THE BEAN AUTOMATIC SPRAY PUMP.

Is, unquestionably, the most successful and perfect working Spraying Device yet invented.

It is a universal testimony that more, as well as better, work can be accomplished with the Bean Spray Pump than with any other pump on the market.

With this pump one man can charge the receptacle and leave it to direct the spray just where it is wanted, and thus with efficient hose pass from tree to tree. The solution is delivered in a fine mist or spray, penetrating every nook and corner, thus doing better and more effective work than is possible by any other method, and with no waste whatever of solution.

For further particulars see special circular or call upon or correspond with.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Random Observations and Local Events of Lesser Magnitude.

Tonight, Miss Griswold At the Vogt opera house

Just received at A. M. Williams & Co's the newest shapes in ladies' collars and cuffs.

There will be a special meeting of the city council tonight, for the purpose of levying a tax.

Several carloads of cattle and sheep were shipped to Portland and Tacoma yesterday, and another large lot followed them today.

Ward, Kerns & Robertson have the largest stock of timothy, wheat and wild hay kept in the city, for sale. Call and see it. jan25 2w

Mr. S. L. Brooks telegraphs up from Portland today to look out for water pipes tonight, the indications being that the mercury will drop down to zero before morning.

Miss J. Montague Griswold will recite at the Vogt opera house this (Monday) evening. She will be ably assisted by her own talent. Box sheet now open at Snipes-Kinersly drugstore.

Miss Griswold, who will recite at the opera house this (Monday) evening, was a young lady of the Shakesperian Dramatic Club in Paris, France. Miss Griswold is an artiste in dramatic art, and our citizens should avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing the recitation.

An old gentleman named Evans, a resident of Grant county, in crossing the street in the East End this morning, slipped and fell, dislocating his right shoulder. Dr. Hollister repaired damage, and the sufferer is now at Mrs. Barr's. He was on his way from Grant county to the valley to make a visit.

Hon. Lydell Baker, one of Oregon's most brilliant young men, will deliver a lecture tomorrow evening at the Congregational church, on the subject, "The True versus the False in the Monroe doctrine." Mr. Baker will handle the subject in a masterly manner, and should be greeted with a large audience.

We have been in the newspaper business in this county nearly ten years, and consequently from the very nature of the circumstances, we represent a multitude of sins. Our grand order, the Elks, having turned their attention to charity, our bashfulness and youthful modesty prevents our drawing the conclusion naturally deducible from the premises.

The committee from the Elks has balanced accounts and find that the receipts were $204 and expenses $51.15, leaving a balance of 157.85 for charity. The committee requests us to state that representatively the Elks will be at the city recorder's office Thursday, and the representatives of the charitable societies are requested to meet him on that day. Worthy persons will be cared for.

According to the weather bureau, there are indications of quite a continued spell of cold weather. The bulletins yesterday morning stated that a cold wave had swept down onto Montana, and that the edges would slop over on this side. The cold will not be so intense as in November, but conditions are good for its lasting much longer. Of course there is always here that unknown quantity, the chinook wind, that so often upsets all forecasts and makes the wisdom of the weather clerk of doubtful use.

Mr. T. A. Hudson, general agent, and Mr. E. F. Sharp, surveyor, for the Eastern Oregon Land Company, started yesterday on an extended trip into the interior in the interest of the company which they represent. This company owns the land originally granted to the Dalles Military Road Co., and embraces about six hundred thousand acres extending from The Dalles to the Snake river, opposite old Fort Boise. The grazing lands are being rented extensively by sheep men and the agricultural land to farmers.

Refuse to Recognize It.

A special to THE CHRONICLE from Salem this afternoon says: "The senate by a vote of fourteen to fourteen today refused to recognize the Benson house. Two senators are absent, both of whom are supposed to be in favor of recognition."

Made Him an Elk.

Saturday night the Elks lodge initiated the representative from Crook county, Mr. Misener, into the mysteries of Elkhood. He came up on the night train, and was met at the Umatilla house by an impromptu band, from the lodge, armed with tin horns, mouth organs, squawkers and other modern musical instruments, and was escorted to the lodge room. What was done to him there, of course we do not know, but he told us confidentially yesterday morning that "things down at Salem were awfully quiet." He is now the baby, Dr. Sutherland's nose being out of joint, and a big, healthy baby he is too.

HON. F. N. JONES' LETTER.

Commissioner Blowers Explains Why It Was Written.

HOOD RIVER, Jan. 23, 1897.

EDITOR CHRONICLE: "In reply to communications from friends at The Dalles, will you please publish this:

"I am a little surprised that Mr. Jones should deny having promised to vote for J. H. Mitchell for senator, yet his saying to M. Nolan or anyone else that all those parties who signed that article were d--d liars does not make it so, nor does it constitute a denial. What we want is for Jones to put himself on record over his own signature, denying that he made any such promise, then we will satisfy people who is telling the truth. This Mr. Jones will never do. He knows he made the promises just as we state it, and he knows we can and will prove it if called upon to do so. Now to explain how the promises came to be made.

