NATURAL COKE.

It is Claimed There is a Deposit of It in the State of Utah.

In works of mineralogy it is learned that there is such a product as natural coke, but so far as known there has but one deposit of this commodity been found in the United States, and this was in the vicinity of Richmond, Va.

Although the deposits of coal in Utah are immense in their proportions, it was never dreamed that among its commodities of trade and commerce the state could boast of beds of this natural coke, but such is the case, however, and the Salt Lake Herald is informed that a short time ago a vein of this coke had been discovered in a section of the country about 140 miles south of this city, and within 15 miles of a railroad.

This deposit crops out on the surface for some distance, and a 25 to 30-foot tunnel has disclosed a body of coke that is all of five feet in width, and there is every reason to believe that with depth the size of this deposit will increase. In quality the coke is all that could be desired, and at the assay offices at which it has been tested the statement is made that it is a pure article, and that it is even superior to the manufactured coke, as it is entirely free from sulphur, bitumen, and that it gives out no smoke when burned, and makes less ash than the manufactured article.

The new find, which is considered as being among the most valuable that has been made in the state, is owned and controlled by ex-Mayor R. N. Baskin and several other Salt Lake gentlemen, who have located 640 acres in the immediate vicinity of the discovery.

FORGET THEIR CHANGE.

Men in a Hurry to Get Away After Making Their Purchases.

A man entering a State street bookstore, made several small purchases, threw down a dollar bill to pay for them, and as soon as his package was handed to him turned to go out. The clerk called after him, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

"Hi, there! Don't you want your change?" and he handed the customer the best part of his dollar.

"That happens every day," said the clerk, "and we give quite an amount at the end of the year to charitable organizations from the fund created by change that has not been called for. It seems as if customers have only one idea, and that is to get their goods and go away."

"Do they ever come back for the change?"

"Very rarely, and then it is always for change that was left somewhere else. I often wonder how such people get through the world. And another funny thing is, the customer never seems to expect the change when we offer it to them, that is after he has forgotten it. You saw how that man looked when we called him back—just as if I was making him responsible for some other man's mistake. It takes all kind of people to make a world."

Sinking of Cape Cod.

The Boston Transcript refers to the recent indications that Cape Cod is gradually sinking or wearing away. A few days ago workmen at the Provincetown pumping station found, 17 feet below the level of the surface of the ground and six feet below the sea level a four-inch stratum of mold composed of decayed leaves, fibrous matter, and fragments of tree trunks and branches. This would seem to indicate the land has sunk, for fresh water is found on the cape at a level about equal to the sea level at mean tides.

Eight Golden Weddings.

Eight golden weddings were celebrated recently at Anderlines, near Brussels. The whole town turned out in honor of the occasion, they had a public dinner and a ball, and each one of the old people received the present of an armchair.

CALLING THE DOCTOR.

People Are Not Considerate of the Physician's Comfort.

Without intending to be so, people are extremely inconsiderate to their physicians, and unwittingly cause them a great deal of trouble and weariness.

At a somewhat informal meeting of doctors and nurses, held not long since, for the purpose of discussing the relations between the two, some very interesting facts were brought out and talked over with that clearness of perception and directness that characterize persons whose long familiarity with their business renders them experts.

"In the course of my duties as nurse," said a young woman who has made a name for herself, "I have observed that imagination and apprehension have a great deal to do with sending for doctors at unseasonable hours. As a rule the sufferer might just as well wait until morning or send before it is late into the night. But fidgety and consequential folk seem to think that it adds to their importance and the gravity of the situation if they rouse the house at a time when everybody is or ought to be asleep and send some servant or member of the family post haste for medical aid."

When people are ailing they get tired and nervous and fretful and out of joint with everybody and everything. They are to a certain extent entertained and amused or at least occupied during the day. Their thoughts are distracted in spite of themselves, and they have less nervous force to expend upon themselves. When night comes and the house is quiet they are left more to themselves, and their thoughts and fancies run riot. They magnify their ills, and dwell upon their pains and give free rein to their fears.

We all know that by indulging ourselves we get into apprehensive states and fancy all sorts of dreadful things when once we give way to our feelings.

And it is especially so with sick persons. They begin to think and to worry and wonder if they are really growing worse, and, if there is an extra twinge of pain or a little faintness or undue nervousness, they lose their heads at once, and everybody is roused to minister to what is really nothing more nor less than the legitimate result of too much self-examination and too close attention to symptoms that would not be at all alarming if they were not dwelt upon.

Of course there are acute attacks of various diseases that demand instant attention, but when the doctor has made one call he is usually quite well qualified to state whether or not there are conditions that are likely to arise that may give cause for alarm.

"I have had many patients who could, with a little explanation and quieting, be reconciled to waiting for the doctor until morning," added the young woman.

"I have made it a rule in my ten years' experience never to send for a physician after ten o'clock at night or before seven o'clock in the morning unless there was imperative need of it. Doctors need rest and sleep just as much as other persons, and it is manifestly unjust to them to call them out at night unless it is absolutely necessary. With reasonable consideration, the doctor will live longer and be more valuable to his patients than if he were dragged out at unseasonable hours and upon frivolous pretexts."—N. Y. Ledger.

RUSSIAN HUNTING DOGS.

The Laikas Furnish Food, Draw Sledges and Supply Clothing.

Harding Cox writes about laikas, or northern dogs.

"The duties of the true laika," he says, "are of an extremely varied nature. Among the Chinese about 1,000,000 are eaten every year, while in Russia the beast is trained for all sorts of hunting—squirrels, bear, deer, snipe, capercaillie, ermine, sable and all the other beasts are taken with them, even the wolves. It is estimated that nearly 1,000,000 rubles' worth of game is taken with the aid of the laikas in Russia. Prince Schirinsky, a Russian noble, is trying to get a cross between the laika and some setter or retriever, believing that he would thereby obtain a dog which would make as nearly a perfect hunting dog as is possible.

"In the polar swamps the laika are used in drawing sledges as well as hunting by the natives, while their warm pelts are made to serve as coats and trousers after death.

"The laika has an upright, pointed ear, which the dog pricks when excited. The muzzle is long and sharp, but powerful, set to a broad forehead. The body is strong and at the quarters broad and powerful. The ribs are big and long. The chest is deep and broad. The legs are for running, while the coat is thick, having 'cotton' under the hair, which makes it warm.

"The chief colors are from black and black and tan to grayish, but the dogs are never spotted in the pure blood. A few of these dogs can stop a bear or anything else easily. The dogs are just about two feet high."—London Field.
