THE BEAN AUTOMATIC SPRAY PUMP.

Is, unquestionably, the most successful and perfect working Spraying Device yet invented.

It is a universal testimony that more, as well as better, work can be accomplished with the Bean Spray Pump than with any other pump on the market.

With this pump one man can charge the receptacle and leave it to direct the spray just where it is wanted, and thus with sufficient hose pass from tree to tree. The solution is delivered in a fine mist or spray, penetrating every nook and corner, thus doing better and more effective work than is possible by any other method, and with no waste whatever of solution.

For further particulars see special circular or call upon or correspond with.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

Miss Griswold
At the Vogt opera house
Monday evening, January 25th.
The box sheet for Miss Griswold's recital is now ready at the Snipes-Kinersly bookstore.

All Elks are requested to be at their hall tonight, as there will be business of importance.

Quite a number of Elks of the local lodge will visit Heppner next Wednesday in instituting a lodge of the order there.

The entertainment, which will be given at the opera house Monday evening, will be assisted by some of our best home talent.

The charity ball, given by the Elks last night, proved a decided success; as did A. M. Williams & Co.'s special twenty per cent discount sale of men's finishing goods. Sales will continue all Feb. 1st.

Rev. J. H. Wood received word today of the serious illness of his mother, and will leave on the morning train for Unity Park. His pulpit will be filled by Rev. Hetzler, of the American Bible society, tomorrow.

Joseph McCabe of Five-Mile, was examined as to his sanity by Dr. Hollister and Justice Filloon yesterday, and was declared insane. He is subject to epileptic fits, and recently has begun dancing in his moods.

Mr. Wingfield's team ran away today, starting from in front of The Dalles Commission Co.'s store, and running on Washington street. In about a week the tongue of the wagon dropped and was broken. No further damage was done.

If the senate recognizes the Benson issue, and a senator is elected by them, will undoubtedly be seated. Whether laws passed by the session would hold water, is a doubtful question, but election of senator would stand, as the senate would not go behind the senate.

Miss Hoffman, national secretary of W. C. T. U., will speak in the Dalles on the 7th of February. Francesillard says of her, "we are sending our best to you. She is the Thomas H. Stanton of the temperance cause. She will strengthen and build up every righteous cause, and no one will have a word to say against her."

Miss J. Montague Griswold, assisted by home talent, at the Vogt opera house Monday night, Jan. 25. The Oregonian says: "The audience was favored with recitations by Miss Griswold, one of which was an imitation of the bobolink, in which she has gained a deserved reputation in the East and Europe. It is probable that the coast has not been visited by an artist of a versatile talent, and she was enthusiastically applauded."

Hon. F. N. Jones was the choice of the sheepmen of this district. He is peculiarly their representative. They, as well as he, are more interested in getting the Cascade reservation open to the pasturage of sheep than in the election of a United States senator. How long will he stand in his own light by refusing to assist in organizing the house? How long will he throw down his fellow sheepmen by standing in with the Populists?

Program.

Following is the program for Miss Griswold's entertainment Monday evening:

Enthusiastic Audience.

A large and enthusiastic audience witnessed the Georgia University Graduates' performance at the Grand opera house yesterday evening, and all agreed that it was the best minstrel show ever seen in Montana. Encore followed encore with such rapidity that it was difficult to remember what the regular program was, and not until nearly midnight was the audience satisfied.

Every member of the company has several specialties and is a feature himself. Their voices are unusually fine, and the education possessed by every member lends polish to the entire performance which is appreciated.

Those who saw it wished for more, and will give the company a packed house on their return.—Great Falls, Mont. Tribune.

THE CHARITY BALL.

The Greatest Affair of the Kind Ever Given in The Dalles.

The charity ball given by the Elks last night was undoubtedly the most successful affair of the kind ever given in The Dalles.

