Mountain Mahogany.

A bundle of mountain mahogany sticks lying in front of the express office reminds as forcibly of old times down in Nevada. In the eastern part of the state this is about all that can be procured in many localities for fire-wood. It is as hard as flint and holds fire like a government appropriation. Out at White Pine we were engaged at one time in baling hay. The corral was made of mahogany logs, and for lack of something better it was used to do our cooking with. One night Black Jack, the The recent hot weather has caused him cook of the outfit, was lying asleep in to drop a few pounds of flesh, but has his bunk, his foot sticking out from between the covers, and his big toe lying temptingly an inch away from its neighbor. Charley Daly, who had been imbibing bug juice at a neighbor's to an unlimited extent, came in and saw Jack's toes. At the same time his drunken gaze fastened on a glowing ma- street. Thomas was but a stray kitten scooped up a hand full of ashes, placed been ascertained, and it is not known the live coal on top, and in less time whether or not heredity has had any than it takes to relate it, had dropped the coal between Jack's gaping toes. In just about half a second Charley was going out the cabin door, pursued by two pistol balls, one of which lodged in starvation feat by the performances of the door casing, and the other cut the sleeve of his coat. There was no hay baled next day, it taking the whole of it to patch up a treacherous peace.

HIS CREDITORS FOUND HIM. Mr. Jones Had Been Unable to See Them

During a Long Search. George Washington Jones, a colored gentleman, was ead, very sad. He was a calciminer when he had work to do, says Harper's Round Table, but, as he expresses it:

"Dem dere white trash hab gone into de trade, an' now Ise got no work to do." But this was not what made him sad. "Dis yere life," he said, "am not wuth livin'."

"What's the matter, George?" inquired his friend. "Why, Ise got a little money on dat last job, and Ise went round to settle de bills Ise owed." "Didn't you attend to it all right?" "Dar's de strange part of it. De butcher he wuz out, an' de grocer he wuz out, an' every one Ise wanted to pay wuz out, an' den what'd I do but lose dat money." "Well, that was unlucky, and no mistake; but still you showed your good intentions, and no doubt they won't press their claims."

"Press dere claims! Yah, dat's de trouble. When Ise got 'ome found ebery one of dem waitin' to press dere claims, an' as Ise couldn't fix dem, dey done an' fixed me."

LIQUOR FROM GAS BURNERS. Device of a Portland, Me., Hotel for Evading the Prohibition Law.

Everybody who visits Maine has a different story to tell on his return of his experience in getting drinks, says the New York Sun. The champion story is, perhaps, told by a well-known traveling salesman. He says that when he asked for a drink at a Portland hotel. he was shown into a room, which had nothing in it but table, on which were a pitcher of water and several tumblers, end a few chairs.

Over the table was a chandelier, with apparently half a dozen gas burners. When the cocks were turned, however, not gas, but liquor came out of the burners, which were horizontal, on the tips being unscrewed. From one burner came whisky; from another, run; from another, gin. Each burners supply pipe connected with a cask of some one of these liquors in the room above.

The man who tells this story says that the indictment papers against the hotel in question for selling liquor would fill a bushel basket, but none of them will ever be brought to trial; at least, none has been yet. Since adopting this device, the hotel has evaded detection.

THE BIGGEST CAT.

It Is Thirty Inches Long and Weighs Twenty-Four Pounds.

Just plain "Tom" is the unpretending name of probably the greatest domestic cat in the world.

Edward Simmons, a fish and oyster dealer of New York, is the proud possessor of "Tom." This giant of cats is 30 inches in length, from his head to the tip of his tail. He is a foot high, and weighed last spring 24 pounds.

Thomas is black and white, and is rather peculiarly marked. He has two complete rings of white around his tail, which makes him look like first cousin to a raccoon. Mr. Simmons picked up the cat two years ago while walking along South hogany coal. In a minute he had then, so that his pedigree has never is thrown into the background as the big anaconda at the Philadelphia zoological gardens, which was only recently tempted to eat a nice fat rabibt after going hungry for 22 months. It may have been even longer, but the keepers have no record of the creature's doings previous to its captivity, and so can't tell. It is not very unusual for a snake to abstain from food for several months, at the end of which time death generally results; but the anaconda case is distinctly different from any other. Its fast lasted more than twice as long as any in the history of the "zoo," and during the whole of its continuance there was no evidence of ill will be sold. Round trip tickets $1.50. health. The spell now seems to be entirely broken, and the anaconda calls regularly for its meals.

Electric Bitters

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store.
