FRIDAY, - - - MARCH 5, 1897

EASTERN OFFICE—230 to 234 Temple Court, N. Y. City. E. KATZ, Agent.

SEVERAL THINGS.

The dignity and courtesy of the United States senate, which we hear so much about at times, was exemplified Wednesday. Quay had been interposing objections to the passage of some private bill, when Senator Hoar took him in hand, and after giving him a shaking up, concluded his remarks by saying, "One man in liquor might stop business." This brought Quay to his feet and he shouted at the venerable senator from Massachusetts: "If he intends to intimate that I am in liquor, he is a lunatic or a liar, and I will not tolerate it from him or any one else.

In the house at the same time a discussion came up on the Indian appropriation bill, which finally drifted off into a discussion on the location of hell. Cannon of Illinois said: "If there is any place on this continent where organized hell is in force, it is among the civilized, the five civilized, tribes of Indian Territory." Touching the location, Pendleton of Texas agreed with Cannon, but thought the hell in Oklahoma, while of no larger proportions, was a trifle hotter. And thus were the closing hours of the session devoted to serving the interests of the people.

The rich are targets for unkind and often unjust criticism. Because a wealthy man has not given away all his possessions he is looked upon as a flinty creature, devoid of human sympathy. In many cases this is a gross error. Take, for instance, Uncle Russell Sage. There is a prevalent notion that Uncle Russ is a trifle near in his dealings with his fellow men. The fact that he wears 89 suits of clothes and 82 shoes, and appears indifferent as to whether the rest of mankind wears any at all, has gained Uncle Russ quite a reputation for frugality. But while to the world at large Mr. Sage—he has saved gallons of ink by not having a longer name—may have seemed cold and hard, he has not been so to the extent supposed. He has his soft and warm side. For example, when his brother, who is, unfortunately, poor and hard up, applied to him a few days ago for a loan, did Uncle Russ give him the marble heart? No indeed. We learn from a reliable source that he promptly accommodated him to the amount of $50, and took a mortgage on his home for the same. Some may think the mortgage in this case is an evidence of lack of fraternal affection, but it is only proof of methodical habits. In all probability when the time is up, if the money is not returned with interest, Uncle Russ will give a few days of grace before foreclosing. It is thus seen that the fact of a man's being worth sixty or eighty millions is not sufficient basis for the conclusion that he is a skinflint.—Salem Statesman.

Congress has passed a bill to prevent the buying and selling of unused railroad tickets. If ever there was a law made for the purpose of deliberately robbing the citizen and giving the plunder to a corporation, that law is the one. A railroad company in selling a ticket agrees to carry one person between certain points. It does not, or if it does, should not distinguish as to what person it should carry. If congress will carry its idea to its legitimate conclusion and give manufacturers the same advantage it will be unlawful to sell second-hand stoves, old rags, sacks or bottles, or anything else unless it comes new and direct from the manufacturer.

King George of Greece is of the material that Alexander conquered the world with. He stands firmly by his acts, and virtually defies all Europe. Of course the powers can compel him to submit at any time, but it is doubtful if they will. They managed to find plenty of excuses for not interfering between Turkey and the Armenians, and it will be difficult for them to explain their actions should they take active steps to prevent Greece protecting Christians from the murdering Turks. King George is all right, and has plenty of sympathy in this country.

President McKinley in his inaugural address appeals to the senate to ratify the arbitration treaty, "not merely as a matter of policy, but as a duty to mankind." This was hardly to have been expected, and indeed is quite a surprise to many persons in America, as well as in Europe.

The proof positive that the Davis house has no shadow of authority is the fact that Tony Noltner says it has. Or a legal or political proposition, Tony in all his thirty years of newspaper labor in Oregon was never known to be right once.

Sherman is in the cabinet, and within a few days Mark Hanna will be occupying Sherman's place in the senate. And that's what's the matter with Hanna.
