MARRY IN SECRET.

Strange Custom of the Mountain People of the South.

Weddings Are Conducted Without Any Ceremony and There Are No Feastings or Congratulations.

There are few places and few grades of life, in either the cural or the urban world, where the word "wedding" is not a synonym for joy and festivity. Only the cynic or the misanthrope protests egalest the wedding celebration. We wear out must cust mis, but the wed ding feast remains. White very likely not the only place in the world, the only place in my experience where there i any general concealment of proposed connubiality and nuptial intent is in the mountains of the south. It may be generally known that "Zeb" is "keeping regular company" with "Lize. Suddenly the town will be apprised of the fact that "Zeb and Lize done got married last night." This constitutewhat night be called an anticipated Semetimes in the large settlements due notice will be given and the wedding take place in the little church or in the building used in common for all public purposes-religious services, school, political gatherings and linerant shows. That practice is, however generally confined to the offte of the community. In one place in my experionce the popular resert for the performunce of the ecremony was the broad platform in the rear of a local sawmill. I could discover no ground for the napa harity of the spot. Sometimes a few intimate friends would be lavited to atotad. Sometimes none was observer save the causal passer-by. More frequently there were no witnesses have the sun above the lumber-piles around.

Concerning that spot a local magistrate tells an amusing story. A certain man had been unfortunate in the longevity of his selections, had been twice married and twice becaved. He called upon the magistrate to officiate at a took their places before him, upon the will platform, to pledge their faith and love, he said to the groom: "Move a little further over this way, John. Toe up to that line. That is where you've niways stood before." And there was no proceeding until John had "teep up."

A man who was doing some work for CHANGE BY DOOR AND "quartering time," 2:20 o'clock. He Blakeley & Houghton, said nothing to me or to his associate of his purpose. He returned promptly on time, to announce, in a cusual and indifferent manner, that during his absence he had been married and, with the little furniture powersed by the pair, had settled in a cabin of his own. Aga'n and aga'n have I seen the same plan followed in other cases.

The ground for so neveral observance of secrecy I could not discover. It holds with both the intention of marriage and the process time of the ceremony. I think it is due 'n considerable measure to fear of that harrowing performance known as the charivar! - in the idiom. "shivaree." To those unfamiliar with that entertalement I can only describe. it as a most exerusiating pandomonium, effected by combinations of pots and pans, horns and howling. It takes the form of an evening serenade to the newly wedded pair. The officiating musicians comprise all the young men and boys for miles around. Thave been the unfortunate auditor of one or twosuch performances, and if I knew that one were to take place around the walls of my dwelling if I married I should choose to "live a bachelor." I blame no man for retaining his secret to avoid the experience. The poorer classes, with whom the concealment is a general recorder, have no money to spend for the entertainment of their friends. "o' infrequently, there is no money for a n new gown for the bride. The off by then becomes assimple matter of uncal agreement; the business is discatched without fuss or features and the January to paradise is taken by the to at direct route,-N. Y. Post.

Sansen's Predictions. carly everything Nansen predicted matur his journey has come true. He a d me expected to cross the unknown area, and he has done it. He initial exactly the general direction an var ch has ship would drift while fast In the ice, but it is not certain that he correctly assigned the cause of this dr. it. Nansen invented the madel of the Fram, making her hull tound and slippery like an eel, with no corners or shorp edges for the ice to m zo upon. She is the strongest vessel ever used in Arctic exploration, asserts McClure's Magazine, He said that prese re- would almuly lift her on the ice, and so her bottom, near the keel, was made almost flat, in order that she might not capsize while on the ice surface, and her serew and rudder were also ingeniously protected. The many experts who said her design would not save the Fram from Instant destruction were mistaken, for she met these re ciless ice pressures and they merely litted her out of her eradle and she rested safely on the surface. Nansen said that, owing to the probable predominance of water in the far north, he expected to find there higher temperatures than 1 50 along the north coast of Asia. This re-100 markable prediction has been fulfilled. The lowest temperature observed on the Fram was 5114, degrees Eahrenheit. while further south, in the Kara sea, 63 degrees, and at the mouth of the Lena river, 94 degrees, have been registered. -St. Louis Republic.
