WHERE THE PROFIT LIES.

The margin of profit is now so close on all products, either of the farm or of the factory, that the great problem is to make everything out to the best advantage. A few years ago and a very large proportion of the weight of cattle and hogs was lost or wasted; now nothing is wasted, but every part is made to bear its share of the original cost. Farmers used to be content with getting crops off the plowed fields, earning everything they raised by the severest kind of labor. The American Farmer says that what they had to sell then brought good prices and what they wanted to buy they got cheap. Now prices are so uncertain that the farmer never can tell until his crop has been actually sold whether he has farmed to a profit or not.

The farming in this country is done on a much more scientific principle than it was a few years ago, and the farmer is learning to make good use of all his opportunities, but still he falls far short of making the best use of his farm. That is, he does not get so much out of the soil as he ought to. The trouble is, the farmer can see no profit in anything but the grain or the grass he cultivates. The facts are that if the farmer would pay attention to the small things, with a very slight outlay in the beginning and none afterward, except a little labor now and then, he might add materially to his income.

There is hardly a farm in the West that could not be made to earn from $100 to $300 each year for the owner, without any outlay, except, perhaps, a few dollars in the beginning. Let us give a few illustrations: There is now a growing demand for persimmons. All the hotels of the country are furnishing them as a table delicacy. Every persimmon tree, when in full bearing, will net the owner, if the fruit is carefully gathered and prepared for market, from $2 to $4 every year. The tree requires but little care in cultivation. The greatest care required is when the fruit is gathered. There is hardly a farm of ten or more acres but could find room for at least fifty of these trees in spots now unused. Fifty trees would be worth every year at least $100.

Too little attention is paid to the cultivation of nut trees. In fact, except in a few localities, no care at all is taken of them. If the farm has a few nut trees, well and good. They are left without care, and when the fall comes the fruit is left to the boys. If they feel like gathering them and taking them to market they are permitted to do so and that is all. Pecans can readily be raised, especially in southern Indiana. The tree readily responds to cultivation. The same is true of chestnuts, and the English walnut has been cultivated with great success. Every nut tree, if properly cultivated, is worth from $3 to $5 annually. When the farmer has put out his fifty persimmon trees, if he will look around a little he will find room for fifty nut trees, and thus in a few years will be able to add largely to his income, with but little labor.

If you have a low, wet place on your farm, or a piece of woodland that you now consider as useless, try it with peppermint. There is always a demand for the oil, made by distillation, and a very small piece of ground, with a little labor, can be made to yield a very large profit, a profit that will beat dollar wheat clear out of sight.

All these things can be raised on what have hitherto been unused spots on your farm. If half the labor is bestowed on them that is required to take care of an acre of wheat, the return will be far greater than the wheat will give. Cut close! Make every fence corner pay its way, and you will never have occasion to complain of hard times, and will be ready for the tax collector when he comes around.—Pendleton Tribune.

Thousands are Trying It.
In order to prove the great merit of Ely's Cream Balm, the most effective cure for Catarrh and Cold in Head, we have prepared a generous trial size for 10 cents. Get it of your druggist or send 10 cents to

ELY BROS., 56 Warren St., N. Y. City.
I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for catarrh and contains no cocaine, mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, $0 cents. At druggists or by mail.

Employment Wanted.
A No. 1 bookkeeper would like something to do in his line, or steady employment. Will open or close books, change from single to double entry, and make trial balance or business statement. I have highest recommendations; know my business and am willing to earn my salary. C. M. Sisson, City. dec215w2.