The grand march commenced at about 9 o'clock, forty-one couples participating, and as they moved around in the graceful figures of the march, we could hardly believe that all the female loveliness there gathered belonged to The Dalles. The gowns were beautiful, the wearers more so, the music magnificent. What more would you want? The floor, though not a good one for dancing, was in excellent condition, and it was kept filled with the happiest crowd of dancers ever gathered in The Dalles. Each of the ladies was handsomer than the others always excepting, of course, the one, who is always prettiest to that gentleman who admires her, and consequently we have our own opinion as to who was the "belle of the ball," but we are not going to express it, not for the world.

At 11 o'clock, as is the custom of the Elks, the memory of the absent brethren was recalled, and as this ceremony was completed by circling around the hall with hands clasped, at the same time singing "Auld Lang Syne," the hall rang again with the vigorous applause.

The hall was beautifully decorated. The front of the stage was covered with ferns and plants, while just to the left of the center of it the big Elk stood, his majestic form gracefully posed and head drawn back as though he had been startled by suddenly coming on to a dance of dryads. His big horns supported four incandescent lamps, shaded with the Elks colors, the royal purple. Just in front of him was a cute little fawn, that gazed in open-eyed wonder on the brilliant scene.

Dancing was kept up until about 1 o'clock, and everybody went home delighted with their evening's pleasure.

The committees have not gotten together to report yet, but a close estimate puts the receipts at $200 and expenses at $70, leaving $130 for sweet charity.

MR. GRATKE'S STATEMENT.

Good Sense, and that, Too, Regardless of Politics.

Shortly after the house had organized yesterday a reporter of the Statesman in congratulating Representative Gratke upon the position he had taken in assisting in the organization of the house, saw an opportunity for a good interview.

"Mr. Gratke," said the reporter, "you are accused by the Bourne faction of assisting in the organization of a Republican house. How will your action be looked upon by your Democratic constituency?"

"If you will amend the accusation by striking out the word 'Republican,' I will plead guilty. I am a member of the 'house of representatives,' and was elected to it in a county that went for McKinley and Hobart by 714 majority. My majority was 300. This will prove to you conclusively that I received some votes that were not cast by Democrats. I was nominated by the county Democratic convention, and so far as their political interests can be served on the broad basis of Democratic principles I am with the party at all times, but on all measures affecting the efficient and economical administration of government I am here as a business man and not as a machine politician. I was out with the obstructionists five days. They promised me that they had a sufficient number of members to organize the house and pass such remedial legislation as our party platform called for. During those five days an opportunity for organization came, and it was not embraced. My suspicions were aroused, and I inquired why the thirty-one obstructionists did not organize. They said they were not ready. I asked them when they would be, and the reply was they did not know. I was deceived; and further inquiry revealed to me the fact that the object of the hold-up was to obstruct business in the house and prevent the election of a United States senator by a dominant party in the legislature. I was not sent by my people to the legislature for that purpose. I was sent here to assist in the enactment of such legislation as will benefit the people of Clatsop county and the taxpayers of the state generally. Now I would like to know how that could be done if I stayed out and prevented organization? It must be done by law, and there is no way to enact law except by first organizing both houses. When a candidate accepts a nomination I take it that he says to the people, 'If elected I will take my seat.' If I had told the people on the stump that I would not take my seat, my name would have been Dennis, and the other fellow would be here in my place. It is my firm belief and conviction the fight over organization passed the partisan stage when the thirty-one obstructionists refused to go in and organize. I feel that way about anything in business or politics. I forge ahead. Many of my constituents have approved my course by letter and telegraph. If I am wrong I am content to be snowed under, if it becomes my misfortune to run for office. This much I will say for the rank and file of the Populist party: They are honest and patriotic, but I am afraid they have entered into an unholy alliance with H. W. Scott & Co. to satisfy personal hate and political ambition, which may be their undoing. As to the Democrats—of course they are always right."

A Great Hold-Up.

A gentleman who has just returned from Salem called on us this morning, and requests us to say that at that point is "the greatest hold-up in the Northwest. That, to use his language, 'Salem is holding up the state buildings, the legislature is holding up the people, the highwaymen are holding up its residents, the hotels are holding up the visitors, and the bicyclists have the right of way on the sidewalks; but yet there are some good people in Salem.'"
