Rev. G. W. Barnhart came down from Arlington this morning, returning this afternoon.

Mr. Cox and family went to Arlington last night. They will engage in farming near that place.

Mr. Edward Synnott, after a two days visit here, returned to his home in Wasco last night.

Wm. Tate and Arthur K. Fuller of Sherman county were in the city today, Mr. Fuller making final proof on his land.

Clever Katle Putnam.

Bright, clever Katie Putnam and her excellent company, who are now delighting large audiences at the Marquam Grand, Portland, will pay us a visit Wednesday, Dec. 16. And what a feast of comedy our pleasure-bent audience may expect. Brisk, bright comedy runs through all of Miss Putnam's plays and the tired out nervous system to a healthy the delightful production, "Love Finds vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine a Way," that she will present here, is said to be brim full of the choicest of to the nerve centres in the stomach, dramatic good things.

Likely to De Purchased. It is suggested that the Roman Catholies of Christendom shall subscribe $1,-000,050,000 to buy flome and a near-by scaport for the pope, says Ecoper's Weekly. The belief is expressed that the Italian government might sell the property without serious detriment to its political integrity and that the money could be used to great advantage in relieving Italy of part of the burden of her public debt. It is not proposed to turn over the principal to the venders, but to place it in trust and to pay its annual proceeds into the Italian treasury as long as the pope remains undisthere are those who think the money might be raised and that King Humbert's government would appreciate the advantages of such a bargain. But would Rome be the best purchase the pope could make with the money' Chicago would take him vastly cheaper and give him port privileges on Lake Michigan, but she could not engage to make him monarch of an American towr ship at any price. But there is Con stantinople, an excellent city, where popes have lived before, full of readymade churches built by Christians and nearly ripe now for reconsecration. Constantinople seems liable to come into the market any day. If the pope could buy it of the sultan that would be a deal worth subscribing to and worth tifully and generously aided in the circulation and ennoblement of neologisms foreign born, the apt yet unstudied offerings of the untutored workman have held their own in literature as well as in everyday speech, while many labored results of learned mind workers and would-be mind masters of words have lived but long enough to be named.

The word "boss," which came into common use during the regime of Wil-Ham M. Tweed, is a Dutch bans-master. In the language to which it belongs it is much used in composition. Thus, timmerman baas is a master carpenter, and a preacher is in Dutch merely a church boss.

Only a few years ago attention began to be called to the prevalence of the various forms of vice in what was then considered the choicest residential part of the city. A newspaper reporter named the region the "Tenderloin district," and as such it is destined to be known for a long time to come, while the name tenderloin will do duty singularly in other towns as they grow more like the city in their notable characteristics.

Porter is the name given in London more than a century ago to a very dark and heavy beer much fancied by porters and other outdoor workmen. The word and the thing came to New York in due time, and porter was soon in demand as a beverage among the wharfmen, truckmen and 'longshoremen engaged on the river fronts on the east and west sides of the city. One taverner in Burling slip became famous for the porter he sold and his place gradually gained the distinction of being the porter house of the town. In course of time he added all the facilities of a hotel to his "public" and increased its reputation by furnishing his customers a steak such as they could get nowhere else. They called it the "porterhouse steak," and by that name a particularly choice cut of the steak part of a steer is known everywhere,-Harper's Weekly.
