THE NEW DIVINITY.

The Greeks have already been whipped to a standstill, and have placed themselves in the hands of the powers, expressing their willingness to abide by whatever terms of peace the latter may accept for them. There was a time when all Europe would have gone to her aid in her fight against the Ishmaelites; but that time is past. There was a time when her soil produced heroes, when valorous deeds were the theme for minstrels singing; but that was long ago. The club of Hercules has rotted; the sword of Theseus rusted to decay; Ajax and Ajax Telamon sleep side by side; Ulysses, the wise, Jason, the bold, exist only in tradition; Achilles no longer vulnerable in the heel, dies ignobly from England's Hector—thrust at his pockets. It is heroic soil; but heroes no longer exist since the battle against the invincible and invisible power of the money king is hopeless.

It seems not so long ago when Richard of the Lion heart, gathered his sturdy following of gallant knights and swept down upon the hosts of Islam. The cross and the crescent met, and Jerusalem was taken from the Turk. Those were different days. The Turk was not England's property then; he is now. Bonds know no religion; Debt has no creed; Greed has no faith; Selfishness no sympathy. Religion has been weighed in English scales against English gold, and it was found wanting. What matter the lives of a few thousand or a few hundred thousand Christians against $800,000,000 in gold? These are days when human life is cheap and gold dear.

The power of the Turk is broken, and the sword of Islam no longer threatens Europe. The dog is chained, and a few thousand Armenians are not considered too much of a feed for him. The glory of Greece has departed. The sense of shame is no longer known in Europe. The gallant people who for hundreds of years beat the Moslem back and saved Europe from Mohammedism, are sacrificed upon the altar of Pounds, Shillings and Pence. These be the modern trinity of England, and devout indeed be the worshippers.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

The Dalles is now the head of navigation on the lower Columbia, and is in a position to command a large trade with the country south and east. The question is, "Is she going to let this trade slip from her grasp, or make an attempt to hold it?" She is in a position to hold it, but it will require an effort on her part. To do so she must increase her facilities for reaching the country tributary to her and that from location would naturally trade here. The railroad from Biggs to Wasco seems to be assured, and that its completion will do some injury to The Dalles is undeniable. It may not be much, but we must not submit to any loss of trade.

It has been suggested that a railroad be built from this city to the free bridge on the Deschutes. This would tap quite a large section of the grain fields of Sherman county, and would also settle the portage railway matter as it could easily be carried to the mouth of the Deschutes. We suggest to the Commercial Club the advisability of examining into the matter, and that speedily. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and eternal energy is the price of success.

It is astonishing how prone some people are to reason in a circle and arrive at conclusions satisfactory—to themselves—on almost any given proposition. We note an editorial going the rounds showing that this country is soon to have an immense gold surplus because we are every year taking such vast sums of it out of the ground. Therefore, says the philosopher who wrote the editorial, as we cannot eat it or consume it, we must soon accumulate a vast store of it. He does not stop to consider that this country has half a billion dollars in gold, but has produced three billions. Nor does he reflect that citizens of the United States take to Europe and spend in travel, hotel bills and amusements, more gold every year than the whole continent produces. There is no danger of gold becoming so plentiful in this country that we will have to use it for paving our streets or anything of that kind. The production of gold is increasing steadily and will continue to increase indefinitely, but there will always be plenty of people to take it—at par.

With the close of the Presidential Campaign THE TRIBUNE recognizes the fact that the American people are now anxious to give their attention to home and business interests. To meet this condition, politics will have far less space and prominence, until another State or National occasion demands a renewal of the fight for the principles for which THE TRIBUNE has labored from its inception to the present day, and won its greatest victories.

Every possible effort will be put forth, and money freely spent, to make THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE pre-eminently a National Family Newspaper, interesting, instructive, entertaining and indispensable to each member of the family.
