THE RIGHT MAN.

Oregon, and in fact the whole Pacific coast, was peculiarly fortunate in the appointment of Hon. Binger Hermann to the position of commissioner of the general land office. It was proper that a western man should be appointed to the office, for all the government's land, or practically all of it, lies west of the Mississippi. Eastern men do not understand the surroundings and conditions as do those who have been raised in the West.

The most important matter in this line, both to the government and the settler, is the forest reserves, recently established in Oregon, California and Washington. They cover an area half as large as the New England states, and they contain a wealth of timber that is not equaled in the world. At the same time there are large tracts of fine fruit lands included within their limits that should be thrown open to settlement.

To post himself thoroughly on the matter Commissioner Hermann is now on the coast. Having as thorough a knowledge of the subject as he has to start with, it is safe to say that his conclusions concerning the management of these forest reservations will cover the whole ground. He is a thorough land lawyer, with an unlimited knowledge of conditions on the coast, and when he goes back to Washington we may expect a sensible lot of regulations concerning forest reserves that will hereafter prevent any protests against the government's action upon them, for Mr. Hermann's opinion will carry weight with the interior department.

A CRITICISM.

Charles Austin Bates' Criticisms, a variegated advertising journal, that, as its name implies, furnishes Charles Austin Bates a chance to criticize newspaper advertisements and rates, is a piebald specimen of journalistic tommy-rot. To show the value of his criticism let us examine a statement purporting to come from a correspondent, but self-evidently written by Charles Austin Bates. He says: "Women do nine-tenths of the buying, 99-hundredths of the reading of advertisements, and are influenced 999 times as much as a man. Nine multiplied by nine equals eighty-one; this multiplied by ninety-nine equals 891; and this multiplied by 999 equals 890,100. It follows, therefore, that Charles Austin Bates thinks that for every man influenced by advertisements, 890,109 women would be so influenced. As there are about 15,000,000 women in the United States, according to Mr. Bates, if the whole lot of women were attracted by the advertisements, only about seventeen men would be."

Charles Austin Bates is a chump, and he should avoid figures as he would a pestilence. Mathematics is an exact science, and Charles Bates' criticisms are not exactly a science.

Dollar-a-bushel wheat is no longer a legend. Thursday the market took a jump, going to 97 cents a bushel in New York, $1 in Minneapolis, and staid old Philadelphia "went them all better" and gave the highest quotations $1.02. The rise was not all speculative, having behind it sharp advances in Liverpool and on the continent. The market is unsteady and excited, and fit it is impossible to form any idea as to what the price will settle at. Harvest conditions in Europe, and in fact all over the world, indicate the greatest shortage the world has had in years, and the prices will not become steady until more definite knowledge of harvest conditions is known. It is quite certain, however, that wheat is going to command a big price. Of course the high price will cause the use of corn and other substitutes, which will fix the limit of price.

As explaining a sudden rise in wheat, the statistics of the New York World give some satisfactory reasons. In the first place the "visible supply" has run down from 164,319,000 bushels in 1894 to 67,000,000 bushels in August, 1897. This alone makes a shortage of 100,000,000 bushels, enough to cause a sharp rise, but on top of this comes a shortage in the European crop amounting to 222,000,000 bushels, or a grand total shortage of more than 300,000,000. On top of this still, the corn crop shows a shortage of 250,000,000 bushels, and a corresponding advance in price caused by the deficiency. The World estimates that increased prices will mean this year more than $500,000,000 to the farmers.

Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great Remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write to me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by Blakeley & Houghton.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy always affords prompt relief. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
