Sinking For Water.

The management of the Flagstaff mine has placed a force of miners to sinking, and in a few days the seven hundred foot level will have been reached. The company is still handicapped on account of a lack of water, but the volume is gradually increasing as depth is attained, and judging from all indications it is only a matter of time until a sufficient quantity will be obtained. The mill is now running 12 hours per day, and the results are very encouraging. Mr. E. Imhaus, the agent of the French Flagstaff Mining Co., is pushing development work rapidly ahead under the superintendence of Mr. O. W. Revnolds. but as yet he considers that the Flagstaff is nothing more than a prospect, as he is of the opinion that it will require additional work to determine the permanency of the property. The gentleman is a conservative mining man, and, unlike many others engaged in this business, he does not allow his enthusiasm to get away with his better judgment. of the country in which they live ex-However, with sufficientwater the Flag- poses them. GAME-KILLING FOXES.

Their Destructiveness Shown by the Con-

Arthur S. Burr, of Old Haddam, when going across lots recently discovered the carcass of a woodchuck partly eat en, and a little further along a ruffer grouse. Thinking it was the work of a fox, he made search and found the burrow, with a large black hen and two more partridges at its mouth. Suspecting there were young partridges in the row, he made up his mind to return and dig them out, as the town of Haddam pays a bounty of two dollars a

It was five days before he had chance to do this, and when he dug out the burrow with the assistance of Sherm Fowler he found that the wily mother fox had removed. They were determined to have that bounty, and incidentally the foxes, and after a long search they found a new burrow, picking up two more partridges on the way Mrs. E. K. Russell went to Portland On digging out this new hole they took out eight partridges, three rabbits and a very large woodchuck, with five young foxes in the end. The partridges vere partly eaten, but the wodchuck was completely cleaned out, nothing

Sportsmen have long claimed that foxes were more destructive to game the boat this morning, and will visit than all the hunters, and have noted a great increase of foxes in towns that have not paid a bounty for the last few to attend the Chautauqua Assembly at Nears. The only incentive the farmers' boys have for killing the fox is the bounty money. Eight partridges in a burrow but four days old show the great destructiveness of foxes.

VENEER PRODUCTION.

Some Woods Can Be Sawed as 'Thin as Writing Paper.

While the finer and thinner veneers of costly woods are sliced tangentially from the side of the log, there are woods that cannot be cut this way-no mount of boiling or steaming renderg it possible to cut them without reaking down the tissues to such an extent as to destroy their surfaces for polishing-while others, says Hardwood, becoming discolored from steaming or boiling, and being too hard to cut otherwise, have to be sawed The fine-toothed, thin-gauge circular, with flanged center, is the favorite for cutting all ordinary veneers thicker than 30 to the inch; 20 to the inch is the thickness most commonly used for cab inet work and finishing, but much thinner is used in the case of rare and costly woods, or rare abnormal or accidental figures, as in the case of burls Some woods have to be cut much thick er, being unable to bear handling when too thin; genuine ebony, the only fine really jet-black wood known, and large enough to be of any use, will not stand sawing much below one-fourth of an inch in thickness, owing to the extreme brittleness or want of cohesion, but there are other woods that can be cut as thin as writing paper and still be handled in large sheets. Other woods there are that will lose their fine color on exposure to the atmosphere, especially a smoky one; these are cut only when immediately wanted, and are kept covered until the finishers can put on a protective coat of some prepara-

Exhibits the True Knightly Spirit-A Lesson in Courtesy. She was an old German woman. No one knew where she was going, but evidently some distance, for she carried an enormous bundle wrapped in newspaper and containing her personal effects. Supernatural gifts of second sight were not necessary to discover the last fact, for hardly had the old woman entered the train before the contents of her package were exhibited to the view of the other travel-Newspapers have their uses, but they were never intended for wrapping parcels. The strain and the heat of the poor old creature's arms had been too much for it. There was a sound like the outburst of a long pent-up sigh, followed by a shower of neat but plain garments of f. minine wearing apparel along the aisle, and a ripple of laughter which traveled rapidly down the car. Everyone was interested. That newspaper was gone, the contents of the package were scattered. What was the owner going to do? She did not know any better than the other passengers, and it was no laughing matter for her. Just then a man, who had been intently reading his paper, looked up and took in the situation at a glance. He arose quietly, put down his paper and stepped into the aisle. One after the other he took up the different articles, rolled them into tight little bundles, took his own paper and wrapped them neatly in it, tied together the broken string and handed the woman her package in many times better condition than it was before. She was not diffusive in her thanks, but her gratitude was shown in her face. "Oh, tank you, sir: tank you, sir," she said, as she sat down, smiling happily, her rejuvenated bundle clasped tightly in her arms again. Caricaturists in depicting a German are in the habit of putting a big pipe in his mouth. The pipe is national, indeed, but the Germans as a nation are far from leing the greatest smokers. They do not smoke more than Frenchmen, Russians, Swedes or Hungarians. The men of the United States and the men of Switzerland are the most inveterate smokers on earth. In these two countries the consumption of tobacco per capita is three times greater we also raise more tobacco than any other country on the globe. British India comes next, producing nearly as much as we do.

FEW BIRDS OF PARADISE.

Supply the Millinery Trade. The bird of paradise most used in millinery is obtained from the Papuan islands and New Guinea, says a writer in Nature. Mr. Wallace, in describing the Paradisea apoda, says: "From each side of the body," beneath the wings, springs a dense tuft of long and delicate plumes, sometimes two feet in islands and New Guinea, says a writer length, of the most golden-orange color, and very glossy, but changing toward perfect specimens as were common ten years ago. since the unfortunate birds are so hunted that none of them are allowed to live long enough to reach full less than which they will no. te sold, maturity, the full plumage of the has been fixed and determined by the male bird requiring several years for Common Council of Dalles City as folits development. He further states "that birds which now flood the Paris market are for the most part young ones, still clothed in their first plumage, which lacks the brilliancy displayed in the older bird, and are consequently of small commercial value." Since January 1, 1892, strict regulations for the preservation of the bird of paradise have been in force in German

THE DALLES, OR.

THE FIRST BATTLE is an interesting story of the great political struggle of 1896, its most important events and the many issues involved; a logical treatise on Bi-metallism as uttered by eminent exponents, including the part taken by Hon. W. J. Bryan in the silver agitation prior to the Democratic National Convention, and during the campaign; the best examples of his wonderful oratory, the most noteworthy incidents of his famous tour, a careful review of the political situation, a discussion of the election returns and the significance thereof, and the future possibilities of Bi-metallism as a political issue.
