Yesterday the city recorder had two men before him, charged with being drunk and disorderly. They were fined $10 each, and are doing some much-needed work for the city.

Joe. A. Wilson and W. A. Langille on Wednesday measured the height of water in the Columbia, and found it to be 50 feet and 4-10th below the high water mark of the flood of '94. And the present stage of water is not very low, Glacier.

The vote upon the question of bonding the district was voted upon this afternoon, but the result was not known at the hour of going to press. From conversation with voters, we judge there is no doubt but that the bonding proposition will carry.

This morning a d. and d. was before the city recorder. It seems that a day or so ago the same man was upon a similar charge and let go with a light fine. Last night when arrested he threatened to whip the officer, but as he did not do it, the recorder very properly took his action into consideration in fixing the fine, and gave him $15.

M. A. Moody came down from The Dalles Saturday and was met here by F. W. Leadbetter, of the Oregonian, Thos. Balfour of Lyle and W. A. Langille, and the party started for Cloud Cap Inn. They made the trip on snow shoes from Hood river. The party returned from the mountain on Monday and reported a very enjoyable trip.—Glacier.

A lodge of the Rebekah degree, I. O. O. F., was organized at Dufur last night, Dr. O. D. Doane, deputy district grand master, officiating. The lodge takes the name of "Star, No. 24," and has the following officers: Noble Grand, Mrs. Cynthia Heisler; Vice Grand, Mrs. Arabelle H. Slusher; secretary, Mrs. Edith Peabody; financial secretary, Mrs. Lois Balch; treasurer Miss Anna Dufur. The lodge meets Wednesday evening of each week.

Some time ago the writer of this article was requested to deliver a lecture in the Congregational church upon the subject of "The Hatching of the Sage Hen." He immediately began the search for some sage-hen eggs warranted to hatch, and has been incubating at odd moments ever since. He will come off the nest next Tuesday night at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock, bringing his brood with him, and if you are there you will hear him either cackle or cluck, he isn't sure which; but he wisely reserves the right to retain possession of the spoiled eggs, if any, until the audience has dispersed.

Steamer Dalles City Again Ready for Business.

After several weeks on the ways, the Dalles City is again in the water. The steamer has been thoroughly overhauled from stem to stern, and goes into service again in much better shape than she was in at the time she was sunk, during the freeze-up last winter. It will require several days yet to complete her equipment, but she will probably be on the route next week. As soon as she is ready for service, the Regulator will be laid up for a few days to undergo some necessary repairs, on completion of which both boats will be operated on a daily schedule. Captain William Johnstone, a very popular man with the traveling public, as well as a thorough steamboatman, will resume command of the Dalles City, and the Regulator will continue in command of her present master, Captain Waud, who has the honor of being the first man to bring a steamboat from The Dalles to Portland via the locks.—Oregonian.

He Had a Pull.

This wasn't ground-dog day, but Billy Hoering had one on exhibition at the Umatilla house at noon, just the same. It managed to crawl into a pile of wood on the sidewalk, and quite a crowd soon gathered to superintend the getting of it out. There was a wire around its neck, and one party was trying to pull it out by this, while another had managed from the other side of the wood pile to grasp the unsuspecting chuck by the tail. Each party thought he could pull him out, but as both pulled at once they only succeeded in causing the unfortunate animal to protest at the top of his lungs. When the tail-end let go, the beast came out in a hurry, preferring the ills he knew not of to those he had, and was soon carried away to be kept in captivity.

The Second Night With Dickens.

The "Evenings With Dickens" entertainment closed last night, the program being a very good one, and there being less noise and confusion than on the preceding night. The quartette was fine, and most of the scenes were well put on. The attendance was not so large as on the first night, but the scenes were, if anything, better. There has been so much in the way of entertainments lately that the public is getting somewhat tired, and yet every night for the next week or more will have some kind of a show. The "Evenings With Dickens" required an immense amount of work, and certainly the exercise of unlimited patience on the part of Mr. Ernst.

Fined Fifty Dollars.

Ed. Marshal, a gentleman of leisure, was arrested night before last charged with vagrancy. Being taken before the city recorder, he demanded a jury trial, which was given him. He conducted his own case, and did it so successfully that the jury was out only a minute, when it returned with a verdict of guilty. Marshal was then fined $50 and costs, and given the privilege of working out his fine on the streets or leaving town never to return. Last night he concluded he would accept the latter alternative, and we are perhaps rid of him for some time.

Blue Oranges.

Mr. Joseph Knebel presented us a couple of oranges this morning grown by Capt. Anlauf, formerly of this city, in Ventura county, California. The golden apples of Hesperides were not handsome, and for size they were almost equal to the average muskmelon. Mr. Knebel tells us seventy of them filled a crate, a story we can readily believe when we gaze at the single-standard beauties.

THE "ADS" WERE MIXED.

Salvation Army Improved on the Posters of the Circus.

Last year one of the big circuses experienced considerable annoyance throughout central Indiana because of the warfare waged against it by the Salvation Army. The Salvationists met the circus men on their own ground and declared war by pasting tiny strips of paper, bearing scriptural texts and religious warnings, upon the circus billboard displays. Some of these Salvationist warnings were startling, and in conjunction with the show's lithographs produced effects never before dreamed of, always incongruous and striking and often apparently blasphemous.

The trouble began at Muncie. A member of the Salvation army at that point, seeing popular attention directed toward the circus billboards, decided that they furnished a medium by which to introduce his scriptural texts to the public. Within the next half hour these circus displays were completely metamorphosed. The picture of an aeronaut falling in a parachute from a balloon bore the inscription, "Sinner, you are bound for hell. Go the other way." The long neck of the giraffe was labeled, "The straight and narrow way is best." A small negro boy was pictured as gazing, horror stricken, into the open mouth of a hippopotamus, and across its cavernous expanse were the words, "Prepare to meet thy God." The snake charmer, wrapped in the folds of a monster serpent, was admonished to "Shun the deadly cup; it stingeth like an adder." An acrobat, turning a somersault in midair, apparently grasped in his hand the question, "Where will you spend your eternity?" and the tights of a woman trapeze performer were decorated with the statement that "God sees everything." The lion tamer, in a cage with several beasts, which apparently were about to make a meal of him, was admonished to "watch and pray," and the "human cannon ball" being fired from a huge cannon was confronted by the question, "Where are you going—to heaven or to hell?"

It is safe to say that no circus bills ever attracted more general attention or caused more comment.

Cecile Russell's Criticism of the Belgian Violinist.

Herr Walther's playing is remarkable in this instance; that from the moment he first draws the bow across his instrument, he holds his audience with him spell bound. One sees the intense expression of his playing never fails to carry his audience into realms of fancy and delight, which only ceases as some exquisite melody dies away into silence, to awaken an endless and deafening applause. His tone is unique in its purity and breadth, never losing even in the most intricate passages, that accuracy of intonation, so very rarely found to perfection.

Having heard an artist such as Herr Carl Walther one comes away filled with intense enthusiasm for the divine art, admiring almost as much as the noble gift of melody, the dignified bearing and romantic appearance of this Belgian violinist.

Herr Walther is certainly a player of the romantic school rather than the purely technical—though that he appreciates the works of the old masters was well shown by the rendering of the Cleocune of Back, and one or two delightful bits by Corelli. With the Hext Company, at the Vogt Monday night.
