CALLING THE DOCTOR.

People Are Not Considerate of the Physician's Comfort. Without intending to be so, people are extremely inconsiderate to their physicians, and unwittingly cause them a great deal of trouble and weariness

At a somewhat informal meeting of doctors and nurses, held not long since, for the purpose of discussing the relations between the two, some very interesting facts were brought out and talked over with that clearness of perception and directness that characterize persons whose long familiarity with their business renders them experte

"In the course of my duties as nurse," said a young woman who has made a name for herself, "I have observed that imagination and apprehension have a great deal to do with sending for doctors at unseasonable hours. As a rule the sufferer might just as well wait until morning or send before it is late into the night. But fidgety and consequential folk seem to think that it adds to their importance and the gravity of the situation if they rouse the house at a time when everybody is or ought to be asleep and send some servant or member of the family post haste

When people are ailing they get tired and nervous and fretful and out of joint with everybody and everything. They are to a certain extent entertained and amused or at least occupied during the day. Their thoughts are distracted in spite of themselves, and they have less nervous force to expend upon them. nervous force to expend upon themselves. When night comes and the house is quiet they are left more to themselves, and their thoughts and fancies run rlot. They magnify their ills, and dwell upon their pains and give free rein to their fears.

We all know that by indulging ourselves we get into apprehensive states and fancy all sorts of dreadful things Notice is hereby given that bids will when once we give way to our feelings. And it is especially so with sick pering the county charges by the week for sons. They begin to think and to worry the ensuing year. All bids must be and wonder if they are really growing worse, and, if there is an extra twinge of pain or a little faintness or undue nervousness, they lose their heads at once, and everybody is roused to minister to what is really nothing more nor less than the legitimate result of too much self-examination and too close attention to symptoms that would not be at ousness, they lose their heads at once, tion to symptoms that would not be at old, branded with a figure 2 on the right all alarming if they were not dwelt

Of course there are acute attacks of various diseases that demand instant attention, but when the doctor has made one call he is usually quite well qualified to state whether or not there are conditions that are likely to arise that may give cause for alarm.

"I have had many patients who could, with a little explanation and quieting, be reconciled to waiting for the doctor until morning," added the young

"I have made it a rule in my ten years' experience never to send for a physician after ten o'clock at night or before seven o'clock in the morning unless there was imperative need of it. Doctors need rest and sleep just as much as other persons, and it is manifest injustice to them to call them out it night unless it is absolutely neces-With reasonable consideration, he doctor will live longer and be more valuable to his patients than if he were

RUSSIAN HUNTING DOGS.

The Laikas Furnish Food, Draw Siedges and Supply Clothing. Harding Cox writes about lalkas, or porthern dogs: "The duties of the true laika," he says, "are of an extremely varied nature. Among the Chinese about 1,000, 000 are eaten every year, while in Russia the beast is trained for all sorts of hunting-squirrels, bear, deer, snipe, capercailzie, ermine, sable and all the other beasts are taken with them, even the wolves. It is estimated that nearly 1,000,000 rubles' worth of game is taken with the aid of the laikns in Russia. Prince Schirinsky, a Russian noble, is trying to get a cross between the laiks and some setter or retriever, believing that he would thereby obtain a dog which would mil' as nearly a perfect hunting dog as is possible.

"In the polar swamps the laika are used in drawing sledges as well as hunting by the natives, while their warm pelts are made to serve as coats and trousers after death.

"The laika has an upright, pointed ear, which the dog pricks when excited. The muzzle is long and sharp, but powerful, set to a broad forehend. The body is strong and at the quarters broad and powerful. The ribs are big and long. The chest is deep and broad. The legs are for running, while the cont is thick, having 'cotton' under the hair, which makes it warm. "The chief colors are from black and plack and tan to grayish, but the dogs are never spotted in the pure blood. A lew of these dogs can stop a bear or anything else easily. The dogs are just thort of two feet high."-London Field.

Household Gods.

The Ancient Greeks believed that the Penates were the gods who attended to the welfare and prosperity of the family. They were worshipped as household gods in every home. The household god of today is Dr. King's New Discovery. For consumption, coughs, colds and for all affections of Throat, Chest and Lungs it is invaluable. It has been tried for a quarter of a century and is guaranteed to cure, or money returned. No household should be without this good angel. It is pleasant to take and a safe and sure remedy for old and young. Free bottles at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store. 2
