PEASE & MAYS

"The Delft"

Enameled Ware.

Mixed Blue and White outside and White inside.

"The Delft" is the latest ware out in cooking utensils. Prices are about the same as granite ware, and a great deal cheaper than the aluminum war, and prettier than either of them. Call and see the goods at

MAIER & BENTON'S

"It Don't Seem Like the Same Old Smile."

Say husbands, you will not have occasion to hum the above song, if you will come to Mays & Crowe's and buy your wife one of those elegant

BLUE FLAME OIL STOVES

They will do the work of any Cast Iron Stove or Steel Range, and just the thing for warm weather. The universal verdict of those who have tried them is, "We would not be without it."

There is one good thing about the Baker, the passengers get to see all the scenery.

The Earl fruit company expects to ship 300 cars of fruit from Oregon to the eastern markets this year.

One individual, who had imbibed too freely, was before the city recorder this morning, and was prescribed for in the usual manner.

The Elite Candy factory has just put in a fine new soda fountain, and is prepared to furnish its customers soda-ice cream as well as soda, with the most delicious flavoring. Try one of its milk shakes. 2-16-tf.

The steamer Baker arrived last night about 9 o'clock, after a fourteen hours' run from Portland. The Baker is a fine boat, but unnecessarily slow. She brought up, among other freight, two big threshers.

The Wolff & Zwicker iron works of Portland has secured the contract for building another torpedo boat for the government. The new boat is to have a speed of 30 knots an hour, and will be a wonder of marine engineering.

McClure's Magazine for August will contain a dialect poem by James Whitcomb Riley; a characteristic poem of the "rail" by Cy Warman; and a poem on what is perhaps the greatest of the questions of the hour, by Albert Bigelow Paine.

If Hon. T. T. Geer's statements concerning the trans-Mississippi congress held at Salt Lake contain as much truth as his statements concerning Bryan's speech here, to call the whole affair a lie would be to insult Ananias, and bring the blush of shame to Baron Munchausen.

The road up the brewery hill is in the worst condition possible. Whoever has charge of it should see that some work is done on it, and that at once. And while we are about it, it might be added that Union street is full of rocks, and a few dollars expended there would not be wasted.

The weather bureau, we are glad to state, was mistaken concerning the weather yesterday and today. According to the forecast, yesterday was to have been a scorching and today was to be much worse. Instead, the day has been simply delicious, or at least that is what a young lady told us. We credit the improved weather conditions to Patricio

McNeal, the young gentleman who is now running the weather department of the Commercial Club.

Word has been received at Baker City of an accident at the Union-Companion mine, at Cornucopia. Blasting with giant powder was proceeding, and between the blasts a great volume of smoke poured from the shaft. This smoke overcame William Broomhall, a miner, and the unfortunate man fell down the shaft a distance of 75 feet. His left arm was broken in two places, and his shoulder was dislocated. At last accounts he was living, and it is thought that he will recover.

The Dalles can boast one home industry at least, and its owner says it is a success. A man named Johnson looking over the situation concluded it was just as easy for home talent to start a knife and scissors grinding business as for an outsider to do so, rigged up a wheel and treadle on a wheelbarrow and is doing a good business. He made the grindstone from the fragment of a large one, and everything about the machine was made by himself. As a result of his first three hours' work he earned $1.15.

The Dalles just now presents a rather deserted appearance, though business is good. The regular summer outing to the coast or mountains is on, and everybody is away, except printers and other public benefactors, who have to remain at the post of duty at all times. Notwithstanding the regular inpour of wealth, the newspaper man gets weary and lonesome on such occasions, and even wishes, as his slippered feet press the velvet carpet in his private office, that he owned a claim in the Clondyke, and was running it himself.

This morning some men who are engaged in packing supplies to the sheep camps, tied three of their horses to the awning posts in front of the Times-Mountaineer office. They stood quietly for a time, but one of them happening to glance up, saw the big sign, and realizing that in front of a Democratic newspaper office was a very poor place for a sheep-owner's horse, he gave the alarm, and all three of the animals began tugging their best to get away. The result was that all the posts were pulled out and the sign torn down before the frightened animals could be secured.

Mrs. J. E. Andrews was knocked down by a biker of the variety known as scorchers, last night on the street crossing in front of Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. One of the pedals caught in her leg and lacerated the flesh so that eight stitches were required to close the wound. Second street has become a favorite racing ground for some of our young folks, and they will do well to make a change in the program. The bicycle has come to stay, and nobody objects to the use of the streets by those who like to ride, but at the same time there are always some addle-pated people who bring disrepute on everything they engage in, and the bicycle has produced a phenomenal crop of this kind all over the country.

