PAID THE PENALTY.

John Newman, alias Frank Butler, hanged.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July, 16.—John Newman, alias Frank Butler, convicted of the murder of Captain Lee Weller, in the Blue mountain district, in 1896, was hanged here yesterday. He broke down at last, the remarkable stoicism which he had exhibited since his arrest in San Francisco last February giving way, and he confessed his guilt of this as well as other shocking crimes.

He admitted that his right name was John Newman, and that he was born of good family in Staffordshire, England, in 1868. He professed the profoundest penitence for his misdeeds and at the last moment willingly received the religious consolation usually offered the condemned.

The execution was effected without incident. Few spectators were admitted, those present being principally officers of the court and attendants directly concerned in carrying out the law's decree. The case is one that has excited intense interest throughout the colonies, and great satisfaction is expressed in the thorough work performed by the detectives in securing evidence leading not only to the capture of Newman, but his speedy conviction and execution.

Reasons Why Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Is the Best.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.

2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.

3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemic dysentery.

4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.

5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.

6. Because it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.

7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.

8. Because it produces no bad results.

9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.

10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

HOW SALMON ARE CANNED.

The Rough and Elementary Process Through Which This Table Delicacy Goes.

Salmon, though usually considered a delicate and somewhat expensive delicacy, are canned by a process which is both rough and elementary, says Pearson's Weekly.

At the spot where they are to be landed, rude sheds are built close down by the water's edge. The salmon are thrown out of the boats by forks, and passed into the first shed, where a butcher, armed with a long knife, deprives them of heads, tails, fins, cuts them open, and hands them on to the washing room.

Thence they pass into the hand of another butcher, who divides them up into suitable lengths. These are stuffed into the cans, which are then placed on an inclined plane, their tops being automatically soldered on as they roll down.

The cans are arranged on a tray, and immersed in boiling water. They are taken out and tested, they are given a lacquer bath and tested again, by the simple means of hammering a nail against the tins, and judging the quality by the sound given out.

Forty-eight cans are packed in a case, and the salmon, a short time ago alive and fresh, now cooked and canned, is ready for the market.

An average sized fish will fill 20 cans, several thousand going through the rough canning process a day.

CANNED WITH THE TOMATOES.

A Factory Girl Loses a Watch in This Manner.

The finding of a gold watch and chain in a can of tomatoes by an Indianapolis woman brings out a remarkable story, says the Indianapolis News. The find was reported and the circumstance noted in the News, and the next day a young woman who is employed in a cannery appeared at the office and identified the watch and chain.

She lost them, she said, two years ago, and while employed at the factory. She did not know how she lost them, and advertised in the News at the time for several days. She says this would have discovered her property if it had not been sealed in a can in a storeroom. She had long ago bought a new one. The lost one was dearer to her, however, both because it was prettier and because it was given to her. Her theory is that the watch and pendant chain dropped from her belt into one of the elevator buckets of tomatoes, was carried to the filler, and went through the filler to the can. The bow, or ring, which connects watch and chain, was not found, and it is believed that this part was not solid gold, and was, therefore, eaten by the acid of the tomatoes. The mainpring was broken, but everything else kept intact during the two years' handling of the can, and the watch is again as good as new and is keeping good time. The foreman of the factory says that another watch was lost by one of the girls last year.

QUAKER OF THE ORIENT.

The Herculean Turkish Porter Whose Place of Business is on the Street.

The Turkish porter is one of the most interesting objects seen in a tour of the orient. Of Herculean strength and power of endurance, he is usually prompt and obliging, also honest so far as in him lies. He cannot speak the truth, and would not respect himself if he could, for that is a virtue of the Frank.

His place of business, says the Chicago Times-Herald, is on the streets of his native town, where he can be found at all hours of the day, clad in a loose soiled jacket, usually gray, with gray gaiters, Turkish shoes or sandals, the inevitable fez and a neckerchief that makes him look as if he were strangling.

All the burden of conveying large or small articles falls upon him and he will for a gratuity carry a piano as easily as a trunk. He is the most contented of the working fraternity on maps abroad, whether he is found in the streets of Constantinople or in those of Stamboul, and the tourists make much of him because he is interesting, his occasional smoke under the shade of a mulberry tree, or his lazy sips of sherbet, being treats that renew his strength for the hard work by which he must live—if he is not able to sell merchandise. Being sturdy and industrious, the traits of the Turkish porter commend him to the public, hence a picturesque description of him by one traveler who named him the "Quaker of the Orient."

TOPCOATS PAWNED IN SUMMER.

Thrifty and Thriftless Alike Find the Scheme Satisfactory.

"Twenty thousand overcoats have been taken out of pawn during the past week," said a pawnbroker to a Chicago Times-Herald reporter. "The cooler weather has forced us to unlock our cedar chests and undo the bundles which have been packed away in camphor. During the next month, unless the weather becomes warmer, as many more overcoats will be taken from the pawnshops."

"No, it is not because they are poverty-stricken that so many men have overcoats in pawn during the summer. Of course, if a man wants to pawn anything, there is nothing that he should be more likely to 'sunk' during the summer months than his unnecessary overcoat. At the same time many of the overcoats are left with us merely that they may be protected against the moths, who thrive during the summer, and to prevent them from accumulating dust as they would while lying in closets. A man can pawn his overcoat for two dollars, and have it with us until he needs it in the fall, and it costs him but 50 cents."

"Of course it is a good deal of trouble for us, but we are able to make it pay well, and the temptation to a man who is improvident is to borrow more than a nominal sum on his coat, and, of course, he has to pay more interest."

"A great many dress suits are also pawned each summer to preserve them until needed in October. They are worn very little in the summer, and the same reason that leads to the pawning of overcoats operates in their case."
