Anyone that would complain about the weather today would be hard to please, for there has been some of each kind. It snowed, rained, blew, was cloudy, cold, and at times bright, cheerful, sunny and warm.

Yesterday the Champions crossed bats with the White Stars in a baseball game at the fairgrounds. The first-named nine consisted of Fisher, Moabus, Barrett, Jenkin, McCully, Ferguson, O'Conner, J. J. Maione and Alexander, with Dick Gorman as manager. The White Stars were Anson, Burchdorf, Stubling, Daffron, VanDuyn, Nicholas, Kennedy, G. Dufur and Bartell, and J. Fritz manager. The White Stars won with a score of 19 to 10.

The alarm of fire Saturday night about 9:30 was caused by a burning flue at the residence of Mr. W. C. Alloway, on Third Street. Nearly all of the 114 lodges and societies of the city were in session at the time, and the closing odes and other ceremonies were dispensed with in all of them, some very ludicrous things being reported. The fire did no damage except to the muscles of the members of Jackson Engine Company, who pulled the steamer up through the mud and then back again.

The large barn of B. P. Barnard, 40x60 feet in size, recently built at Fox, Grant county, collapsed last week. The accident was caused, it is understood, by the large amount of snow that had collected on the roof of the building. Fortunately no animals were in the building at the time. The barn contained about forty or fifty tons of hay, which now will suffer great damage, and possibly be ruined. The building is almost a total wreck and is a great loss to Mr. Barnard.

Mr. L. Neff, who left here a couple of weeks ago in company with M. F. Sloper for the Trail Creek mines, returned last Sunday. Mr. Neff was not favorably impressed with that country, and says it is no place for a man without money. Hundreds of men are looking for work with poor prospects of striking a job. Deep snow covers the ground, and there can be no prospecting done before May. Mr. Sloper struck a good job driving stage. Mr. A. B. Jones was at Grand Forks, where he has purchased property and will locate.—Glacier.

A prize-fight bet has caused trouble in Port Townsend. On the day of the Fitzsimmons-Corbett go at Carson, Tom Newman bet $16 against $20 on Fitzsimmons with Scotty Kirke. C. H. Smith was chosen stakeholder. Before the result of fight was known the money in Smith's hands was garnished by J. J. Feuton, who claimed Newman owed him that particular sum of money. The case was tried in a justice court for awhile until Newman's attorney secured a stay of proceedings, pending a decision by Superior Judge McClinton, as to the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace in the premises.

Hon. R. E. Misener, representative from Crook county, stopped in town last Friday night on his way home from the late unpleasantness at Salem. Bob wasn't as much of a fool as some people imagined he would be.

Mr. George Cochrane and Miss Vanda Vredt were united in marriage at this place last Friday evening, March 19th, Rev. D. H. Leech performing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Cochrane have gone to housekeeping in the Allan Grant residence, in the upper part of town.

Mr. James Wilson, of Caleb, recently sold 100 head of the "Foppiano" brand of beef cattle to the Union Meat Company of Portland. He sold for $3.25 per hundred on foot delivered at Arlington. At this price the cattle will bring Mr. Wilson an average of $35 per head. A few of the steers are of immense size, and will bring about $60 each.

FOUND A NEW WORLD.

The Wolforth Children Go to the Boys and Girls Aid Society.

County Judge Mays Saturday examined into the matter of turning the Wolforth children over to the Boys and Girls Aid Society at Portland. After quite a lachrymose argument on the part of the mother, she was permitted to keep the youngest, a babe of 5 months; but the other two boys, aged respectively 5 and 7 years, were turned over to Superintendent Gardner, who took them to Portland yesterday morning.

As soon as he took possession of them, he took steps to put them in condition for their new relations, the first step being to give them a bath. This was done at the Elite barber shop and proved to be a circus. The little fellows thought they were to be drowned, and protested at the top of their lungs. After half an hour's soaking, some of the outside quires came off and they looked as fresh and rosy as nature intended them. Then they were put in the chairs for a hair cut, and again their imaginations were worked on to the resisting pitch. They thought they were to be decapitated sure, every time they heard the scissors snip, and it was a job in which the barbers earned their money. It was a clip and a wriggle, a snip and a scream. The little heads would be twisted into position, only to turn facing their tormentors the moment they were released. The circus attracted quite a crowd, but patience and perseverance finally accomplished the work, and their first spring shearing was over. Then Superintendent Gardner proceeded to rig each of them out in a new suit of clothes that made them so proud "Little Lord Fontleroy" would have been refused recognition. After this they were taken to a restaurant, and the way they proceeded to assist nature in taking the wrinkles out of their new jackets was a sight. A half-dozen more like them would have started a local famine. By this time they had become somewhat reconciled to their capture, and when they were put to bed the younger stubbornly refused to allow his clothes to be taken off. He could not but believe that if they were once off he would never get them back again. A compromise was finally effected, the boy giving up his coat, which he insisted on having placed on his bed where he could hold on to it, he going to bed with his pants on, which even after he was asleep he tried to hold fast to when they were taken off.

Poor little waifs! they have had a hard row. Practically parentless, human mavericks, floater and jetsam of the great ocean of Life; bubbles on the river of Time; echeats to the state. Good homes will be found for them, and hereafter their lines will fall in pleasanter places.
