THEODORE DURRANT.

In all probability Theodore Durrant was hanged today for the murder of Blanche Lamont in San Francisco in April, 1895. The dispatches show that a final attempt was made yesterday by habeas corpus proceedings to still further delay his execution, but it is not likely that it succeeded. His case, or rather his trial, was a peculiar one. During its progress the newspapers of the city published the full testimony, and their pages were filled with pictures of the murdered girl, the church, the rooms, the clothing, shoes and books of the dead school girl. There were pictures of the witnesses, and every harrowing detail pertaining to the murder was dwelt upon lingeringly and lovingly. Public feeling was worked up to its highest pitch, until there was but one all pervading subject in the city, but one idea and demand—that the murderer of the young girl be hanged. Around Durrant was woven a chain of circumstantial evidence, backed up and strengthened by some testimony undoubtedly false. The public took up the cry, "It was Durrant who committed this crime, for no one else is suspected! Hang him! Hang him!"

The jurymen on his case knew this, they knew that the public expected them to find him guilty, and that their own lives would not be safe did they not do so.

He may have been, probably was, guilty; but guilty or innocent, he did not know that fair and impartial trial which is guaranteed him by our laws. He should have had a new trial, and would have had it had the judiciary of California regarded their oaths of office more and their chances of being re-elected less. Guilty or innocent, he was entitled to a fair trial by unprejudiced and uninfluenced jurors. That he did not have, and could not have in San Francisco. On his conviction the public rage was appeased. He was credited with not only the murder of which he was convicted, but of that of Minnie Williams also, and there all attempt to solve the mystery of her murder was dropped. Yet it does not seem possible that the same persons committed both murders. The murder of Blanche Lamont was accomplished without the shedding of a drop of blood and might be classed as scientific. That of Minnie Williams was brutal and bloody. In the Lamont case every effort was made at concealment; in the other none. In the Lamont case the body was placed where it would decay without attracting attention, the lock of the door leading to the belfry was broken, and it is probable the body would not have been discovered for months but for the subsequent murder of Minnie Williams. It may be possible that both murders were committed by the same person, but it is fair to presume that the murderer of Blanche Lamont, after taking all the steps he did to conceal the murder, would not commit another murder that was sure to bring the first one to light, and this within two weeks of the first.

crop in the country is out of farmers hands, and held by interior warehousemen and speculators, who seem to be firm holders, having confidence in an improved market later on. If reports are correct of prices heretofore paid by these dealers, it will take considerable of a raise to fetch them out even on their purchases. As for the shipping class, they have large stocks on hand, have no urgent wants to fill, and consequently are only in the market when offerings come within a reasonable price. Reports from the country show that at all points buyers have reduced limits, and are more cautious in their operations. The outward movement from here is satisfactory, while receipts from both sections continue very large.—Commercial Review.

There is nothing in the Thanksgiving proclamation just issued by the governor of the state of Washington to indicate that its author is displeased with this country's condition. If Bryanism and all it represents were controlling the nation's affairs, Mr. Rogers could not be more rhapsodical in his expressions of gratitude to Divine Providence for "blessings bestowed." Which goes to show that the governor is either sloughing off his Populism or acquiring a love of cant.—Telegram.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Thousands are Trying It. In order to prove the great merit of Ely's Cream Balm, the most effective cure for Catarrh and Cold in Head, we have prepared a generous trial size for 10 cents. Get it of your druggist or send 10 cents to ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y. City. I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for catarrh and contains no cocaine, mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents. At druggists or by mail.
