DON'T BE IN A HURRY.

All reports from the Clondyke mining district indicate that it is the greatest gold field ever discovered. That fact, however, should not be allowed to tempt any man to abandon a fairly remunerative position and join the army of treasure seekers that is already being recruited in every part of the United States and Canada. For those who tell of the vast wealth of this new Eldorado also state that the most desirable ground has been staked off, and that the new arrival who proposes to take up a claim worth working must either purchase one from its original locator or go prospecting for one in an unexplored region. And until more particulars are received anent the topographical geological aspects of the country surrounding the Clondyke, it might not be wise to hazard much on the probability of the heavy gold deposit covering an extensive territory. That they do not is indicated by the fact that the country both north and south of Dawson City has failed to reward to any starting extent those who have prospected it. The history of gold mining shows that such heavy finds as those reported from the Clondyke are confined to limited areas.

It would be well for the man of small means to wait awhile, anyway, before starting for the Yukon. The open season up there ends in September, and after that it will be impossible to prosecute prospecting with any degree of facility until next May. By that time much more truth will be known about the present and future of the Clondyke region than has ever been told. Trustworthy newspaper representatives and others who have neither mining claims nor town lots for sale are now en route to the land of promise, and their reports will make very interesting winter reading.

Meantime the hidden gold of the Alaskan wilds will neither take wings and fly away nor be melted by solar heat. For many centuries it has been affording an example of waiting which most of its would-be possessors could now emulate to their own advantage.—Telegram.

A REST NEEDED.

The senate and house committees of conference have met, and by concessions on both sides have reached an understanding that will permit the passage of the tariff bill within a week. This is indeed good news, for any certain condition is better than the uncertainty that has held sway for the past four months. It is to be hoped that the new law will produce sufficient revenue for the needs of the government, and that the country may have a few years rest from tariff agitation. Every change, every proposed change of the tariff laws unsettles business, sets speculators at work, and raises the dickens with the country generally. Business requires not only an unvarying medium of exchange, but it requires unchanging laws. Only with these two conditions will conservative business men use their money. Under other conditions business is no longer business, but speculating and gambling.

The country will take a long breath of relief when the bill is passed, and it is sincerely hoped that when it is passed our people will be let alone to work out their one salvation. They can and will do it all right if given the opportunity, and letting the tariff laws alone will furnish it.

Report comes from Goldendale that David Johnson is on his way out to Mt. Adams to find a mine, or the mine which an old Dutchman used to go to every summer out in that section. The old Dutchman was no myth, having lived here, and it is true that he used to go out to the Mt. Adams neighborhood. His mine, however, we believe to have existed principally in his head. The writer hereof has taken considerable pains to trace the old fellow, and the stories concerning him. He used to go out every summer, and on several occasions took parties with him as far as Trout lake, or even beyond it, but always gave them the slip. We believe the story of his finding a mine is untrue, for he never had any gold. From half an ounce to an ounce was as much as he ever could show after one of his trips, and that amount can be gathered in that neighborhood at any time within a month. The truth, we think, is that the old fellow was a "little off," and the fellows who go hunting his mine will find that they have been fooled.
