THE SIBERIAN ROAD.

The Siberian railroad is being built very rapidly, and in 1898 trains will be run to the Amur river, thence by boat the transfer will be made across lake Baikal to connection with the South Russian section of the railroad to Vladivostok. The time from London to the Pacific ocean by this route will be eighteen days. By July 1, 1904, it is expected the road will be completed and that the run will be made without change of cars from the North Sea to the Japan Sea. When the road is settled the trip will be made from London to Japan in nine days, and the trip around the world can be made in less than thirty days. This will probably revolutionize travel, and while heavy freights will continue to seek the cheap water transportation, made possible by the Suez canal, the passenger traffic will seek the quicker routes.

The most important thing in connection with the completion of this road is the vast wheat fields which it will bring into competition with those of the United States. It will be a good many years before the full effect of this competition will be felt; but the time is not far distant, perhaps twenty or thirty years away only, when Siberia will be able to furnish bread for the world. An area larger than half the United States is suitable for wheat growing, and not much of anything else.

CORBETT TALKS.

And still Mr. Corbett remains in Washington vainly hoping that the senate will seat him. Yesterday's Oregonian contains an article clipped from the Brooklyn Eagle, in which Mr. Corbett's position is plainly shown. The article in question contains one statement that it were better perhaps for Mr. Corbett's contention if it had not been made, and the peculiarity of the matter is that Mr. Corbett makes it himself. Speaking of Senator Mitchell he says:

In the senate he had made speeches in favor of free silver, and when questioned as to his position by the gold men, he told them that he stood by the principles laid down in the St. Louis platform. The men then compared notes and found that someone was bound to get left, and so they agreed to not take the oath of office, and thus they prevented the election of Mitchell.

Here is a frank statement made by Mr. Corbett as to the cause of the hold-up. His supporters agreed not to take the oath of office and thus they prevented the election of Mitchell. That is the truth and the whole truth of the matter, but how Corbett unbosomed himself of it is a conundrum. J. Thorburn Ross, Wallace McCamant, Tony Noltner, and his other managers, should muzzle him.

The dispatches announce the startling fact that W. G. Steele of Portland, head and front of the organization known as Mazamas, is in New York City making arrangements for his society to climb some mountain or other this summer. It really looks as though he had gone a long way from the scene of action to get ready, and it may be that he wants to get a running start at Ranier. If we remember rightly, it was only a month or two ago that Mr. Steele was interviewing our sheepmen, or our sheepmen were interviewing each other, for the purpose of raising funds to send Mr. Steele to Washington in order that he might have the Cascade forest reserve thrown open to the flocks of Eastern Oregon. It would seem from this that Mr. Steele possesses considerable versatility.

The conditions that have arisen over the war between Greece and Turkey show two things very clearly. One is that Turkey is not the moribund body politic that others have thought it, but that it is able and ready to fight if necessary. The other is that the powers of Europe are moved to fear of her, and by their own action have shown their inability to dictate terms to Turkey. The sultan snags his fingers at them and they stand it like a lot of school children.

The action of the powers in dealing with Turkey is cowardly in the extreme. That $800,000,000 debt is what holds Europe solid and makes the powers stand idly by while the Turk sweeps everything before him. They should come over to this country and learn something of the western mode of collecting debts. The proper thing to do would be to foreclose the mortgage and take the property.
