OKLAHOMA IS BOOMING.

It May Become a State Before Either New Mexico or Arizona.

Oklahoma was organized as a territory in May, 1890, a little more than seven years ago, having been cut off from the Indian territory. At that time the population of the territory was 60,000—33,000 male and 27,000 female—and was almost exclusively native-born white inhabitants, the total number of foreigners being 700; of colored inhabitants, 2,900, and of Mongolians, 2,500.

The development of Oklahoma has been promoted enormously since its establishment as a territory. The railroad business has been developed largely within its borders, and the early settlers who went out in wagons, in carts and on prairie schooners have now all the facilities of modern travel.

Oklahoma is modern in some other respects. In 1896 there were more business failures in it than in all the other territories combined—more business failures in the year than in New Hampshire and Vermont, together.

The soil and climate of Oklahoma are favorable to the production of corn, cotton, sorghum, flax and fruit, and it is remarked as an encouraging indication of thrift that the inhabitants, unlike those of New Mexico and Arizona, have only seven holidays a year, Washington's birthday being one and Decoration day another.