Just a Pair of Socks.

William Henrick is in jail at Pendleton, with a fine of $75 and the alternative of lying thirty-one days in jail hanging ever him, and all on account of a pair of socks, and a pair of undarned socks at that. William resides at Milton, and the other day when he came home he asked his better half for a pair of socks. These were cheerfully furnished, but when William put his tribbles inside of them he discovered that besides his feet there were holes in them. He pulled them off and commanded his wife to darn them. Being engaged in getting supper, she declined for the time being to do so. William was a disciplinarian, besides he was the head of the family and his word was law. He didn't propose to have the Sockless Jerry racket played on him, and so he proceeded to lay violent hands on Mrs. William Henricks, and he administered punishment as he thought commensurate with the crime. Then Mrs. William placed the matter before the minions of the law, resulting as above. We are inclined to think William acted too hastily and harshly. Had it been his golf stockings or his bicycle bloomers that the wife refused to mend, the case would have been different and the beating justifiable, but a pair of six-for-a-quarter socks, the punishment was a trifle severe.

Teachers' Institute.

The programme yesterday was as follows: Grammar—Person number and gender of nouns. English literature—Hawthorne and his works. Physiology—Study of the skin. Arithmetic—Problems in interest. Book-keeping—Entries in journal-day book. Spelling—Chart of elementary sounds of letters. Geography—Climate and products of Oregon. General history—History of Switzerland. Writing—Value of a good movement. AFTERNOON. General discussion—Duties of county school superintendents. Theory—Reason. Physical geography—Rain, snow and hail. Algebra—Simplifying fractional expressions. A copy of the school law has been placed in the hands of each teacher, and the study of the law is a pleasing feature of the institute.

A Street Preacher.

A street preacher has been holding forth here for a day or two, but does not seem to be making many converts to his belief, which seems to be that everybody should be poor. He discoursed in front of Maetz & Pundt's this afternoon, and our reporter straggled along in time to hear him say: "There is no religion in the churches, they had fallen lower and lower, until now instead of taking in the common, every-day people no church considers it has its full complement of sinners until the larger portion of its congregation consist of lawyers, doctors, bankers and other wealthy people." His harangue lasts for half an hour, and it is safe to say that in that time he does not advance an idea or suggest a thought. He is possessed of a foamy cascade of language, the words falling over each other and not reaching beyond his toes. He undertakes to build up his creed, whatever it is, by attacking all denominations and all churches.

Appreciated.

Monday the Regulator took 270 Christian Endeavorers from Portland to the Locks. It is perhaps needless to say that all were delighted with the grand scenery. On the return trip the crowd gathered in the cabin and the following resolutions were passed:

WHEREAS, The young people of Portland have sent several of their number to accompany the excursion to look after the comfort of our people, call our attention to points of interest, and in every way to make our trip as pleasant and profitable as possible; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, Pennsylvanians and Washingtonians, hereby express our hearty appreciation of this great kindness and declare that we will ever hold the people of Portland and their unsurpassed hospitality in grateful remembrance;

Resolved, That our hearty thanks be given to Mr. Alloway, the manager of the boat, for the excellent attention and splendid dinner given the Endeavorers."

Mr. Hawes was called upon to reply. Then Mr. Alloway was brought out. After this, D. G. McKay, D. D., of Greenville, Pa., gave expression in a neat speech. All in all, it was a day long to be remembered.

Big Fruit Crop.

Prof. M. W. Smith, who was superintendent of the reform school five years ago, was in Salem over Sunday to look after his prune orchard in Polk county, which is located near the Wallace fruit farms. He expects to have 5000 bushels of fruit from his orchards this year, and will build a dryer to properly cure the fruit and prepare it for the market. Prof. Smith is now located at Grass Valley, Sherman county, where he holds the position of superintendent of the county schools, having the supervision of twenty-two teachers. Ed H. Jackson, the clothier, formerly in business on State street in this city, is also located in Grass Valley, conducting a similar store to the one he had here, and Prof. Smith reports him as doing a good business. The professor left for his home yesterday afternoon.—Salem Statesman.

By existing arrangements with the publishers of the Weekly Oregonian, we are enabled to club that excellent paper with the Twice-a-Week CHRONICLE at the low rate of $2.25 per year. Now is the time to send in your names.
