Curious Fact About the "Murray Cod" of Australia.

There is a large fish found in the rivers of western Australia known as the "Murray Cod." This fish—which is delicious for the table—is remarkable for its size, sometimes weighing as much as 150 pounds; but the strangest thing about it is the fact that it carries around a photograph inside its body. At least the natives say that it is a photograph, and certainly it looks like one.

When the Murray cod is cut open a bladder is seen, extending along the backbone from just behind the gills to the fatty part of the tail. In a 30-pound fish the bladder is about 12 inches long and an inch or more in width. Within this is a film, or thin membrane, through which runs a delicate tracery composed of a multitude of little red lines, interlacing like the frost work on a window pane in winter. This film can be peeled off and spread upon a sheet of paper or a piece of cloth, to which it readily adheres. It then forms a very pretty picture. Sometimes it looks like a bit of pressed seaweed; sometimes it seems to portray a miniature landscape with a dark forest background; but in most cases it presents a surprisingly distinct outline of a single tree, the Australian gum tree, a species of eucalyptus.

To explain this singular fact the aborigines have an ingenious theory. They say that the picture thus imprinted on the membrane represents the tree which overshadows the pool where the big fish made its haunt—in short, that it is a real photograph.

Pencil as the notion seems, it gains a certain plausibility from the known habits of the fish, which is extremely solitary and exclusive in its ways. The Murray cod really does make its home in some forest-shadowed pool, to which it always returns after its excursions abroad for food or exercise, leading a curiously hermit-like existence; it will allow no other member of its species to intrude upon its domain. Here the sullen creature spends its life, year in and year out; it never changes its residence. Here it grows from insignificant minnowhood until it becomes a king among fishes, as big and heavy as a well-developed man, and for the greater part of each day the shadow of its favorite tree falls upon its slimy back. It is little wonder, therefore, that the untutored but imaginative savages, puzzled by the lifelike picture which they find in the bladder, conclude that the familiar scene has become photographed in the creature's very substance.—N. Y. Journal.

A NEW WESTERN IDEA.

Girls Who Give Gold Models of Their Little Fingers to Their Betrothed.

"Do girls here give gold models of their little fingers to their fiancés?" asked the western girl of the Gothamite, reports the New York Sun.

"Heavens, no!" answered the Gothamite. "It seems to me that that is rather a grewsome souvenir."

"Not at all," answered the western girl; "it is decidedly dainty, and I'm a little surprised that New York is so far behind the times. The fad started in this way. When the daughter of one of our big western politicians was six months old he had a model of her little finger cast in gold. Around the little dimpled digit is a ring of turquoise, which is her birth stone, and it makes a lovely charm for her betrothed's watch chain. He valued it so much that it set other men to thinking, and the result is that as soon as a girl wraps one of these chaps around her own little finger sufficiently for a proposal to follow he immediately insists upon a gold facsimile of the flesh and blood original. It is a pretty conceit, and is being followed by every westerner who is in subjection to somebody's little finger."
