Of Interest to Sheepmen.

Among the dispatches this morning is the one printed below, which we put on our local page as being of peculiar interest to our sheepmen:

The agricultural department of the university of California is raising a new kind of sheep. The superintendent of the experiment station at Paso Robles has succeeded in breeding a variety of sheep that will mean much to the wool and meat markets. It is the result of the cross-breeding of the Persian the same line, though not so complete, cures my cough, and it is the best seller were conducted by George Washington with marked advantage.

FOUND IN THE PEAT BEDS. Bemains of Probleto, to Animals Discovered

in England. From time to time the peat beds at Newbury have yielded abundant remains of prehistoric animals which in primeval ages roamed along the Mennet valley, when the play. tions obtaining in western Euro altogether different from those which now prevail-before, in fact, the present insular position was brought about. In these peat beds, according to a London dispatch, have been found the remains of the colossal mammoth, including the portion of a tusk which, when entire, must have been ten to twelve feet in length, together with the bones, teeth or horns of other animals which have utterly disappeared from the abee of the earth. The drainage works which are now being carried on in the toof Newbury have brought to ligate mostly in a high state of preservation, numerous bones, skulls, and other fes sil portions of unimals which lived on subsequently to the disappearance of the post-glacial mammads, such as the wolf, bear, wild boar, red deer the goat, dog, fox, horse. Various o jectof flint, characterising the an stone, have also been found in the lower layers of the peat, from which it is evident that the prehistoric inhat ants of the river valley poster dexterity in the fabrication of primitive weapons and tools, once of the "knives" being bountifully a seed and presenting on edge almost as and as a runtr. Several emisles of a later epoch have been also mot with, forming a curious melange, such as bronce buckles of many kinds, implements of bone. Roman pottery, a few crim, a variety of keys. In the upper or made earth of the cuttings in that past of the town fought over by cavalier and roundhead many relies of the period have been found, including portions of swords, stirrup-irons, spurs, bridlebits, horseshoes and many other things of this date.

A Gigantic Undertaking.

Undismayed by their experience in the Suez and Panama enterprises, the French are undertesting to build another great canal. They have now determined to connect the Bay of Bis cay with the Mediterranean by a canal over 400 miles long, from 144 to 215 feet wide and from 23 to 24 feet deep, and with widened passing places every eight miles. There will be twenty-two locks, each 650 feet in length and 80 feet in width. The cost is calculated at $100,000,000. It is, however, safe to say that it will be much more. It is claimed by its promoters that besides greatly expediting commerce, this waterway will be vast political significance. If it could only be kept open in war, Gibraltar, the strongest fort in the world, would be rendered useless, and France, instead of England, would hold the "Key to the Mediterranean."
