Is it "overwork" that has flled this country with nervous dyspeptics?—that takes the flesh off their bones...

The remedy is an artificially digested food such as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. Instead of irritating the already inflamed stomach the Cordial gives it a chance to rest by nourishing the system...

LAXOL is the best medicine for children. Doctors recommend it in place of Castor Oil.

Price of a Leg.

It cost the city of Spokane $10,500 in a warrant drawn on the general fund to settle with Belle Smith for the injury that she received on account of negligence of city officials.

She sued for $25,000 damages and was awarded judgment for $10,500. The city appealed the case to the supreme court, which sustained the judgment of the superior court.

Since the accident the plaintiff has been employed in the office of the Freeman's Labor Journal. She is recognized by all who her as an estimable lady, and she was the recipient of many congratulations last Tuesday when it became known that she had received her warrants for the full amount of her judgment against the city.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood.

BALDNESS A DISEASE.

A French Doctor Says It May Be Prevented.

The Contagion Scattered by Barbers on Whose Implements the Microbes Find Lodgment.

Now the real cause of baldness has been discovered, and a French dermatologist, Dr. Labourand, suggests a remedy. By the use of this remedy, he says, baldness can be prevented, and in the next generation it may be unknown.

Can the awful consequence of such a discovery be imagined? Can people of this generation contemplate such a social condition as a total lack of baldness? What will the ballet girls do without that inspiring row of shining tresses just beyond the footlight?

It has been known for some time among medical men that baldness is a disease. It has even been supposed to be due to a specific microbe. In fact, such an extraordinary amount of evidence in favor of the theory has been accumulated that the idea is now generally accepted.

According to Labourand the typical diseased hair is found at the edge of a constantly enlarging bald spot. It is the stump of what was once a long hair. It is shaped like an interrogation point; it grows less in diameter toward the root, and has lost its color, being either gray or white.

In the good hair this bulb or utricle is full and closed, and contains in its center compact clusters of microbes, a culture of the smallest bacillus known. As the microbe matures it may become one one-hundredth of an inch in width, is bent or slightly curved in shape, like a comma, blunt at the ends and slightly swollen in the center.

Investigation shows that by the time the hair is dead and the root and sebaceous glands useless the microbe which produced this effect is gone. Thus remedies applied to the bald spot in the hope of making hair grow again are vain.

However, the progress of baldness can be impeded. This is accomplished by disinfection of the skin at the edge and in the neighborhood of the patch by means of an effectual, microbe-destroying tonic.

THE NAME OF "MURPHY."

An Irish Clergyman Repudiates It in Favor of the "O'Morchoe."

England has done many wrongs to Ireland, but one of the worst of them has only just come to light. It seems, says London Truth, that we have stolen from the Irish the ancient name of O'Morchoe and substituted for it a base English counterfeit in the shape of "Murphy."

Mr. Fabre claimed that after 16 years of cultivation he secured a variety of wheat from a common grass, the "Aegilops Ovaria," which grows abundantly all over the south of Europe.
