HIS RICHES TOOK WINGS. D Farmer's Treasured Geese Take a

Pawtuxet valley farmer, whose farm is near the village of Crompton, had a literal exemplification a few lays ago of the old adage which cays that "Riches take unto themoves wings and fly away," says the Provi-dence Journal. Something over a year ago he and his son fired at a flock of Mr. F. H. Hillgen of Tygh Ridge is in wild geese that flew over his form and managed to bring down nearly twoscore of them. About 13 of the birds vere only wounded, and, surviving the shooting, were so carefully kept that in a year their captors had succeeded by judicious breeding in increasing the stock to over 70 geese and gollings. They were kept in a pen that was covered with wire netting, and seemed to have become thoroughly domesticated and satisfied with their surroundings.

One day lately the farmer, wishing to let them feast awhile on the tender. blades of grass that were sprouting in an adjoining field, opened the coop and let the strange flock into the pasture green and new. And this is where he made a mistake. The half-wild ganders, several days, but is out again and will geese and goalings reveled for awhile amid the verdant grass and new-found freedom, but never made an effort to rise above mundane things, and the experiment was voted a success by the owners of the flock. Her husband being ill, was un-ed themselves too soon, however, for later in the day there came winding over the Coventry hills, high in air, a snaky black line from which there floated down into that Crompton farmer's pasture the "honk, honk" of the ally needed when the languid, exhausted wild goose, a sound familiar to sports-

> Without waiting to bid their owner good-by, with one accord the ganders, geese and goslings arose on new-found wings to join their free fellows near the clouds, and before the farmer knew what had happened they were out of gunshot, following the black trail to-

JOBS OF CHEMISTS.

The Queer Class of Patrons That They Have to Serve.

Chemists sometimes have queer experiences. The following facts, says the Chicago Journal, were told by professor in one of the western universities: "For about ten years I have made a specialty of examining and reporting upon cases of real or suspected poisoning. As a number of my cases have been connected with murder trials, I have had considerable notice in the daily papers. This reputation for making analyses for poisons has brought me a queer class of patrons. "Every year I have one or more old men come to me with samples of food to be examined for poison. These men, without exception, have married young wives, and when the husband is taken sick and does not recover as quickly as he thinks he should, he begins to suspect that his young wife wants to get rid of him, and is poisoning him gradrecommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."— Of course he does not want his wife to know of his suspicions, and he quietly gets a sample of the food he suspects, and at some unusual hour for work generally either early in the morning or very late in the evening, he comes to me and tells me very secretly that he wishes to have an examination for pol-

> "Now, the old part is that, though I have made a number of such analyses, I have never found poison present in ony case. Then the husband is very that he suspects her, and he gets out | wit: of my laboratory in the quickest and quietest manner possible. So every year I expect to see some elderly man coming apprehensively up my office stairs with a well-concealed sample of food about him to be examined for poi-Every year he comes, every year son. I make my analysis and find no poison, and every year the old gentleman gets information that he considers cheap at street the price."

SENSORY HALLUCINATIONS.

The Seeing of Ghosts Due to Defective Eyesight.

A recut number of the Australian Medical Gazette contains a brief but instructive report of the cure of a case of hallucinatory disorder. The patient, a man aged 60 years, had suffered for two years from subjective visual sensations not a day passed that he did not see a large number of spectral human figures, and believing himself to be naunted by ghosts he had become very despondent and melancholy. On seeking medical advice it was found that he had senile cataract. When this was removed by operation the ghouts fled and the man recovered his usual health. In this connection we may cite the case of a tradesman in Berlin whose shop was haunted by apparitions resembling in appearance some of his deceased customers. He was an intelligent man, aware that he suffered from sensory hallucination, and made notes of his submitted his eyes to examination and operation, with the result of a restoration of normal vision and the immediate and final disappearance of his in-tangible visitors. The obvious teaching of the foregoing and similar cases is that in these modern days the person to be resorted to for the exorcism of spirits and demons is the opthalmic sur-
