A USELESS DENIAL.

The Alaska Commercial Company takes the trouble to deny a rumor that it had instructed its agents at St. Michaels and the commanders of its vessels to bring stranded miners and prospectors, who may find their way to St. Michaels, back to civilization, as a matter of charity. The has no intention of wasting any philanthropy upon fool-hardy adventurers. No person who knows anything of the method of these legalized pirates of Behring sea, ever suspected them of knowing what philanthropy means. Its members are "out for the stuff," and don't care how they get it. Protected by the government in the monopoly of killing struck from which $42,000 worth of seals, they refuse, and have refused for years to pay one cent on their piece being 3 feet long, 2 feet wide contract with the government, while demanding a flotilla of warships to keep Canadians and others off the high seas.

It would not be difficult to believe that this company would make a poor devil of a stow-away miner walk the plank to save the price of his feed if it were not afraid the eriminal law might not be stretched far enough to protect them. They would use a stomach pump on a baby for half a gill of its mother's milk, if they could sell the milk, or dig up their grandmother's shin bones and sell them for shot-gun barrels, if they were straight enough. It is time, high time, that the government bring these pelagic plunderers up to taw, and make them "knuckle down."

Major A. D. Reynolds of Tennessee, by close application to business for thirty years, accumulated a fortune of $525,000. The Cubans seem in a fair way of getting their independence without the aid of Uncle Sam. This is indeed gratifying to Cuban sympathizers in this country, for we are well acquainted with Uncle Samuel, and know that if Cuba does not get her independence without his assistance, she will never get it at all. He is a sympathetic old codger, the fountain of whose tears is ever ready to slop ever. He can weep over the misfortunes of the down-trodden, even though his own foot is upon them, and he can say, "It is really too bad, don't you know," while the moisture gathers behind his specs, until one would think the old bypocrite had some feeling in him. A rich strike is reported from Trinity county, California, that makes even the Klondike tales grow tame. The Graves brothers drove a tunnel twenty-five feet into an iron ledge, taking out considerable gold, but at that distance a pocket was gold was taken in four days, one and 5 inches thick. Besides this, it is supposed there is another $100,000 worth of gold in the pocket, and the ledge itself will yield from $300 to
