The initial number of the Grass Valley Journal, published as its name implies, at Grass Valley, Sherman county, reached us this morning. The new paper is edited by C. E. Brown, and is neat and full of local news.
The steamer Maria, which was to have made its first trip from Portland today, will not be up tonight as was expected, but will probably make her first trip Wednesday. The delay was caused by the inspectors, who ordered a new pop-off valve put in place before she went on the route.
The ball to be given by Cedar Circle, Women of Woodcraft, on Friday evening next, is not a public affair, and if anyone who has received an invitation wishes one for a friend who has not, please leave the name with Mr. Parkins, Mr. Phillips, Mrs. Filloon, or Mrs. Chas. Stephens, and the matter will receive prompt attention.

Portland's advertising committee passed through last night on its way to Boise and Spokane, in search of trade. The windows of the cars in their special train were curtained and the appearance of the train was gloomy in the extreme. The difference between Portland business people and the business people of other coast cities was fully shown in this instance. Had this been a committee of California or Seattle people, the newspapers along their route would have been notified of their coming; the cars would have been covered with banners, and when the boys arrived everybody would have known it. Portland has sat at the gate and gathered toll so long that she knows nothing else.

Saturday evening Mr. G. D. Snowden received a telegram announcing the death of his youngest sister, Mary, at their home in Tacoma. He left on the early train yesterday to attend the funeral. The young lady had not been in the best of health for some time, but her final illness lasted but three days. Many will remember her as having visited her brother here two years ago, when all who met her were won by her sweet, innocent manner.

According to the dispatch in the Oregonian, from Goldendale, a remarkably rich gold find has been made by Lewis Woods, some where in the Mt. Adams country. The figures given are $800,000 per ton, and as pure gold is only worth about $500,000 to the ton, it will be seen that this exceeds anything found on the Klondike, as the find is worth $100,000 a ton more than pure gold. The story indicates that our friend Maddock still occasionally gathers news for the Oregonian.

The Portland advertising committee reaching after Idaho trade and ignoring that close at hand, is like the Irishman who was hired as a diver. The armor and outfit was fastened on him after he had been instructed in its use, and he was lowered to the bottom to work upon a wreck. After ten or fifteen minutes a violent ringing of the alarm caused him to be hoisted hurriedly to the surface. When the helmet was taken off he was asked "What is the trouble?" "Shure I want to quit!" "What for?" said his employer. "Begob I won't work at a job where I can't spit on me hands."

Wednesday evening at the Baldwin opera house Capt. W. F. Drannan, assisted by a strong company, will present the realistic drama "The Gordon Massacre," as written by himself. Capt. Drannan was the companion of Kit Carson, and saved from the Indians the Gordon girls. The massacre occurred in Choke Cherry canyon, Nevada, in 1852. Besides the play, a clever vaudeville company will furnish an hour's amusement. Among the attractions are James Stuart, comedian and general dealer in fun, W. M. Marco, contortionist, known as the human snake, Billy Lefton, the famous acrobat, and little Juliette Vinton, skirt and eccentric dancer. Captain Drannan was, we are told, at one time a resident of The Dalles.

"The worst cold I ever had in my life was cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes W. H. Norton, of Sutter Creek, Cal. "This cold left me with a cough and I was expectorating all the time. The remedy cured me and I want all my friends when troubled with a cough or cold to use it, for it will do them good. Sold by Blakeley & Houghton."

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

Grand Reception Saturday Night at the New Rooms.

Saturday was a busy day for members of The Dalles Commercial and Athletic Club, the various committees being engaged in putting the new rooms in shape for the reception of the invited guests, and when the lights were turned on it was evident that the right people had been selected for the work.

Though the most representative gathering of Dalles people to the number of at least 500 were there, and saw for themselves the beautiful rooms, we cannot forbear a description of them, yet we feel the task is beyond the power of our pen. The entrance is under a massive portico, the doors being of handsome bird's-eye sugar pine and opening into a small ante-room. From this the entrance is made into the gymnasium and bowling alleys, where four fine double maple alleys invite those who love the sport to roll a game or two. The gymnasium is to the left of the entrance, and is, or will be, thoroughly equipped. A fine horizontal bar, parallel bars, dumb bells, Indian clubs, punching bag, boxing gloves, and dozens of other things pertaining to gymnastic exercises being already on hand.

From the lower floor a broad stairway with landing, leads to the club rooms proper. The rooms are all carpeted with velvet and tapestry carpets, that on the stairs matching that of the reception room, and being a green figure on a light background. The hall, stairway and reception room are all finished in terra cotta shades, giving them a warm and cheerful tone.

The parlors are to the left of the reception room, and are spacious and elegantly furnished. The paper is a red-brown and gold, the carpets green and brown, the former shade prevailing, and from these through a wide arch opens the reading room, carpeted the same as the parlor, and its walls papered in green and gold. Convenient tables hold the magazines and papers, while a neat case contains a well-selected library.

From this the directors' room, a cosy little nest, opens to the west, while to the south is bachelors' hall, where cigars may be smoked and the married members may come and dream of the days that are no more, when they might smoke without being smoked. This is carpeted in light brown shades, the walls being a buff.

To the right of the reception room is the billiard room, with two fine tables, and here are several card tables, where those who like to study the combinations of the pastebord may indulge in their favorite games. The floor is covered with linoleum of light color, the walls a gray green.

Every room is provided with a cloak room, and a telephone is on each floor, adding to the conveniences.

This is the club's new home, but no words can describe the masterly manner in which the entire upper floor has been arranged; the beautiful effects produced by the rich furnishings, and the artistic

- They are safe and have a catch to hold the cover while putting in fuel.
- You have a fire every morning.
- Our hot blast draft furnishes a hot air feed, not cold air, and saves fuel.
- They are easily moved and set up.
- Our wood stoves are made with either sheet iron or cast iron tops in all sizes, for all purposes.