"I was working at all times for the whole Republican ticket (as I have done all my life). In doing so I met a great many Republicans who said they were not going to vote for Jones. Some said he was an Englishman and not friendly to Senator Mitchell, and much more in that line. In fact it seemed that Jones' opponent from Wasco had been around among the voters and promised to vote for Mitchell if elected, and quite a number were inclined to bait. Right at this time Mr. Jones and other candidates visited Hood River. He (Jones) asked me how things were looking. I told him exactly as above stated, and that I was a little afraid for him. He voluntarily replied: 'I don't see how the people got such an idea into their heads. Moore and I have always been very friendly to Mitchell and never thought of voting for anyone else.' There was quite a crowd standing near, among them a few who had expressed themselves as opposed to Jones. I called to them, introduced them to Jones and said them: 'You're mistaken about Mr. Jones, he is as good a Mitchell man as you are.' He then reiterated statements he had made to me and added: 'Don't be uneasy about that, but rest assured that if I am elected I will vote for Mitchell.' After he left for The Dalles, there was some dissension over the matter, some saying that he did not appear sincere when talking to them and they did not believe he meant it and they were not going to vote for him, etc. Then someone went to The Dalles and informed Jones that all was not fair for him down here, when Jones wrote me a letter. This accounts for his having written the letter after having made verbal promises.

"I took that letter to the polls, and with it and the several witnesses who had heard the promises, secured a good many votes for Mr. Jones. I did this with the very best of feeling, believing that I was helping him all the time, never dreaming for one moment that I would ever have any trouble for doing my best to help elect him. But when he went to Salem, and refused to go into the house, my friends here have been making it somewhat tropical for me, some going so far as to say I knew he was not a Mitchell man at the time I worked so hard to elect him. Taking this on one side and the denial of Jones and his friends on the other, I have come to the conclusion that nothing short of this explanation and the publication of his letter to me would ever set the matter right. While I am very sorry to be compelled to do this, I feel forced by Mr. Jones and his friends to do so. I send you the original letter because I am informed that Jones says he never wrote me a letter, but that I must have gotten hold of one he wrote to Dr. Leavens and now claim it belonged to me.

"You are at liberty to permit anyone to read it who doubts its authenticity, but please be sure and return it to me. I want it not for its intrinsic value, but as a gentle reminder in the future of the fallacy and uncertainty of some things here below.

"A. S. BLOWERS."

The following is Mr. Jones' letter, written on a sheet of paper with the Umatilla House heading:

THE DALLES, May 30, 1896.

DEAR SIR:—A friend of mine who ought to be well posted, came up on the train last night and said to me, "Jones, things look a little yellow for you fellows at Hood River." I couldn't get at the exact cause of his remarks. I had supposed when I left your town that events were shaping themselves in our favor, and cannot believe them different now, as I know our friends there can, and will get into the harness cheerfully and earnestly in our behalf, and make a special effort for the legislative ticket, now that they know how Mr. Moore and myself stand on the Mitchell question. Yours Very Truly, F. N. JONES.

A REFORMATORY NEEDED

Where Such Girls as Beulah Gilgard Can Be Cared For.

Beulah Gilgard, a 16-year-old ward of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, is now confined in the Magdalen Home, where she will remain till she repents of her misdoings. The girl was sent to the society from Wasco county several months ago. She has given Superintendent Gardner more or less trouble ever since, but did not get into any serious trouble until a few days ago, when she secured $24 worth of goods from a prominent dry goods firm by forging the name of a patron of the store to an order.

The girl, who has been working in a family on East Twenty-first street, went to the store early in the week and said she was Ella Jones, a domestic in the family of the lady whose name was signed to the order. The order was sent to the office, where it was marked "O. K." and the girl was given a skirt, a suit and a clock, the whole bill being valued at $24. When the order was afterward sent to the signer for collection, the lady knew nothing whatever about it. Ex-Chief of Police Hunt was sent out to investigate the matter. He learned from Superintendent Gardner that Ella Jones, who had also been a ward of his, was in Eastern Washington at the time the order was presented. The same night it was reported to Mr. Gardner that the Gilgard girl had brought home a lot of new goods, which she claimed had been given her. He at once went to the house where she worked, and, after a little talk with her, made her confess that she had forged the order and obtained the goods. The goods were returned to the store the same night, and, after lecturing the girl on the certainty of detection in such dishonesty, Mr. Gardner took her to the city jail, where she was kept for two days.

The girl's conduct had demonstrated that she could not be controlled by the society any longer, and, their being no reform school for girls in the state, Mr. Gardner was obliged to send her to the Magdalen Home.

The lack of a girls' reformatory very frequently works a severe hardship on the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, which often is forced to keep girls that are really too vicious for such an institution, or to send them to the Magdalen Home, where they are thrown in with girls whose society is not helpful to them. Mr. Gardner has brought this matter to the attention of the authorities several times, but no action has ever been taken.—Oregonian.

Georgia University Graduates' Minstre Stars.

"Always get the best," quoth Lord Bacon and as near as we can learn he practiced what he preached. Georgia University Graduates have always followed in the footsteps of that renowned personage, as far as the organization of their minstrel companies is concerned, for they have, without doubt, always had the best, and strictly the best of artists with their various amusement enterprises; hence their wondrous success, of which all the world has heard. There is not a colored minstrel of any note but what has traveled under this banner, and that point alone is proof positive that the entertainments have always been the best; but that is known by everyone, and so there is hardly anything that can be said in praise of this great company beyond that it is stronger and better than ever. This splendid company will appear at the Vogt Tuesday night. Get your seats reserved at the Snipes-Kinersly drugstore.
