NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET

For President, WILLIAM MCKINLEY, Ohio. For Vice-President, GARRET A. HOBART, New Jersey. For Presidential Electors, T. T. GEER, Marion County; S. M. YORAN, Lane; E. L. SMITH, Wasco; J. F. CAPLES, Multnomah.

VOTE RIGHT.

With this issue of THE CHRONICLE its campaign labor ceases, and ere again its newsy columns are perused the ballots will have been cast and the next president of the United States will have been elected. That it will be William McKinley is not only the earnest wish, but the honest belief of THE CHRONICLE. It believes that the good of all the people will be served by the triumph of Republican principles; by the maintenance of the gold standard; by the return to the protective theory pure and simple, without discrimination, and by the election of William McKinley, the champion of that theory. It has believed sincerely ever since the issues were made, that business would not get better until the election was over and McKinley elected. Capital is always conservative, always timid, and for months the money of the country has been tied up, awaiting the settlement of the question of the basis upon which the business of the country is to be done, and on what financial sea its ships are to be sailed. Its believes that the immediate effect of Mr. McKinley's election will be the loosening of purse strings and the beginning of an era of business activity and general prosperity, such as the country has not seen for years.

For these reasons it has, to the best of its ability, and at all times, advocated the election of McKinley. The issues are, in its humble opinion, the greatest the country ever faced, and it asks its readers in all sincerity to ponder them well before casting their votes tomorrow. Lay aside party prejudice and political passion; recollect that in casting your ballots you, and each of you, are giving a decision as a judge as to your opinion of the country's needs. Your own interests and those of your fellow-citizens are at stake, and on your decisions depend the future of our common country.

THE RESULT.

Tomorrow the business men of this nation, who include all the capitals, merchants, manufacturers, stock raisers, prosperous farmers and skilled mechanics, will at the ballot box oppose the silver mine-owners, the unprosperous of all classes, and those who never had anything, or who have lost what they once had through unwise investments or indolence. These are the general classes opposed to each other, the majorities on the two sides. Every man who wants to do business and wants his neighbor to do business, stands for the policy of safe government and a safe and stable currency. As the time for balloting has approached the lines have been more and more distinctly drawn between the ne'er-do-wells and the business man of all classes and callings. Before this week shall have closed, the world will know who has prevailed.

We predict a complete victory for the Republican cause, not because Mr. Hanna has published an estimate of Republican strength, which indicates the utmost of confidence; not because the Republicans appear everywhere to be confident; but because we have the utmost confidence in the wisdom and common sense of the American people. Should McKinley be defeated; should he not have an overwhelming majority, we shall be greatly surprised.

The time for boasting is past, and we predict McKinley's election because we believe, without a doubt, he will be elected by larger popular majorities than any prediction yet made, and by an electoral vote so large that there will be no controversy after the election, and no second attempt to make the free coinage of silver a national issue.

A CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE.

The following estimate was handed us this morning. It was made by a cool-headed, conservative Republican, and makes no exaggerated claims:

I believe the following states are certainly for McKinley: Connecticut, 6; New Hampshire, 4; Delaware, 3; New Jersey, 10; Illinois, 24; New York, 36; Indiana, 15; Ohio, 23; Iowa, 13; Oregon, 4; Maine, 6; Pennsylvania, 32; Massachusetts, 15; Rhode Island, 4; Michigan, 14; Vermont, 4; Minnesota, 9; Wisconsin, 13.

Total, 296. The probabilities are that the following also will be Republican: California, 9; Nebraska, 8; Kentucky, 13; West Virginia, 8; Maryland, 8. Total, 46. There is a chance that the following will also be Republican: North Carolina, 11; Tennessee, 12; North Dakota, 3; Wyoming, 3; South Dakota, 4; Kansas, 10; Washington, 4. Total, 47.

The big Republican parade in Portland Saturday night was a scorcher. It is estimated that there were at least 10,000 voters in the parade, and it is certain that it was the biggest thing of the kind ever seen in Oregon. Multnomah county will settle the result in this state if the vote compares at all with the parade.

Just to lay aside politics for a moment, we suggest that Col. Summers, whose alleged picture appears in yesterday's Oregonian, has a clear case of criminal libel against that paper.
