THE YEAR AT HOME.

The New York Independent gives the following resume of the most important feature of President McKinley's administration:

"The most important aspects of the past year are those relating to politics and financial and industrial recuperation. President McKinley in outlining his policy, gave the first place in immediate importance to legislation for the enlargement of the revenues of the country, and the second place to the question of currency reform. He also indicated his strong attachment to the merit system and his intention to uphold it. He took occasion shortly after to promulgate an important rule forbidding removals from office except on written charges. He has proved a strong friend of the merit system.

"On March 15th a special session of congress was convened, and the work of revising the tariff was entered upon. It was known in advance who would compose the committee of ways and means, and they had been working diligently in preparing new schedules. The house was, therefore, enabled to act with great promptness, and the new tariff went into operation in July. It raised the duties on many articles, notably wool and woollens, to about the rates of the old McKinley tariff, leaving a few (as in the iron and steel schedule) almost undisturbed. The results of the new law are not quite certain. While there has been a monthly advance in the receipts, they are not yet sufficient to meet the expenditures of the government. The present policy is to wait two or three months longer. Mr. Dingley and others believe that there will be such a substantial increase as will justify their policy of retaining the tariff as it is.

"The expectation that the tariff settled, there would be a gradual return of the prosperity enjoyed before the panic, has been justified in a large measure. Business interests have adjusted themselves to the new tariff and the present conditions; and with the most abundant crops the country has ever had and large demands for them from abroad, our farmers have had a remarkably prosperous year, particularly in the West and Northwest, and have paid off a large amount of mortgages and other debts.

"The elections in November were of a mixed character. Where Republicans carried states it was generally by a reduced plurality. The Bryan Democrats hardly held their own in Nebraska and lost South Dakota. In an election for chief justice of the court of appeals of this state the Democratic candidate won by a handsome majority, being helped by the large Democratic vote in the Greater New York, where Tammany was triumphant over the Citizens' Union and the Republican ticket. The loss of Greater New York came hardly as a surprise, because the Republicans insisted upon a separate ticket, making the triumph of Tammany certain. The loss to good government is great. On the other hand, Baltimore was carried a second time by those in favor of a good, clean administration, and the state also went Republican, insuring a republican successor to United States Senator Garman.

"Our relations with Spain and Cuba have at times been quite delicate. Under the new administration they have somewhat improved, due partly to the fact of a change in the Spanish cabinet, and the access of the Liberals, with Senor Sagasta at their head, to power. Our new administration is regarded as friendly to Spain, although President McKinley's policy of ultimate intervention is very distasteful to the Spanish people.

"One of the great events of the year has been the discovery of enormous deposits of gold in what is known as the Klondike region, part of which is in Alaska and part in British North America. The richest finds so far have been in Canadian territory. Many millions of the gold mined last winter have been brought to the United States, and it is expected that the next year's output will be immensely larger. A large number of persons from the United States and Canada have gone to seek their fortunes in the new diggings. So many of them have pressed into the country that starvation during the long arctic winter is a possibility, and relief expeditions are to be sent forward with supplies at the expense of the United States government."
