PORTLAND, Nov. 20, 1896. FOR EASTERN OREGON—Tonight fair; tomorrow, snow. PAGUE, Observer.

WAYSIDE CLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

Mr. Sam Bennett has seventeen head of cattle at the stock yards.

Five cars of cattle were shipped to Troutdale last night, and one of hogs will be shipped tonight.

Miss Myrtle Michell broke the bowling record for ladies at the club yesterday, making 45. The record heretofore has been held by Mrs. Fank, with 43.

There will be a Thanksgiving entertainment by the Sunday school given on Thursday night, Nov. 26th, at Fairfield schoolhouse. Everybody invited.

Arrangements are being made by the ladies of the Congregational church to give an old folks' concert on Thanksgiving evening. Further details will be given later.

The thermometer is still sulking along below freezing and the rich blue color of the horizon where it rests itself on the summit of the Cascades, indicates a heavy snow storm.

The Dalles Athletic and Commercial Club holds its annual election Tuesday, December 1st. Seven directors are to be elected to manage the affairs of the club until December of 1897.

Mr. Brooks, the man beaten so badly by Hawthorne and Heater, is still confined to his bed. He complains of severe pains in his back, where the brutal animals jumped on him.

Specimens of ore from the mines back of Stevenson are being shown here. If the body of ore is any size and will average up to its sample, Stevenson will yet have a genuine mining boom. The ore is all right.

Members of the Methodist Sunday school, assisted by the church choir, are preparing a sacred concert to be given Sunday evening at the church. The collection to be taken during the evening will be used for purchasing singing books for the Sunday school.

The markets of The Dalles are well supplied with everything in the line of game and vegetables. The latter are always abundant, and the former generally so. In looking through the markets today we noticed venison, wild geese and ducks, rabbits, grouse and pheasants; and along with them salmon, trout and sturgeon. Chickens and turkeys, dressed and undressed, are abundant and cheap; but the recent cold snap and approaching Thanksgiving have furnished the hens a cause for striking and "eggs has riz," bringing thirty cents per dozen.

The question has been asked us several times, "Why not prospect for coal right here in the city, instead of on Chenoweth creek?" The reason Chenoweth creek is preferred is that there the coal measures lie perfectly flat, showing the country has not been disturbed. Here the rocks show evidence of an upheaval, the measures are broken, and injected with basaltic dykes. Whatever is found on Chenoweth creek would be permanent, and no reliance could be placed on results found here, where the coal veins have been broken up and turned in all directions.

Important Interests at Stake.

The suit in equity of the Oregon Lumber Co. against Levy and Burns Jones was argued this afternoon and submitted, Huntington & Wilson for plaintiff, J. H. Cradelauch for defendant. The case grew out of the purchase by the Jones boys of a piece of swamp land at Viento, on which the plaintiff had his planer, lumber yard, etc. Levi Jones bought the land of the state, and subsequently sold the undivided half interest in it to his brother, Burns Jones. They then commenced an action in ejectment against the Oregon Lumber Co., which filed a cross bill, setting up that Burns Jones was acting as its agent in the purchase, and that it furnished the money to pay for the lands. It then asks that Burns Jones be declared its trustee, and that it be declared the owner in co-tenancy with Levi Jones. The evidence was taken before Referee Hill during vacation.

The suit involves some valuable interests, as the Oregon Lumber Co. use the grounds for landing the products of their mills on the Washington side, and cannot well get along without them.

A Musical Treat.

We are pleased to announce to the theater-going people of The Dalles, the appearance of the Spanish Students' Concert Company at the Vogt on Friday night, Nov. 27th. First of all, let it be understood that this company is not the Spanish Students that played here some time since, but it is the original combination, headed by that acknowledged musical artist, H. A. Weber of Portland. Mr. Weber is a graduate of one of the finest musical colleges in the United States, and with him are associated the very best talent obtainable, notably among them being Miss Addie Favart, the skirt-dancer that has a string of fine press notices, that would take a man a day to read thoroughly. The program will consist of classical selections, both vocal and instrumental, and those old favorites, "William Tell," "Tanhauser" and "Cavaleria Rusticana" will be rendered by the Students in a manner that only they can do.

This company cannot come here and depend on the feelings of the public relative to patronizing them, but they must have a guarantee of a certain amount. A paper has been prepared for this purpose and is receiving many signatures. It has been left at the Snipes-Kinersly drug store, where all who wish to receive a choice seat may add their name to the roll.

