TREAT THEM ALL ALIKE.

The case of President Andrews, of Brown University, whose resignation was asked for on account of his free silver views, seems in fair way of being settled contrary to what most people supposed it would be. Owing probably to the pressure of outside opinion, the board of trustees has addressed a letter to President Andrews asking him to withdraw his resignation and intimating that the letter which asked for it was an unfortunate document and the result of haste. We are inclined to think this latter action of the board is wise, while not endorsing for one moment the erratic views on this important question which we believe Mr. Andrews to hold. The man who is at the head of such an influential institution as Brown University is known to be, should necessarily be a man of calm mind and conservative judgment. In most things President Andrews has shown himself such a man. The prominent part he took in the last campaign was not in accordance with the best of taste, yet it is no more to be condemned from the standpoint of good economics than has been the course of the well known apostles of free trade who occupy prominent positions in our leading schools of higher learning. President Eliot of Harvard, to our mind, is committing as much an error when he argues for free trade as does Mr. Andrews when he spends his time trying to make people believe that an unlimited quantity of forty-cent dollars is as good money as 100-cent dollars, whose value is stable.

One of the reasons which induced the asking of Andrews' resignation was that through dislike of his currency views wealthy philanthropists would refrain from endowing the university as they otherwise would. This was an unfortunate reason to assign. Colleges are not created simply for the purpose of becoming wealthy, and some of the best educational work done in the country is found in schools with limited means. President Garfield once said that the best college he could picture for himself, would be Mark Hopkins sitting on one end of a log and himself upon the other. If it ever becomes common belief that our great universities are bidding for money and are willing to mould their views to suit the demands of the money changers, then their influence is curtailed and their work rendered futile as agencies in establishing a higher standard of citizenship.

We are sorry Brown University has a man at its head with views like those of President Andrews upon this important question; but unless they could have found other reasons for his dismissal they should not have asked it. Otherwise let the free trade professors go, as well as the free silverites.

The authorities in the South are deservng of credit for the speedy way in which they have arrested the yellow fever scourge. All danger of a general epidemic now seems past. The advance of medical science is again strikingly illustrated by the preventative measures used in subduing what was formerly the terrorizing malady of the South.

The Oregonian has the best of Pennoyer on the saw-mill question. Oregon's boss demagogue loudly complains that he cannot run his saw mill because there isn't any free coinage of silver; but under these same distressing conditions other mills on either side are working over time and making more money than for several years. If Pennoyer continues flying in the face of facts, it will be shown to the satisfaction of everyone what a cheap demagogue he is. All sensible people are satisfied on that point already.

The settlement of the coal miners strike will cause satisfaction in all parts of the country. The tragedy at Hazelton, Pennsylvania, where twenty-one miners were killed outright and more wounded, was a menacing portent of what might follow. The conditions of settlement, while perhaps not what either side would wish if left as sole judge, still under the circumstances are as satisfactory as any that could be obtained. At all events, a distressing element in the general business situation has been eliminated.

German Settlement in Indiana. Four towns in two counties in Indiana make up a German settlement where German customs prevail exclusively in the home habits of the people, although all the inhabitants speak English and the children learn English as well as German. The towns are Ferdinand and St. Henry, in Dubois county, and St. Meinrad and Maria Hill, in Spencer county. Ferdinand, the oldest of the towns, was founded by a missionary priest, Father Kendrick, in 1840, and was named in honor of Ferdinand I. of Austria. There are no Americans in it, and there are only two families of Americans in St. Meinrad, which is the seat of a Benedictine monastery.

Need for Haste. A nervous young lady called a physician for a slight ailment, but one which she magnified, in her own estimation, into a serious one. "Run," said the doctor to a servant, giving him a prescription, "to the nearest drug store and bring back the medicine as quickly as you can." "Is there much danger?" replied the young lady, in alarm. "Yes," said the doctor; "if your servant is not quick it will be useless." "Oh, doctor, shall I die?" gasped the patient. "There is no danger of that," said the doctor, "but you may get well before John returns."

Insanity in Ireland. Insanity is increasing in Ireland. English statisticians say that one serious cause of lunacy is the abuse of tea, another an overindulgence in alcohol, a third the disappointment of having tried emigration and failed.

A Fine School. St. Mary's academy for ladies, located in this city and under the direction of the Sisters, is one of the best educational institutions on the coast. The building is of brick, large and well ventilated. Besides the regular studies, especial effort is made to instill into the minds of the pupils a desire to form their hearts to virtue, and to fit them to be true and noble women. Gratuitous lessons are given in all kinds of plain and fancy needle work, knitting, embroidery, etc. Pupils will receive the same watchful care that would be given them by conscientious parents. It is in fact an ideal school and a pleasant home. Those who have girls to send to school should write to St. Mary's academy for terms. If.
