NORMAN OR IRISH?

The Oregonian in a biographical sketch of Senator Corbett, says, among other things, that "he traced his descent from Roger Corbett, who was a Norman military leader under William the Conqueror." Mr. Corbett as a plain American gentleman achieving fame and fortune, is worthy of all respect. Mr. Corbett as a "descendant of William the Conqueror," tracing his pedigree back 500 years, is a subject of mirth. Did not Roger Corbett come over to Ireland along with William? and did he not settle there? And was it not there the generations were born that made the name of Corbett illustrious?

Mr. Corbett seems to be ashamed of the fact that his ancestors were Irish, and so skips a few hundred years of family history and traces his descent from the Normans. Just as one whose father had been hanged would seek further up the ancestral line for more illustrious progenitors. And yet it seems to us that the very thing Mr. Corbett apparently deprecates is the one he should take most pride in, if proud of his ancestry at all, and that is that he is of Irish descent. History would be incomplete without Ireland and Ireland's heroes. The Irish traits of character are the finest in the world, albeit the Irish people are not the thriftiest; but for generosity, hospitality, for unadulterated and disinterested friendship the Irish beat the world. Half the great men of the world had Irish blood in their veins, and those that didn't, had the Irish characteristics, and were Irishmen by brevet.

Mr. Corbett should not lose sight of his illustrious namesake down in Nevada. There is a man who, despite his proud position as boss of the ring, looks down from his lofty height and boasts that his blood is green. We call the attention of Henry W. to the example of the illustrious Jim.

If 600 years in Ireland and 100 years in America has not eliminated the Norman from Mr. Corbett's circulation, we can readily understand why he is so tenacious of the single standard.

It is with a sigh of relief and a vast improvement in our opinion of Mrs. Dominis' taste that we note that the ex-queen called at the white house to see the president. We felt relieved because we had a faint idea that perhaps Queen Lil's affection had been centered on "Grover the Gross," that her presence in Washington was the result of a personal mash instead of a purely business transaction; that her copper-colored muchness was really enamored of our president and wanted to be near him, where she could see the little cupids play hide and seek among the double ridges of his alabaster, but not swan-like neck. Such, happily, was not the case, and the recent call at the white house since McKinley is in and Grover is out, shows that it was not a personal affair at all.

The kinetoscopes, three in number, which were to record the Carson City battle, are tied up in New York under attachment, and will probably remain there until too late to be used at the scene of the battle. The big dailies will not miss their valuable adjunct to the money-getting power of the slugging match, for with the aid of pencil and brush the readers of California's papers will have a pretty clear idea of the fight.

The announcement that the Hon. J. N. Dolph was dangerously ill, followed within twenty-four hours by the announcement that his leg had been amputated, came like a shock to his many warm friends in all parts of the state, and awakened profound regret even among those who, while being opposed to him politically, yet recognize his great abilities and true worth.

Up in Werdner, Idaho, Editor Burris, of the Citizen, having commented on the actions of the A. P. A. and Junior order, was invited to appear before a meeting of those orders 150 strong, and refusing to obey, he was carried into the hall, and at first it was proposed to tar and feather him, but milder counsels prevailed and he was run out of town. Several arrests have been made.

Over in Washington the railroad companies do not value horse flesh at any extravagant figure. The claim agent only offers to allow $1.50 each for horses killed by the cars, and this only because the horses have some value and a suit would entail costs.

Senator Corbett is well on his way towards Washington by this time. It may be possible that his journey across the continent will have an appointment at one end of it, and a disappointment at the other.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have invented a great many valuable things. They were the first to make brooms by machinery; the first to put up seeds in little packages; the first to manufacture cut nails.

Now they are out with a method of curing dyspepsia by resting the stomach. Their remedy is known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It supplies food in an artificially digested form and at the same time aids the digestion of other foods in the stomach. In other words, by the use of the Shaker Digestive Cordial, a dyspeptic virtually gets along without the use of his stomach until it is restored to its natural strength and vigor. A single 10 cent bottle will oftentimes give marked relief. Get a bottle from your druggist and try it.

Laxol is the best medicine for children. Doctors recommend it in place of Castor Oil.
