An Indian Scheme for Mating the

Braves with Wealthy Maids. An old custom was revived by the Nez Perce Indians and their visitors during the celebration on the last Fourth of July. The natives of the local tribe are very wealthy, and there are designing mothers among the aborigines as well as in the different classes of civilized society. The young bucks of the Nez Perce tribe are regarded somewhat like the scions of royalty in matrimonial circles. The maidens from all visiting tribes were brought to Lapwai | the wife of one of the richest merchants to find husbands. The customs of the tribes, which were revived for the occasion, were more effective than the Boston man's way.

The young men marched forth, and none but candidates for matrimony joined the march. They were dressed in their brightest colors, and each carried a white willow cane. As they approached the tents they chanted an Indian chorus that was as deleful as the song of the owl, and kept time by beating upon the tents with their canes. The drumming was deafening to the distant spectator, and must have been distracting to the waiting maidens in the tents

At last the singing and drumming had the desired effect. The maidens came forth after a delay just long enough to satisfy that universal passion of the mind of a woman to drive a lover mad with doubt. There were more men than maidens. The former kept up the march and the music without. The maidens countermarched on the line of the same circle, each selecting a husband from the line. The chosen ones hastened to follow their brides away into the darkness. The unfortunate suitors were left to despair. -Portland Oregonian.

A Window nox Flower Garden.

A window box may be a very cheap or a very expensive affair, but a cheap one, made out of a packing box, will grow flowers just as well as a costly one made of tiles. All that is necessary is something that will hold soil. It is not enough to simply nail window boxes to the wall; a brace should run lengthwise of the box, and be strongly bracketed at each end to furnish support for the box. The soil with which the box is filled should be rich; plants will not grow in poor earth. It is often difficult to get good soil in the city, but the addition of a little bonemeal, which can be procured from any store where garden seeds are sold, will make a poor soil sufficiently rich in all elements of plant food to insure success. If you do not feel able to afford fertilizer the use of soapsuds on washing day will supplement, to a considerable extent, whatever nutriment is contained in such soil as happens to be available. - Ladies Home Journal.

An Indian Woman Who is Up with the Times.

be classed as "old," was seen on the streets of St. Louis a few days ago. A. J. Douglas of Dulur is in the city anhood, strikingly handsome and sutoday. perbly proportioned, and was dressed in bloomers, although they differed in style and cut from any worn by the St. Louis bicycle girls. She was an Indian woman, the full-blooded daughter of a chief of the Sioux tribe, one of the D. C. Herrin, state lecturer for the A. fiercest and most bloodthirsty bands which ever troubled the settlers of the west, and her dress was one of the most peculiar ever seen on the streets of a great city. A dark hat of modern style half hid a quantity of raven-black hair on her splendid head, and a long ulster of the most recent fashion enveloped her, outlining her fine figure to advantage. But below this there flapped out as she walked the most remarkable part of her dress, and that which attracted the most attention, her bloomers. They were cut long and straight, like men's trousers, and were small at the bottom, so that they were rather close about the ankles. These bloomers were of black silk, and the inner and outer seams were decorated with four or five rows of beads of various colors and worked in fanciful design. Flowers, snakes and animals ran up and down the side, and made the bloomers, or trousers, a thing to attract attention anywhere, and especially on so handsome a woman. Her complexion was olive, like that of a Spanish girl, and clear; her checks were rosy and her voice low, but her eyes were dark and piercing, and seemed to look through cne. But with all her fanciful dross and her name of Talaconqua, she is of the great southwest, and is on her

As he walked there was a swing to his gait that told of the easy gallop of the mustang, and everything in his manner bespoke the cowboy. His shirt, which was of expensive material, was made negligee fashion and cut low at the neck, showing a powerful neck, tanned by the exposure of many suns on the plain. His clothes, too, were of expensive material, but the cut was a trifle odd. Still, they gave one the impression that they were paid for, and that the man who wore them had his own opinion as to how clothes should be made for him, as he was the man to wear them. He walked along, frequently squirting a stream of tobacco juice through his white teeth and stroking his long blonde mustache.
