From the Head of the Ditch.

Mrs. Frank Davenport, who is superintending the boarding house, while splitting kindling last Monday, cut off the index finger of her left hand. The hatchet made a clean cut just at the root of the nail, and the portion cut off could not be found.

In rolling logs down the hill towards the mill, one day last week, a big log got the best of the men and rolling too far, struck the pig pen and demolished it. Two pigs were killed, while four others escaped to the woods and it was two or three days before they could be returned to the pen.

Mrs. Snuck, who has given good satisfaction as mistress of the boarding house for the past three months, left for her home at White Salmon Monday. A good cook is wanted to take her place.

The roads are so bad between here and town that one team is steadily employed in hauling supplies to keep the work going.

M. M. Davenport is working a large force of men on the lower end of the ditch and is hiring all the teams that can be had. The work is progressing finely and several hundred feet of ditch have been completed. He has several men and teams from Portland on the work. It looks like people of Hood River valley ought to be able to do this work, instead of going outside for men and teams, but Mr. Davenport has not been able to procure from here all the help needed. He would prefer to give employment to our own people.

Frank Davenport has the contract to build the ditch and flume from Arnold's place to Joe Parser's and expects to have the work completed by the 1st of May. He has sub-let the building of 2,400 feet of the flume to George Stranahan and Dock Gibbons, beginning at Joe Parser's place and going south. Several thousand feet of lumber are already on the ground for the work. Nails and other supplies were taken out Monday. They started Tuesday and will push the work to completion. Any parties wishing to build any portion of the ditch or flume should call on Frank Davenport, as he has plenty of work left to give out, but don't put it off too late, as he is contracting every day.—Glacier.

Matrimony and Magnetism.

Owing to the deep and increasing interest in the illustrated lectures at the Baldwin opera house, Dr. Del-Mac-Claire, the eminent Brahmin adept, has yielded to the earnest request of many interested in human development and will give four more lectures—tonight and tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for ladies and gentlemen, and Wednesday at 3 o'clock p. m. for women only, and at 8 p. m. for men only. The topics explained and illustrated embrace "magnetism," "marriage," "contagion," and the prevention, as well as the cure, of matrimonial misery and many special and contagious diseases and weaknesses. Bring questions for the question box at the door.

If asked the question "Have you got a stomach?" it would be safe on general principles, to answer "Yes." But, if you are sure of it, that is, if you ever feel any distress after eating or any pains of whatever description in the region of the stomach, you have got something else besides an ordinary stomach; in other words you have got a diseased stomach. The stomach is a powerful muscle, and the proper remedy for a tired muscle is rest. Try the Shak-Digestive Cordial, for this product not only contains digested food, which will nourish the system without any work on the part of the diseased organs, but it aids the digestion of other foods as well. You can test its value in your case for the trifling sum of 10 cents. Sample bottles at this price are carried by all druggists. 12

MADE SECURE BY WATER.

Prison Cells Rendered Impregnable Against All Attempts to Escape.

There is an exhibition in Boston a model of a cell for prisoners from which a criminal would find it practically impossible to attempt to escape without giving an alarm that would bring a guard rushing up to his door before either the lock or the door or the tubes of which the cell is composed were broken or even cracked, says the Philadelphia News. The protection is not afforded primarily by electricity, although electricity plays a part in the device. The chief protective agent is water, which fills every space and every joint in the steel tubes forming the entire cell. The water is maintained in the tubes at a certain pressure, indicated on a gauge in the watchman's room, and the slightest decrease in pressure of this water, such as would be made by the cracking of a tube so that no more than a cubic inch of water could escape, would release the pointer on the gauge, allowing it to turn slightly and thus make an electric connection with an electric bell. The bell then rings continuously until the circuit is broken by the watchman. At the same time that the bell rings, on an annunciator above is shown the number of the cell where the water is escaping from the tube.

Unlike modern cells that are made with solid steel bars, the floors and ceiling do not have to be made of steel plates, through which the criminal can often cut his way or on which his movements in the cell keep up a continuous noise sufficient to make the cell-room too noisy for the watchman to hear the slight sound of a saw or an auger in a particular cell. This new cell is a cage. The sides, floor, ceiling and door are all made of steel tubes, set so closely together that they could not be sprung apart to any advantage. Even the hinges and the bolts of the door are filled with water, always ready to give the alarm if its pressure is changed in the slightest degree, yet inclosed in such a manner that the prisoner cannot make any attempt to break or cut his way out of the cell without changing the pressure.—St. Louis Republic.

AN UNCOMFORTABLE MAN. Hundreds Witness His Writhings and Show No Pity.

On a narrow platform, close to the glass roof of Hammerstein's Olympia roof garden, may nightly be seen, says the New York Herald, one of the most uncomfortable men in New York. He is the man who operates the calcium lights which play upon the stage. He has barely room to stand up, so he kneels most of the time and stares at the stage before him.

Below are persons trying to look so cool and comfortable that the sight of them must be a perpetual aggravation. They sit and laugh and talk, and take no notice of the uncomfortable fellow perched high aloft and yet in full view. He is there for four hours every night. He shifts about and occasionally stands up in his endeavor to get the kinks out of his legs. He sits, kneels and sometimes leans back against the big iron girder behind him. He sees the show over and over again. He listens to the endless splash of the water on the crystal roof and sees the same little comedies nightly enacted around the round tables beneath.

Sometimes a sign of human interest is shown in a bending forward as some woman with a more towering hat than usual, or a boy with a more resplendent hat band than common parades through the garden.

SMALL PROFIT IN CIGARS.

Dealers Complain That They Make Very Little Money.

"There is not a large percentage of profit in cigars," said D. B. Talbert, of Baltimore, a cigar salesman, at the Metropolitan, to a Washington Star reporter. "And there is probably no line of goods in which customers swindle the dealers with so little compunction of conscience. There are 50 cigars in a box of ordinary goods, but the dealer seldom gets paid for 50, even though he credits none and gives none away."

"A man buys a cigar, taking it out of the box with his thumb and forefinger, at the same time closing his other fingers over another which rests in the palm of his hands. He gives the dealer a dime and almost invariably receives a nickel in change. Or he may buy a quarter's worth and gets one too many in the same way. This has caused some dealers to ask how many are wanted and to give out just what are called for, but it is doubtful if this is wise, as a customer likes to help himself, and goes where he can do so."

Didn't Pay to Be Funny.

M. Cléville, prefect of the department of the Bouches du Rhone, has just lost his place for trying to be funny officially. At a meeting in Marseilles the mayor of the city, who is a socialist, made a speech in which he declared that no one in Marseilles could have any confidence in the Meline ministry. The prefect in answer said that he was profoundly touched by this evidence of respect for the ministry.

FIRST RIDE ON THE ELEVATED. It impresses Strangers Now as It Did New Yorkers Twenty Years Ago. Every day there are among the passengers on the elevated roads considerable numbers of persons who are riding there for the first time—visitors from out of town. To the stranger unaccustomed to such structures, says the New York Herald, the elevated road must be one of the sights and sensations of the metropolis. Here on the platform of an elevated station, waiting for a train, stood a little party of people from out of town, whose bags and traps indicated that they had come from a distance. A train approached rapidly.
