statement has been made public by the other pupils, is literally as follows:

"In Mr. Meador's class the pupils used geography cards, and Mr. Williams had the questions on the boards from the cards for examination. Mr. Meador asked Mr. Williams what about the cards they had not had, telling Mr. Williams that there was one question that he had not had. Williams answered telling him that the cards had all been around the class, and he supposed that they had all had them. Meador says, 'I have not had the card, nor I never said I had it.' Williams answered, saying the cards were all put back in the box, and he supposed that they had all had them, and if he didn't like it he could politely pass out. Meador answered, 'I can do that, too; there are no flies on me, and to show you that I am all right, you can pass out with me,' and then went out and shut the decay of the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear in the above named defend.

An Old Dalles Story.

From the editor's drawer of Harper's Magazine for July, 1861, we resurrect a story told as happening here, and give town of Dalles, on the Columbia river, being the scene:

"A soldier of the garrison near The Dalles was under examination before the village justice, Squire Moody. The soldier had employed as his lawyer Joshua Sparks, the attorney and councilor of Dalles City. Sparks is a character who is indebted to nature, and not to education, for his legal attainments. Endowed with the 'gift of the gab' and the most unblushing assurance, he makes quite a fluent speech, which contains much hard sense and more hard grammar. Such little peculiarities of pronunciation as amediately for immediately, appeariently for apparently, and the like, he considers do not affect the strength of his argument or the force of his facts.

"Another soldier, an Irishmam, was a "Another soldier, an Irishmam, was a administrator, and that the 5th day of January, witness, and had just testified that the accused had made certain observations of the County Judge as the time for hearing any objections to said account and settlement there of. All heirs creditors or other persons inter accused had made certain observations to him in the cook-nouse belonging to the company between the hours of a 'retreat and tattoo.' These observations tending to criminate the accused, the hours of the county of the company between the hours of a 'retreat and tattoo.' These observations tending to criminate the accused, the county of t Sparks prepared to crush the witness in a cross-examination as follows:

" 'Now, sir'-in a very stern and impressive manner-'remember that you are upon your oath, that you have sworn to tell the truth, the hull truth, and nothing but the truth. You have said, Sir, that the accused said so and so to you in the cook-house between the tantoon and the retreat. Now, describe to the court how the cook-house is situated with reference to the tantoon; is it to the right of it or to the left of it? and also which is the nearest to the cookhouse, the tantoon or the retreat?"