Manager Weber being a prominent Elk, seats will be reserved for members or that order in a body.

THE EAST END.

Everybody Busy, but Items Are Not Abundant.

Ye reporter this morning took in the East End of the town, casting the light of his countenance, alike on the Republicans that are, and others that were. He did not expect to find much when he started out and verily, he was not disappointed.

At the Wasco warehouse we inquired concerning the wool market. A buyer, Mr. Green, said, "Wool is off." Mr. Lord said, "Wool is better," then each looked at the other with a cold, glassy stare, that finally thawed into a sort of armed-neutrality smile. We have concluded from this that wool is—wool. Prices have ranged from 6 to 8 1/2 cents, and a few sales have been made as high as 8 1/2.

Judge Filloon gave us a glad welcome. He was sitting by the stove with his chair tilted back, his heels on the stove and his hands, resting side by side between his extended limbs. He looked a picture of contentment, and told us all about the last couple he married from Hood River, something he should have done a week ago, and which we cannot print now because it is a back number. At Moody's warehouse, Mr. Will Moody in response to the inquiry as to how the coal prospect was progressing, said, "Oh! We have got a long well," and that settled that proposition. It was an awful pun, but on account of his family and the prospect of a hard winter we spared his life.

Mr. Joe Worsley was putting the finishing touches to a big box of groceries he was packing, and told us there was no news, only business was good and he had more work than he could well attend to, and his bland and childlike smile gave force to his assertion. Mr. Van Duyn made almost a similar report and was hustling furniture in such a way as to endanger the limbs of ye scribe, who glanced in and passed on. The sound of the blacksmith's hammers was prevalent, all being busy, and the feed yards were all crowded. It's a busy place up in the East End, and no one can get an idea of the vast amount of business done in The Dalles without visiting it.

FOWLER-WAFFLE.

Our "Harry" Married at Pendleton Wednesday.

The Pendleton East Oregonian has the following account of the marriage of our fellow townsman, "Harry" Fowler, and Miss Ida Lillian Waffle, of Pendleton. Harry has about 4,000 friends in this city, who individually and collectively extend their congratulations and best wishes to himself and bride. We had always hoped that some one of our beautiful Dalles girls would get her lariat around Harry's neck and put the brand matrimonial on him, but such is not to be. The East Oregonian says:

"Wednesday evening, there occurred a wedding in Pendleton which will call for and bring forth expressions of sincerest well wishes from hosts of friends both parties to the affair. Mr. William Henry Fowler and Miss Ida Lillian Waffle were united in marriage by the Rev. Perry Chandler, pastor of the Thompson street M. E. church. The wedding occurred at the home of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Waffle, on Lewis street in East Pendleton. There were present only the family of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Waffle, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Waffle, Eldred Waffle, and Mrs. W. D. Fletcher, who rendered a wedding march as the couple came forth and stood beneath the marriage bell, Mr. Edwin Mays of Portland, nephew of Mr. Fowler, who was best man, and Miss Effie Jean Frazier, bridesmaid.

Chrysanthemums and potted plants were used tastefully in decorating the rooms of the Waffle residence, the chrysanthemums being formed into a marriage bell, the potted plants making a bank in the bay window.

The ceremony was performed in the evening just prior to the departure of the train for Portland, which bore Mr. and Mrs. Fowler to their new home. Mr. Fowler has been for years a trusted employe of the O. R. & N. Company, having been regularly on the passenger run between Pendleton and Portland, which position he now holds. Miss Waffle was one of the most popular and highly esteemed young ladies in Pendleton. Both possess in a high degree the good opinion of the people of this city and carry with them to Portland kindly wishes for happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will be at home to friends at the Imperial hotel, Portland, from the time of their arrival there this morning. They will make their home for the winter at that hostelry.

Buried This Afternoon.

The funeral of the late Ray W. Crandall took place from the family residence this afternoon, Rev. J. H. Wood conducting the services. Mr. Crandall had requested certain of his friends to act as pall bearers at his funeral, and in compliance with his request, Robert Mays, John Cates, George Liebe, John Marden, E. P. Fitzgerald and R. E. Hood filled that position today. A large concourse of sorrowing friends followed the remains to the City cemetery, where the body was laid by that of his wife, who preceded him but a short time.
