In general appearance the latest summer millinery is much less fantastic

One of the special features of the summer millinery is that the hats should be in one line of color

Strings of velvet and of lace ribbon or tulle are a feature of some of the latest hats and toques

Very pretty and simple hats of yellow straw, in the round shape, turned up at the back, are trimmed with yellow or pink roses

CANINE CONTESTS.

Shepherd Dogs Compete for Honors as Herders.

A Society in France Which Has for Its Object the Improvement of This Breed of Dogs—Rules of the Contest.

For two years there has existed in France a society known as the "Club du Chien de Berger Français," which is devoted to the improvement of the breed of shepherd dogs in that country.

It is seconded in its efforts by the ministry of agriculture, and its work has been of such a nature that shepherds and drovers take more than a little pride in possessing membership in it.

The dogs used in France for guarding and driving flocks and drives differ considerably from the Scotch collie. Two of the principal breeds cultivated there are known as the dogs of Beauce and of Brie, the country of the fragrant "fromage."

The dogs of Beauce have a rough coat, sharp nose, erect, pointed ears and something of a wolfish appearance. Those of Brie have long, shaggy hair which conceals their eyes and to a great extent the form of their limbs.

The club held its first competition last year in the neighborhood of Chartres and the second was held just a month ago at Angerville, a village in the department of Seine et Oise, on the plains of Beauce, where shepherd dogs are numerous and which are easy of access to the drovers of the stock yards of La Villette in the northern suburbs of Paris.

In judging the dogs entered in competition their points of beauty and the purity of breed are first considered, and then follows the most interesting part of the competition, the conducting of a flock of sheep over a prepared course by each dog entered.

"At half-past 12 the procession starts from the town hall of Angerville for the proving ground, two mounted gendarmes opening the line of march, followed by the Ophéan society" (the name with which brass bands dignify themselves in French villages).

"The route over which the sheep should pass without deviation is traced on the plain by two furrows turned by a plow, and marked from place to place by small stakes floating tricolored pennants.

"In the park at the commencement of the course is a large drove of sheep which are to play their humble role in the spectacle.

"Each shepherd is required to drive a group of 15 sheep over the course, which has been made difficult by barriers, ditches and hedges, and it is the duty of the dog to see that none of them wanders from the flock.

"The troop should pass over all obstacles, climb the hillocks, descend into ditches and pass between the hedges which form a choked passage in a compact band from which no sheep should be allowed to separate itself.

"Amusing incidents are not lacking. Of the 32 dogs entered few succeed in conducting their 15 sheep safely to the goal. Wild chases over the plain and between the feet of the spectators are frequent. More than one of the shepherds, exasperated by the stubbornness of the sheep before the obstacles, seizes the leader by the tuft of wool at the nape of the neck known as the 'chignon' and drags him through the difficult passages, thus inducing the remainder of the stupid band to follow like sheep."

"The best dogs are those who do not become nervous or excited, but by their calmness and by taking their time prevent the scattering of the flock.

"A good shepherd dog should not nip the hind legs of a sheep, as a cut from his sharp teeth may spoil the shank, which furnishes the most salable cut of mutton, but should seize the animal by the 'chignon.'"

After the trials of driving, the sheep are placed in hurdles, and a competition of placing and separating into lots is held, and the day is terminated in a fête in the village with illuminations, merry-go-rounds, dancing, and like amusements.—N. Y. Herald.
