Hot clam broth every day at noon at Ad Keller's.

The Klickitat hills were covered with snow this morning, but it did not remain long.

The case of the state against L. T. North was tried today, Dufur & Menefee appearing for the defendant.

Marsh and Joles will give a turkey and pigeon shoot the day before Thanksgiving and on Thanksgiving day.

In the case against Ed. Marshal charged with larceny from a dwelling, R. B. Sinnott was appointed by the court to defend him.

A true bill was found against F. L. Leonard yesterday, and Sinnott & Sinnott were appointed by the court to conduct his defense.

The many friends of Prof. M. N. Stratton will be pleased to learn that he has a position as teacher in the 8th grade of Harrison Street school, Portland.

The Woodmen's Circle will give a dime social at Fraternity hall Friday evening. There will be a program and a sociable time. Everybody invited.

Every Democrat in the nation can find some consolation in the election of McKinley. Bayard will be superseded in England and an American put in his place.

Yesterday the civil suit of Collins & Co. against Hendrichsen and wife, to recover $100 on a note, was tried before a jury, and a verdict returned giving plaintiffs judgment for $61.40.

King Oscar of Sweden will head the Venezuela Arbitration board. The other four members of the board will be appointed, two by the chief justice of the United States, and two by the lord chief justice of England.

Jacob Bauer, of Dufur, aged about 65 years, was adjudged insane yesterday by Justice Filloon, and was taken to the asylum today. The old gentleman is not violent, but is suffering from partial paralysis of the brain.

License to marry was issued today to Ozias S. Boardman, of Mitchell, Crook county, Oregon, and Mrs. Charlotte M. Clark, of Wasco county. The marriage will be celebrated this afternoon at 4 o'clock, Justice Filloon officiating.

There were three carloads of our citizens went to Portland this afternoon in one car and a half, and by the time they reach that metropolis will consider the jam on the line of the parade, as a first rate open breathing space. It is impossible to name them, as space forbids, but among them was the foreman of this news center, Mr. Davenport.

Mr. Alexander McLeod came in from Kingsley yesterday and had one of his fingers amputated. Some six weeks ago he got this finger caught in the machine with which he was grinding grain, and had to have the same amputated back of the first joint. The bone becoming diseased, it became necessary to again have it amputated, which was done by Dr. Logan last night.

Self-Denial Week.

The Salvation Army is all alive and actively engaged in preparing for its annual Self-Denial week, which takes place throughout the United States from Nov. 16th to 22d inclusive. Large sums of money have been raised in past years, and it is a wonderful testimony to the army's development and activity. Each member of the army, as well as friends of its many social institutions, are asked to abstain from all luxuries, and in many cases officers and soldiers have actually determined to do without certain articles of food which are ordinarily considered necessary, in order that by their acts of self denial they may add financial support to the army and its many different branches of work.

The social operations throughout America have been greatly developed during the past twelve months; new Food and Shelters have been opened in New York, San Francisco and Kansas City respectively. As a natural consequence, therefore, the demands upon the army's funds have increased, and this will require still greater efforts to raise a correspondingly increased amount during this special Self-Denial week. The total aimed at is $40,000.

Memory and Other Things.

There was fairly good skating on the sidewalks at an early hour this morning the rain winding up in a light fall of sleet. As we came slipping our little tootsies down to our treadmill, the crisp icy sidewalks set our memory to roaming into the misty past, when with the old curled-toed skates we "glid" over the frozen surface of the mighty canal. To the time when the one roay checked and fur be wrapped little divinity that flowed across our youthful vision, and filled our adolescent heart to overflowing with the blissful pain of an overgrown dose of puppy love. To the time when—but just here our feelings overcame us and we sat down to recuperate. It didn't take long, owing to the coolness existing between us and the sidewalk, to yank our memory out of the dim past and fetch her back to the painful present. As soon as she arrived we remembered that under such circumstances, the best thing to do was to get up. This we did, taking something less than a quart of dampness up with us. The only moral that we perceive in this digression is that it is better to concentrate ones thoughts on the beans and spuds that we have with us, or ought to have, than on the lilies and langour, the roses and red cheeks of the too long ago. There is more solid comfort in a corset full of eatables, than pleasure in recollection of what might have been, but sn't.

A Desperate Contest.

The merry-go-round has struck a pay streak. Its proprietor recognizing that love is what makes not only the world, but the merry-go-round has offered a gold watch as a prize to the most popular young lady in The Dalles, the entries being for girls up to "a certain age." Young America is on hand to prove his divinity, and as each time he rides he gets a ticket, and with each ticket gets a vote, life is to him one joyous round of pleasure. As it is a free-for-all, no weights for age, it is hard to make any estimate as to the result. It may be a damsel fair and 26 or it may be some sugar coated little lady of sweet 14. The election, so to speak, is running high, higher and hotter and more fierce than the McKinley-Bryan fight, for in the eyes of the partisans there is more at stake, and every individual doughty little knight is determined that his particular divinity, the sun of his first affections and whose bright beams illuminates like an X ray the innermost recesses of his soul shall wear that watch. As a result, night and day the merry-go-round whirls gaily, though somewhat creakingly, not being permitted to stop long enough to get its gudgeons greased. The nickels flow in, the tickets out, and the watch ticks listeningly waiting for the selection of its fair owner.

The Other Side.

EDITOR CHRONICLE—In this morning's Dispatch is an article entitled "A Lively Scrimmage," which presents one side of the case. I ask space to present the other, as I am the person alluded to. I and my friend applied at the box office asking for two seats as near the front as possible. The ticket seller told us "You can go within four or five seats of the front row," took my money and gave me the tickets. I saw no usher nor anyone else, and after waiting a few minutes we took seats in, I think, either the fifth or sixth row of seats. An usher, I suppose it was, asked me to move. I asked him what for, and he said "These seats are reserved." I said: "Why were you not here to show us where we were entitled to sit? He said, "I've nothing to do with that." I said, "Put me out if you can." "I will not do that," he said, "but I will see that you are put out." I said: "Why did you not have somebody to look after seating people?" The curtain was up and the first act on when we were first requested to move. He came back at the end of the act with the night watchman. They told me I must pay more money or move. I told Mr. Wiley if he would get me my money we would go out. This he promised to do, but upon getting to the door he said he had nothing to do with it. I insisted that he did, when he drew his club and attacked me, trying to knock me down, which he could not do. I took his club away from him but did not strike him with it. My friend took no part in the proceedings whatever. Wiley never let me know he was an officer, and I did not know that he was. When informed that he was, I restored his club and went with him peacefully. This is all there was of it.
