The Polygamy Central.

Sumpter valley, in Baker county, is one of the prettiest in the state. Little, if any, farming is done, but for miles there are broad meadows, through which lating hills, covered with a fine growth of pine timber. The Sumpter valley railroad runs through the valley, a distance of thirty miles, terminating for the present at the thriving little town of Oregon Lumber Co., its principal busi- entertained, and attempts have freber. It is proving an important factor in the development of the country, but in earlier days was the subject of many jests. Its owners being Mormons, the road has been dubbed the Polygamy Central, and a story is told that Superintendent West, of one of the big mines, was going out on the road one day, head copper wires, 20,000 horse-power along with Mr. Eccles, the superintendent of the road. The trip was twenty- eisco, besides doing lots of work all six miles to McEwan, Every few miles around the region and on the line of the engine would drop the cars and skip transit. On the way the waste water out for some of the many mills or logging camps to do a lot of switching. This finally became unbearable to West, shot through Pelton wheels, which will who was in a hurry, and he said to be connected directly with the dyna-Eccles: "For heaven's sake! how many mos, the latter being among the largest more time are you going to stop?" and most powerful known. Gold and Silver Bugs-

The most remarkable gold bugs in the world are found in Central America. They belong to the genus Plusiotis, and one might easily imagine a specimen to be the work of some clever artificer in metal. The head and wing cases are brilliantly polished, with a luster as of gold itself. To sight and touch they have all the seeming of metal, and it is hard to realize that the creature is a mere animal. Oddly enough there is another species of Plusiotis from the same region, which has the appearance of being wrought in solid silver, freshly one branch of Powder river meanders. burnished. A pretty story of the young empress of Russia is going the round. Before leaving Tzarsko-Selo her imperial majesty gave a reception at the palace to some ladies who had taken part in a charitable bazar in which she was so much interested. One of the ladies, it seems, was mother to a baby exactly the same age as the empress' lovely little daughter. When it came her turn to speak to the empress, although hitherto a strangar, this motherly young woman inquired suddenly, with irrepressible interest: "How's your baby?" The empress smiled, and was, it is said, delighted at the naivete. She told the woman all about the royal tot. Apropos of the Russian baby, her little highness when dressed for an outing is held up at the window every morning by her nurse for all the world to see.

Time Occupied by Dreams.

The time occupied by a dream is one of the marvels of sleep. In the work entitled "The Philosophy of Mystery," we read of a man who dreamed that he had enlisted as a soldier: that he had joined his regiment and traveled to a foreign country; that he finally deserted on account of the harsh treatment he had received at the hands of his superior officers; that he had been apprehended and carried back to his regiment; that upon arriving there he was tried by court-martial, condemned to be shot and was led out for execution. At this moment the guns of the executioners exploded and the sound awoke the dreamer. It was clear now that a loud noise in an edicining room had both produced the dream and awakned the dreamer almost at the same
