TIME TO INTERFERE.

The United States has been more than fair to Spain in the matter of Cuba. It has been almost cowardly in the extent of its inactivity. With Spain's fight with its rebellious subjects we have but little to do, and not much that we can give except sympathy. With the enforcing of the neutrality laws and the policing of the coast, not only of Florida, but of Cuba, we have done all that one friendly government may do for another towards keeping its citizens from in any manner asking or giving comfort to those at war with that other government.

How have our actions been received? and in what spirit have they been met? Let the records of Moro castle answer, and the American citizens confined in Spanish dungeons speak! Friendship ceases to be a virtue under such circumstances, and if the butcher, Weyler, and the high-toned assassins, who run the affairs of Spain are not amenable to kind treatment, it becomes necessary to adopt some other system. Spain never did understand any law but the law of force, or admit any rights except those backed by the ability to enforce them. We have thrown grass at her long enough, and it is high time to use a few rocks. It is time to turn the management of American affairs in Cuba over to some of our naval officers. They, better than any others, know how to deal with the matter of protecting United States citizens.

A notice to produce such American citizens as now suffer in Spanish prisons, delivered by the commander of a war vessel, has the elements in it, or behind it, that compel prompt, if not gracious, response. If this is a government capable of protecting its citizens, it is time to convince them of the fact by doing it. It is time to protect our own people instead of spending our money to protect Spain. If we cannot do this our citizens in foreign lands should return to their homes here, where they may be safe under the protecting care of our justice courts, or renounce their allegiance and become citizens of the Transvaal. President Kruger knows how to protect his people.

CLEVELAND IN HISTORY.

It is difficult to even guess what position will be given Grover Cleveland in the history of the country. No person has ever filled the presidential office about whom public opinion has changed so much. At the close of his first administration he was the idol of the Democratic party, and though defeated for reelection, he had so firm a hold on the party and was so esteemed by it, that the nomination was given him for the third time. Not only this, but a large number of Republicans had become admirers of the man, and showed their preferences at the ballot box in a way that gave him states that before that time were overwhelmingly Republican. But immediately on his taking his seat the second time, his course separated him from his party and drew him towards the Republican party so strongly that at this date his friends are nearly all among the ranks of the latter party. No president ever went out of office so little regretted by his followers as will Cleveland, and none so highly esteemed by his political enemies.

Eight years have made wonderful changes in the public sentiment towards Cleveland, such changes that he would be bold indeed who would say what the future may do for him. Eight years ago no Republican newspaper had a kind word for him; now he is spoken of as a true and loyal patriot. Eight years ago the Oregonian usually spoke of him as a "Democratic hind quarter of beef;" today it does him reverence as the bulwark of our financial honor.

When he becomes ex-president and his biography is to be written, he may well exclaim, "Save me from my friends!" and ask that his history be written by his political enemies.

Now that the election is over, the prize-fighters and their doings are again filling the big dailies. We suggest that their managers go down to Cuba and take a few lessons in the art of warfare. That is the only place on earth where both sides are invariably winners.

THE NOTED "SI PERKINS" SOLO ORCHESTRA

Of twelve skilled musicians, is the strongest ever presented to the public by a traveling company. One of the most necessary features for a first-class performance is the best of music rendered in an artistic manner. Especially is this so in SI PERKINS, running over with songs, dances and catchy music, where a good orchestra is absolutely necessary.
