BITS OF HISTORY.

If fortunes are so readily obtainable in the Northwest territory why are so many men compelled to work for wages? Why are Indians, who are excellent miners and prospectors, lugging freight for the white man over the Chilcat? Will it be contended that the laborers of Alaska and British Columbia are less liable to find rich diggings than the tenderfoot who sails on the Excelsior? Or will it be argued that the Indian packers, who are charging other tenderfeet fourteen cents a pound for carrying their "year's supply" across the ranges do not know the value of money and cannot appreciate a good thing when they find it?

Half a hundred "richest gold fields in the world" have been discovered since the first rush to California. Cripple Creek was one of these; the Black Hills was another; Reese river and Pioche were rivals of the Comstock; Bodie was a region where every tunnel was a cave of Aladdin and every drift a cavern of Monte Cristo; up to the Fraser river went a shouting mob, every member of which imagined himself a Dives, and came back a Lazarus; not a year has elapsed since the discovery of gold on this coast that there has not been one or more stampedes to "the richest gold fields in the world." And what has been the result? Listen to the tales of the innumerable host of the disappointed—the same tale that will be told when these sanguine treasure-hunters return from the Clondyke—the story of Fraser river; the record of Cariboo; the disheartening narrations of "survivors."—Klickitat Agriculturist.

IT MUST BE MUTUAL.

There is no doubt but that Canada intends to enforce the alien law, or attempt to, not only to keep citizens of the United States out of the Clondyke, but also out of all British Columbia and the Northwest territory. This she has an undoubted right to do. At the same time this country has the right to retaliate and should do so. Canadians in this country have every right a citizen has, with the exception of voting. No one objects to this, but at the same time this action must be met in a spirit of fairness. The arrangement must not be all one sided.

Of course this government would not, perhaps could not, under the treaties legislate against any particular nation, but it can legislate against all, and should Canada's action result in the prevention of foreigners acquiring or owning mines, or interests therein, the loss of all the gold in the Clondyke would be a trifle compared to the mines that would in a few years be saved to United States citizens. Canada has received much from the United States, and it has received but little from Canada.

The fairy tale, gotten up by one Weare, manager or president of a transportation company, about a plot being laid by Chinese pirates to attack and rob a steamer laden with gold coming from the Yukon, is the latest picturesque advertisement of the said transportation company. News of the Clondyke is only a couple of weeks old here, and has certainly not yet reached the ignorant hordes of China. Nor do those Chinese pirates know anything of the routes by which the gold is sent out. The whole story is fishy, and to the minds of sensible people, whose intelligence has not gone summering up to 120 in the shade, would serve to throw discredit on some of the stories. While the Clondyke is undoubtedly rich, it is also undoubtedly of limited area and all located last year. The steamship and transportation companies are making a big haul, and they will make another bringing what is left of the crowd back. That vast sums will be taken from the ground of Alaska no one will deny, but it will be hundreds of years before all of it is even found. Weare evidently had it bad when a horde of Chinese pirates got inside of his dream tank.

After all there are some places more dangerous than Alaska. Harry Gaudier made a stake in the Clondyke, and to celebrate the event went to New York City, being the first of the newly rich to tackle the sinful East. He very wisely put most of his money away and started out with $200 in his pocket to see what there was to see. In the lawless Clondyke he would have been safe with all his money on him, but in less than two hours after his start in the reform-ruled city of New York he was beaten into insensibility and robbed of his money. The borean blasts of the Chilcat pass and the swirling waters of White Horse rapids are less dangerous to the hardy miner than the foaming beer glass and the human hyenas of civilization.

The coal mine operators seem disposed to make some concessions, but they are of a nature that they should have been conceded long ago, or the things complained of should never have been established. One of these is the doing away with the company stores, and the other the guaranteeing of honest weights. It is monstrous that with the peon wages paid the coal miners that the operators should have still further reduced the pittance paid them by cheating them in weights. Whether enough will be conceded to avoid more serious trouble remains to be seen, but the chances of there being bloodshed before a settlement is reached, are yet very good.

The fatal accident on Mt. Rainer that cost Professor S. E. McClure his life Wednesday, should be a warning to mountain climbers not to attempt the climbing of snow peaks without a competent guide. McClure came to his death by losing the trail, just as the Portland man did a short time ago on Mt. Hood. With a competent guide neither of these accidents would have occurred.

The True Remedy.
W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colde. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Blakeley & Houghton's Drug Store. (4)

Hundreds of thousands have been induced to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy by reading what it has done for others, and having tested its merits for themselves are today its warmest friends. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
