell Guy a gentleman is in the shop waiting to see him."

"The old man, overawed, did as he was told, and a moment later the younger Moulton appeared. He got a glance at the marshal and started back aghast.

"Holy smoke, dad! You bloody old fool!" he yelled, "don't you see it's Humphrey?" and started to beat a hasty retreat, but was induced by the officer to hold his ground.

"I knew it, Guy; I knew it," wailed the pater, "but Humphrey wouldn't let me holler."

Trouble Among Stockmen.

The cattlemen of the Southfork country, last spring, organized for the purpose of excluding sheep from a portion of their section of the country and early in the summer they made considerable trouble for the sheepmen, killing many sheep and burning provisions. An eye witness brings to the Prineville Journal an account of their latest exploit: Some sheep from the Mitchell country, moved in on territory which the cattlemen say shall not be herded by sheep. One day last week, fourteen armed men visited this trespassing band of sheep and one of the party, who was masked, relieved the herder of his gun, at the same time giving him some pointers as to the inadvisability of his remaining in that section of the country if he placed any valuation on his life. The whole party then fired into the band of sheep, killing and wounding from 200 to 250 head, burned the camp outfit and departed; promising to return again if the sheep were in that locality at a given time.

The Wizard Oil Co.

The Wizard Oil Company is more meritorious than half the vaudeville shows now on the road pretending to be first class. Of course for the privilege of being admitted for 15 cents, one must listen to a talk upon the merits of Wizard oil, but the talk is short and actually interesting, and consumes no more time than the space between acts when there is nothing to look at but the drop curtain.

As before stated, the show part of it is "immense," and reveals a surprising variety, comprising the pleasing features of the concert, the minstrel, the circus and the comedy. The quartette have excellent voices and sing fresh, new songs. Mr. Gallagher is possessed of a rich bass voice and is a comedian and facial artist of rare ability. The tenor in his solos was pleasing, the rendition of "Bonnie, Sweet Bessie," one of the prettiest of old Scotch ballads, being plaintive and sweet. The little man is a wonder as an acrobat, and his short stature makes his song and dance appear very comical. The juggler has also much talent, and his baton spinning was never excelled in The Dalles. The evening concluded with a roaring farce comedy, full of fun, which put the large audience in the best of humor. The opera house will be crowded nightly, as the entertainment is deserving of liberal patronage.
