Stands at the Head.

Aug. J. Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cures my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Safford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds. I cannot say enough for its merits." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and today stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. 1

The remedy cured me and I want all my friends when troubled with a cough or cold to use it, for it will do them good." Sold by Blakeley & Houghton.

EMPEROR A NIGHTHAWK.

Frequently Receives Visitors Between Three and Four in the Morning. The emperor of China is one of the hardest-worked men in the world, and according to a curious custom that I have never heard explained he turns day into night, writes a correspondent of the Chicago Record. Some of the most important events in his daily programme take place after midnight, and he frequently receives visitors by appointment at three and four o'clock in the morning. When Li Hung Chang returned to Peking from his tour around the world the emperor received him and heard his reports between four and five o'clock a. m. He has often received ambassadors at similar hours. The emperor's work day begins at one o'clock p. m. He first sees the members of the privy council, then he devotes an hour or two to the consideration of their reports and recommendations, and then he receives the members of the official boards, viceroys, governors and other officials who have come to Peking to be presented or to pay tribute or receive instructions. He sits upon a throne upon a raised platform. They kneel before him with their foreheads touching the floor until he commands them to lift their eyes. They are kept in this posture so long that the old men always pad their knees with cushions. The emperor dines about sunset, and has the third meal of the day at midnight. Sometimes he retires as early as one or two o'clock a. m., but he is often at work until daylight.

A Fine Compliment.

No more elegant compliment was ever paid to a preacher than that of King Louis XIV. of France to Jean Baptiste Massillon, bishop of Clermont. Said he: "I have heard many great preachers, and the effect they produced on me was that I felt thoroughly satisfied with them. Every time I heard you I have been dissatisfied with myself."—Chicago Chronicle.

Modern Treatment of Consumption

The latest work on the treatment of diseases, written by forty eminent American physicians, says: "Cod-liver oil has done more for the consumptive than all other remedies put together." It also says: "The hypophosphites of lime and soda are regarded by many English observers as specifics for consumption."

Scott's Emulsion

contains the best cod-liver oil in a partially digested form, combined with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. This remedy, a standard for a quarter of a century, is in exact accord with the latest views of the medical profession. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

JOBS OF CHEMISTS.

The Queer Class of Patrons That They Have to Serve.

Chemists sometimes have queer experiences. The following facts, says the Chicago Journal, were told by a professor in one of the western universities: "For about ten years I have made a specialty of examining and reporting upon cases of real or suspected poisoning. As a number of my cases have been connected with murder trials, I have had considerable notice in the daily papers. This reputation for making analyses for poisons has brought me a queer class of patrons. "Every year I have one or more old men come to me with samples of food to be examined for poison. These men, without exception, have married young wives, and when the husband is taken sick and does not recover as quickly as he thinks he should, he begins to suspect that his young wife wants to get rid of him, and is poisoning him gradually through the medium of his food. Of course he does not want his wife to know of his suspicions, and he quietly gets a sample of the food he suspects, and at some unusual hour for work, generally either early in the morning or very late in the evening, he comes to me and tells me very secretly that he wishes to have an examination for poison made.

"Now, the odd part in that, though I have made a number of such analyses, I have never found poison present in any case. Then the husband is very much afraid that his wife will find out that he suspects her, and he gets out of my laboratory in the quickest and quietest manner possible. So every year I expect to see some elderly man coming apprehensively up my office stairs with a well-cooled sample of food about him to be examined for poison. Every year he comes, every year I make my analysis and find no poison, and every year the old gentleman gets information that he considers cheap at the price."

SENSORY HALLUCINATIONS.

The Seeing of Ghosts Due to Defective Eyesight.

A recent number of the Australian Medical Gazette contains a brief but instructive report of the cure of a case of hallucinatory disorder. The patient, a man aged 60 years, had suffered for two years from subjective visual sensations not a day passed that he did not see a large number of spectral human figures, and believing himself to be haunted by ghosts he had become very despondent and melancholy. On seeking medical advice it was found that he had senile cataract. When this was removed by operation the ghosts fled and the man recovered his usual health. In this connection we may cite the case of a tradesman in Berlin whose shop was haunted by apparitions resembling in appearance some of his deceased customers. He was an intelligent man, aware that he suffered from sensory hallucination, and made notes of his subjective impressions. In due time he submitted his eyes to examination and operation, with the result of a restoration of normal vision and the immediate and final disappearance of his intangible visitors. The obvious teaching of the foregoing and similar cases is that in these modern days the person to be resorted to for the exorcism of spirits and demons is the ophthalmic surgeon.

A House Like a Woman's Head.

Of the many ideas put forward for the Paris exposition of 1900, none is more original than the proposal to build a house (to be devoted to the world of women) in the shape of a beautiful woman's head. The suggested entrance will be at the base of the neck, and the eyes are to be illumined by electric arc lights. The chance for some mechanical genius to invent mechanism to work the jaw up and down is obvious.
