EDITOR CHRONICLE: I thought I would drop you a line, as I have lots of time here at LaFox, and it may be of some interest to some of my friends.

I left Columbus, Nebraska, where I had been feeding sheep about three weeks ago and brought them down here to be shorn with the shearing machine or clippers. There has been over 30,000 sheep shorn here with this machine this spring and to the satisfaction of everybody. Although they can't shear more sheep with the clippers than by hand, there is one big advantage. They won't cut the sheep up so badly as with the shears and we get more wool of the sheep. I think the clippers will be used out West in a few years instead of shears, provided our present administration is friendly to the sheep industry, as they had promised before the election. If not, then it won't pay to shear the sheep any more, with wool at 5 or 6 cts per pound, either by hand or by clippers. Well, I expect to get through feeding here soon and will market my sheep just as soon as the market gets better, as it has been very dull for the past three weeks, and then I will come out to Oregon again to breathe some mountain air for a few months. I hear that some of the Eastern sheep buyers got wild on Oregon sheep this spring and paid rather stiff prices for some. Well, there was quite a little money made all through the country among the sheep and cattle feeders this season, but the prospects are that some of them will lose it again next winter. The way they paid for sheep and the big amount of sheep which are going to be fed next winter again, will surely keep the prices down. I remain yours truly.
