CONCERNING DOCTORS.

Some Idle Thoughts About a Disagreeable Profession.

Doctors are a queer lot anyhow. They have a way about them different from the ways of other men, in fact on some occasions "ways not of this world." As a general proposition they are a good lot of fellows, socially at least, and you can't help liking them. In good health, humanity is disposed to look upon them as humbugs of greater or less degree, and to doubt their ability to diagnose diseases and tell a fellow what ails his diaphragm by looking at his tongue, or pressing a finger on his pulse, but in sickness this is changed. The doctor whom you have been accustomed to meeting in a social way becomes another person. He is an autocrat whose will is law and whose law is hard, and yet you are glad to see him, and feel better for his kindly presence.
 True, the first thing he does is to find out what you like to eat and make you stop eating it; what you like to drink and put upon it his mighty taboo. Do you smoke? Smoking is the worst thing you can possibly do. Cigars are banished, and the faithful old pipe, strong in its friendship, is forbidden the house on pain of death. Do you like vegetables? Vegetable food distends the stomach, produces cholera morbus, inflames the stomach and is the forerunner of appendicitis and a hundred other new fashioned diseases. Do you like meat? Meat possesses too much carbon and not enough starch; your system has too much iron, you must take at once to a vegetable diet. Can you swallow pills? No? Then you must take your medicine in the shape of a bolus as big as a horse chestnut and as bitter as quassia chips can make it. If pills are your favorite feed in sickness, they must be powdered so that you get the full benefit of the doubly distilled and infinitely concentrated nastiness. If you want to get out doors and get a breath of air and a glimpse of sunshine, you must lie on your back and gaze at the ceiling. If your bed is a source of comfort and rest, you must get up and leave it.
 And so through the long list, these mild-eyed, smooth-voiced knights practice their negative acts upon you, and yet sickness would be terrible without them, and death almost impossible. Yet suffering humanity gets even on them, for the sick man, who is on to his job manages to need their services at the wretched hour of 2 a. m., on the nastiest night of the year, demands their immediate attention just when dinner is ready and some genial friend is on hand to share it, and stands them off for services rendered with a calm and imperturbable spirit, that approaches to the dignity of an art. Nobody wants a doctor, except when their running gears get out of fix, but when they do want him, like the fellow in Texas wanted the six-shooter, "they want him awful bad."

TALLOW WANTED.

We will pay the Highest Market Price for Pure Tallow.

Pendleton Wool Scouring Company, Pendleton, Oregon.

The Wheat Trade.

Wheat is arriving in straggling lots, the largest receipts being from Eastern Oregon. Trade continues inactive. Most of the farmers are too busy threshing and securing crops to pay much attention to selling. Some hauling to stations is going on, but to date the amount delivered at interior warehouses is small. The past week has been a most exciting one in the wheat trade, and all speculative centers throughout Europe and America were shaken up. The great boom in Eastern markets was reflected to a certain degree in our own interior markets, and sharp advances were telegraphed from the Valley and east of the Cascades. Speculators became imbued with the idea that wheat must be obtained at almost any cost, and a sharp competition between buyers carried prices above the real shipping value. A large amount of Walla Walla wheat is said to have been secured on a basis of 85¢ per bushel here, which is probably 6¢ above its value in the market today. In the Valley, the excitement was not so pronounced, and purchases were made on a safer basis than in Eastern Oregon and Washington. Many farmers took advantage of the boom to part with at least a portion of their holdings, and have done exceedingly well; while many others held out for 1c to 2c higher, and have been left out of the short boom. Today's nearest export values, based on English selling prices and freight rates, are 78c for Walla Walla, 82c for bluestem, and 82c for Valley, per bushel.—Portland Commercial Review.

 What use is therein eating when food does you no good—in fact, when it does you more harm than good, for such is the case if it is not digested?
 If you have a loathing for food there is no use of forcing it down, for it will not be digested. You must restore the digestive organs to their natural strength and cause the food to be digested, when an appetite will come, and with it a relish for food.
 The tired, languid feeling will give place to vigor and energy; then you will put flesh on your bones and become strong. The Shaker Digestive Cordial as made by the Mount Lebanon Shakers contains food already digested and is a digester of foods as well. Its action is prompt and its effects permanent.
