To Sheepmen.

Princeton Review. EDITOR REVIEW.—I am much gratified to note the effect on the leading paper of this state that our united work has accomplished in showing the injustice of the proposed exclusion of sheep from ranging in the Cascade mountains.

First—It has been decided by the United States court that no other cause of action will lie other than a cause for damages. Public opinion has now been so educated that it will be difficult to secure a jury that would assess any damages whatever unless it should appear to have occurred through the carelessness of the sheepmen in letting fires spread through their negligence in the mountains.

In fact, I believe if there is a single arrest for trespassing upon the reserve, it will only hasten a final result in our favor, and for the matter of costs to the party arrested, we could easily adjust that by all contributing who have a natural interest in the final ending of the controversy.

I think the Hon. George W. Barnes will join me in the recommendation I have made. Respectfully yours, W. C. WILLS.

Murdered at La Grande.

The chancellor commander and members of Lemon Lodge, No. 4, K. of P., received telegraphic advices Sunday that Harry Sidell had been shot and killed Sunday at La Grande in an altercation with one Bartemus.

Today, particulars were received from La Grande regarding the affair. Sidell had rented some land from Bartemus, who reserved a portion for his own use as a garden spot.

Sidell then proceeded to break down the fence and commenced plowing the land. Bartemus grasped his Winchester rifle, rushed out of doors and shot Sidell, who died from the wound.

Bartemus was placed under arrest. Sidell being a member of Damon Lodge here in Pendleton, the chancellor commander telegraphed for the body to be buried at the expense of the lodge. He was well known here and leaves a small family.—East Oregonian.

Two years ago R. J. Warren, a druggist at Peasant Brook, N. Y., bought a small supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. At that time the goods were unknown in this section; to-day Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a household word. It is the same in hundreds of communities. Where ever the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy become known the people will have nothing else. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

THE POLITE ITALIANS.

Florence, the City of Well-Mannered Citizens.

If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer. There may be ill-mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the suave dignity which used in England to stamp the lady or gentleman. Most persons are brainy, but cleverness is not eager to shine. It is very subdued and more oily than corrosive. The charm of Florence steals on one like the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners and objects. Architects understand chiaro-scuro not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wearies of the streets and public buildings; their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at ten in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at four in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting, though not beautiful, faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models of Raphael's Virgin-mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de Medici? Loftiness is an attribute of Florence architecture, palatial or domestic. The doors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way.

Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli Gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation, and tranquil, generous loveliness, I can only think of one—the duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the prince and princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral hue is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well-ordered design is required, and one has it. The marble is the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliant to the face and satin of a fine woman's dress.

Florence is not what it was in the grand ducal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the Paris standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more's the pity Paris fashions only suit French women, unless applied by French hairdressers and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a dreadful disadvantage, if the hair has not been first dressed by a French artiste capillaire. He places the hat, through the medium of the hair, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffeurs are not much employed by Italian ladies.—London Truth.

FUR IN COLD STORAGE.

Summer Attacks of Moths Prevented by Refrigeration.

In an article read before the National Warehousemen's association at Boston lately by Prof. Howard, a government entomologist, the subject of the preservation of furs by cold storage was treated, and public attention was called to this, one of the latest novel uses of artificial refrigeration. In a cold storage room the temperature can be raised or lowered at will. In some of the rooms, for instance, where it is desired to keep poultry for any length of time, the temperature is kept at the zero point. With the improved systems, the rooms are free from dampness, and for this reason can be utilized for an almost unlimited number of purposes. In the case of furs, the temperature of the room, if kept at 30 degrees, would make it impossible for any of the insects which get into and destroy this kind of goods, to live. Every housewife knows that moths do not breed in the winter time, and camphor balls and insect-destroying powders are made use of only in the summer months.

Already there is one large warehouse in New York city where furs are sent to be stored through the summer. It is a most satisfactory method, for the furs are kept free from the odor of camphor and other drugs and powders, the smell of which is disagreeable to many persons. Woolens and all other kinds of goods which are subject to destruction by insects can be preserved in this way. Chocolate candy manufacturers use a cold storage room in which their candies are kept, and the candies are made in a room so cool that melting cannot retard the process of manufacture. In this way the output of the candy plant is largely increased. Soap factories, refineries, chemical works and a large line of other factories are coming to use the cold storage room.—N. Y. Tribune.
