Billy Bell, who belongs to that class known as squaw-men, stabbed and mortally wounded his squaw at Port Blakeley Saturday, and the following day committed suicide by hanging himself to the bed-post in his cabin.

Since the beginning of time woman, lovely woman, has had much to answer for. From the golden-haired Guinevere to the raven-haired Cleopatra, from the fair-skinned Helen of Troy to the acute brunette of Billy Bell's household—alike they have caused trouble, bloodshed and death. The human heart is a strange and complex bit of machinery, and what it does, or will do, neither science nor sense may demonstrate. One would never suspect, for instance, that a white man would become so enamored of a Puget sound squaw that he would commit suicide because, as Bill Nye puts it, "she was too good to be true." It is hard to believe this possible, if one has ever seen one of these "squaws. They are not beauties. Most of them have a forehead like the mold-board of a breaking plow, and a form possessing all the grace and roundness of a twenty-gallon beer keg. They are dumpy, dirty and suggestive of the spring run of salmon late in the fall. Yet such is the power of femininity that Billy Bell felt that without the particular specimen of the genius that he had captured, life would be an utter blank, and so he sent her over to the happy fishing grounds (that tribe doesn't hunt) by jabbing a hasty butcher knife into her anatomy, and followed her into the beyond by the clothes line route.

Prince Henry of Orleans and the Count of Turin fought a duel with swords near Paris Sunday, and the former got the worst of it, being prodded in the right breast and in his royal abdomen, but he will recover. His opponent received a light cut on the back of his hand. The fight lasted twenty-five minutes. That illustrates the difference between old country methods and the rapid manner of doing things in the wild, wild West. The arrangements for the duel have occupied four men, not counting the principals, for three weeks, and then when the combatants finally entered the ring it took twenty-six minutes to get a result. In a mining camp the preliminaries would have been arranged in two seconds, and without any, and the corpse would have been carried out and all hands ginned up before the twenty-six minutes had elapsed. Western methods are sometimes hurried, but the results are enormous.

The weather bulletin gives a general report of the temperature in "Eastern Oregon" and says the highest was 98 on Sunday, etc. Eastern Oregon is a very large country, hence the report as to the temperature must depend upon the portion of Eastern Oregon where it was taken. At The Dalles the thermometer Sunday stood at 3 o'clock at exactly 100. At Pendleton a few days before, we are told it was 106. It is an impossibility to give the temperature of Eastern Oregon at a given time, for it will vary at least twenty degrees.

Congressman Ellis was at the Perkins hotel, Portland, Saturday and Sunday, and it is said that he was the busiest man in Oregon, and the hotel seemingly the most popular one in the city. The delegation of those desiring to devote their services to Uncle Samuel was there in force, and the bell boys received tips for carrying cards up to Congressman Ellis' room until they thought they had a small section of the Klondike. And yet they received no satisfaction, for until the balance of the Oregon congressional delegation arrives no recommendations will be made.

We notice among those booked for passage on the Elder, now on her way to Alaska, the name of C. H. Hell. Of course it is only surmise on our part as to his fate in the Klondike, but we venture the assertion that before he gets there he can drop the middle letter of his name without changing the nature of the scenery that will be most familiar to him.

The Crook County Journal reaches us this week with all the brands and ear-marks of Hugh Gourlay's versatile genius on its pages. No smoother pencil than his puts black lines representing thought on white paper, and Crook county is to be congratulated upon securing his services.

Among other questions asked applicants for certificates to teach were three or four concerning Cuba, some of which would bother a statesman. The series reads: "Where is Cuba?" "What people live there?" "What is their religion and government?" The last is a stumper.

Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1882, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write to me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by Blakeley & Houghton.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy always affords prompt relief. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription.
